THIS Spring Export Number of The Bookseller is devoted to the new books scheduled to appear between now and July. Since they were started in 1940, these bumper seasonal issues have provided booksellers, publishers, agents and librarians, at home and abroad, with a mine of information about British publishing plans. The editorial pages, which start on page 3, are intended as a guide to the books available in each category listed in the index below. The publishers' announcements, in alphabetical sequence as far as possible, start on page 288, and there is an index to advertisers on the back cover. An index, under author and title, to approximately 7,000 books announced in the publishers' advertisements, starts on page 225.

It must be stressed that prices and dates, where given, are approximate, for it is too early in the case of books still in the first stages of production for publishers to give firm details. Certainly there seems to be an ever indeed are on to their fourth and fifth appearances in the Export Number, at of course ever increasing prices and sometimes with changes of title, either because of hold-ups in the translation of foreign works (a number of John Calder titles come into this category; and it is also the reason for the delayed appearance of Hodder's edition of Professor Matthiae's Ebla—An Empire Rediscovered which will not come out in July as indicated in the Archaeology section but has been put back to September), or because of production difficulties. An important title making its fourth but last appearance is Ragnhild Hatton's George I, for it really is coming from Thames & Hudson this month, on the 12th. But in some cases one begins to suspect that that favourite phrase of book publicists, "eagerly awaited", means simply that a book has been a little slow to appear. A few uced new and generally well received novels. Nevertheless there are new works from C. P. Snow, Muriel Spark, Nadine Gordimer, Isaac Bashevis Singer, John Masters, John Updike and Bernard Malamud. Chatto have a previously unpublished collection of tales and reminiscences by Richard Hughes, which he wrote after a visit to Morocco in 1926. There are new offerings from Arthur Hailey, Wilbur Smith, Peter Benchley (for whose The Island Deutsch have written some tantalising copy—see page 48), Morris West (for which Collins are to run a television advertising campaign), Mary Stewart and Mary Renault.

A number of well-known stage and screen actors have volumes of autobiography due this season. The well-heralded Lauren Bacall by Myself will in fact already be out by the time this issue appears. Ian Carmichael, Alec McCowan, Curt Jurgens and Sophia Loren have also written about themselves, while Allen Lane are publishing selections from a diary kept by Charlton Heston over 20 years of film-making. Actors who have biographies coming include Robert Morley (by his daughter-in-law Margaret Morley), Gladys Cooper (by her grandson Sheridan Morley), Peter Finch and Joan Crawford, whose aura of glamour is about to be shattered in two forthcoming books (see page 15).

Almost as many biographies and autobiographies of musicians are to appear, and they can be found in both the Biography and the Music sections. The centenary of Sir Thomas Beecham's birth in April is celebrated by a Hutchinson reissue of his autobiography first published in 1944, and by a new biography from Macdonald & Jane's. Also in April, his successor as elder statesman of British music, Sir Adrian Boult, will be 90 and Hamish Hamilton publish a volume of writings and letters which will include correspondence with Elgar, Vaughan Williams, Toscanini, Schnabel, Yehudi Menuhin and many other notable musicians. Jack Brymer, Tito Gobbi and Antal Dorati have all written their memoirs. Yet another volume appears about Maria Callas, this time by her compatriot Arianna Stassinopoulos, and there are also biographies of David Oistrakh and Solti.

Another centenary, to be celebrated in March, is that of the birth of Einstein; Ronald Clark's biography is reissued by Hodder, a collection of essays is coming from Heinemann Educational, and there are more technical volumes from Cambridge and BBC Publications, the latter to tie in with a television series. Numerous other tie-ins are forthcoming, particularly of course in the paperback field, and one of the biggest will undoubtedly be David Attenborough's Life on Earth which BBC publish together with Collins.

1979 is the Year of the Garden, and apart from the usual crop of practical titles about growing vegetables, pruning roses and making a particularly wholesome compost heap, several titles for armchair gardening enthusiasts and others stand out. Gardens of the National Trust is the third in a series published by Weidenfeld and the National Trust (following the successful British Castles and Great Houses of Britain). The Englishwoman's Garden from Chatto features contributions from 36 notable women gardeners and ranges from cottage to stately home. Several titles on the history of gardens appear, among them offerings from Croom Helm, John Murray and Whittet Books. More specialised aspects are covered in Roy Strong's The Renaissance Garden in England, from Thames & Hudson, details for which are in fact given in the Art section, and in Robert Hale's Georgian Gardens.

For the first time travel and topographical titles have been divided into those covering the British Isles and abroad, and guides to castles, country houses and cathedrals, etc. are included. Other topographical titles cover walks in specific areas of Britain describing features of interest to be seen on the way, but a number of titles occur in the Sports and Pastimes section which would seem to cover similar fields, though some of them concentrate on the physical, mental and moral benefits of walking, and they have been grouped together on pages 112–13.

No less than six books covering the England v. Australia Test series are due to appear in early summer. At the time of writing the outcome is just known, and England's captain Mike Brearley's book for Hodder is prophetically entitled The Ashes Retained. More cautiously, Geoffrey Boycott's book for Arthur Barker was called The Fight for the Ashes. Another member of the England team, Bob Willis, has written for Pelham Diary of a Cricket Season.

The most saleable title in the children's books field will undoubtedly be Alan Aldridge's The Peacock Party. His Butterfly Ball sold over a quarter of a million copies in Cape's hardcover edition alone, and this sequel is apparently an even more lavish production. Other new picture books include offerings from Errol Le Cain, Brian Wildsmith, Quentin Blake, and there are new novels by Rosemary Sutcliff, William Mayne, Peter Dickinson and Philippa Pearce.

Thirteen titles now on Publishers Weekly hardcover bestseller list are to appear over here this season: on the fiction list, Howard Fast's Second Generation which Hodder will publish, John D. Macdonald's The Empty Copper Sea (Hale), Stephen King's The Stand (New English Library), John Updike's The Coup (Deutsch), and Taylor Caldwell's Bright Flows the River (Collins). In non-fiction come Barbara Tuchman's A Distant Mirror (Macmillan), Christina Crawford's Mommie Dearest (Granada), William Manchester's American Caesar (Hutchinson), Theodore H. White's In Search of History (Cape), James Fixx's The Complete Book of Running (Chatto), Thomas Hoving's Tutankhamun (Hamish Hamilton), Chaim Potok's Wanderings (Hutchinson), and Peter Matthiessen's The Snow Leopard (Chatto). Whatever success these titles achieve, their publishers are bound to feel envious of the American figures quoted: 252,000 copies in print for A Distant Mirror, a book about the Middle Ages, and 400,000 copies in print for Mommie Dearest, one of the books about Joan Crawford.

The Tolkien industry continues, however, and The Silmarillion—250,000 copies of which have been sold in hardback in this country, while 1½ million copies in English-language editions have been sold worldwide—is out in paperback in March. Not only are other Tolkien titles due in mass-market editions but there will also be a hardcover film-book to tie in with the forthcoming film of The Lord of the Rings. Other highlights of the paperback publishing season—which have all been bestsellers in hardcover—include Peter Ustinov's Dear Me, Tim Severin's The Brendan Voyage, Clare Francis' Come Wind or Weather, John Fowles' Daniel Martin, Donleavy's The Destinies of Darcy Dancer, Gentleman, Alistair Maclean's Seawitch, Hammond Innes' The Big Footprints, and Dick Francis' Risk; and, for a lovely long summer wallow, M. M. Kaye's The Far Pavilions, the U.K. edition of which is due in May.

We regret the omission of titles from W. H. Allen in the Biography section and from Cape in the Drama section, but unfortunately their copy was received too late for inclusion. □

BIOGRAPHY and MEMOIRS

JONATHAN CAPE report that they paid £65,000 for what promises to be their biggest book of the spring: Lauren Bacall's own story, written in longhand in pencil, of the shy, stage-struck New York Jewish girl who went to Hollywood and took it and Bogie by storm. A full-scale promotional tour plus an appearance on the Parkinson show are planned for the author when she comes over in February. Lauren Bacall by Myself (£5·95), which is not only a Main Choice of the Book of the Month Club but also of the Biography Book Club, will be serialised in Britain in the Daily Express and in Woman.

Anthony Howard has edited and provided biographical background to the diaries of his long-standing friend and predecessor at the New Statesman, Richard Crossman, making that formidable work now available in a highly accessible form. The Crossman Diaries: Selections from the Diaries of a Cabinet Minister 1964–70 (£8·95) will be published jointly by Cape and Hamish Hamilton in April.

The Life of Katherine Mansfield (£8·50) by Anthony Alpers has been delayed from January to May. Also coming then is Hermann Hesse: A Biography in which Ralph Freedman explores what lies behind the reputation of the adored cult writer who had such an uncanny ability to attract generations of the young.

July brings My House has Two Doors (£7·95), the fourth volume of Han Suyin's autobiography and history of China covering the years from 1949 to 1964. From the unique vantage point of a Eurasian in South-east Asia after the Second World War, she describes her visits to China, her life in Malaya and her love affair in Hong Kong with Ian Morrison which inspired the writing of her world-wide bestseller A Many-Splendoured Thing.

Among Weidenfeld's forthcoming titles is the Castle Diaries 1974–76. Publication was in fact announced for January in the Autumn Export Number, but because of the controversial nature of Barbara Castle's detailed verbatim records it has been postponed till after the next general election. Weidenfeld are tentatively scheduling the book for May at £12·50.

Kurt Waldheim, as Secretary-General of the United Nations, holds the position often described as the "world's number one civil servant". A Unique Role (May, £12·50) describes his involvement with such issues as international terrorism, Rhodesia, the Lebanon, Israel and Egypt, and the Horn of Africa. A biography of Pope John Paul II will also appear in May (£6·95). Written by his fellow countryman George Blazynski, a diplomat and political commentator who has worked for the BBC since 1950, it pays particular attention to the Pope's crucial role in the relationship between Catholic Church and Communist World.

May also sees the publication of the former Israeli Prime Minister General Ytzhak Rabin's Memoirs (£8·50), delayed from January, while readers of Elizabeth Longford's books will be delighted that June will finally see the publication of Pilgrimage of Passion: The Life of Wilfred Scawen Blunt (£7·50). Another title due then is The Astors (£8) by Virginia Cowles. As in her previous book The Rothschilds, Miss Cowles has produced a lively biography of one of the most distinguished families of recent history.

Sir Arthur Bryant's Macaulay (£5·50) and John Braine's J. B. Priestley (£6·95) are now to be published in February, and Richard Buckle's Diaghilev (£9·50) is now scheduled for March.

ALEC McCOWAN
His autobiography "Young Gemini" is published by Elm Tree Books

Arianna Stassinopoulos' already considerable reputation should be enhanced by the publication of her Callas: Performance and Reality (May, £7·50). She has looked at the achievements of her Greek compatriot and sees her as essentially a performer in her private as well as her professional life. George Marek, author of the famous biography of Beethoven, has written in collaboration with Maria Gordon-Smith a life of Chopin to be published in February at £8·50.

Another patriot, of our own age, is the subject of Max Hastings' Yoni, Hero of Entebbe (£5·95), previously announced for June 1978 and now due in March. Herbert Lottmann's important life of Camus is published in May at £8·50, and Fritz Raddatz's Karl Marx, A Political Biography (March, £10) is a new look at Marx and Marxism by a leading authority and Professor of German Literature.

Weidenfeld are also publishing Barnardo (March, £7·95) by Gillian Wagner who is chairman of the Executive Finance Committee of Dr. Barnardo's Childrens' Homes, and Leopold II of the Belgians: King of Colonialism (May, £7·95) by Barbara Emerson. An unusual and "wholly enchanting" book, Here There and (Nearly) Everywhere is published in March at £7·50; now in his mid-eighties Bruce Tytler looks back on a career which saw ex-patriate life in China, Japan, India and Manchuria, and travels all over the continents which have left him with a wealth of memories and anecdotes. Finally in July comes Christine Sutherland's Marie Walewska (£7·95).

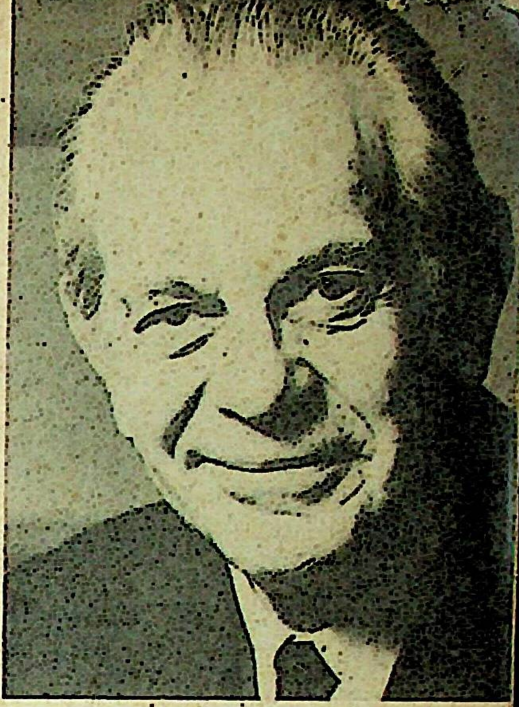
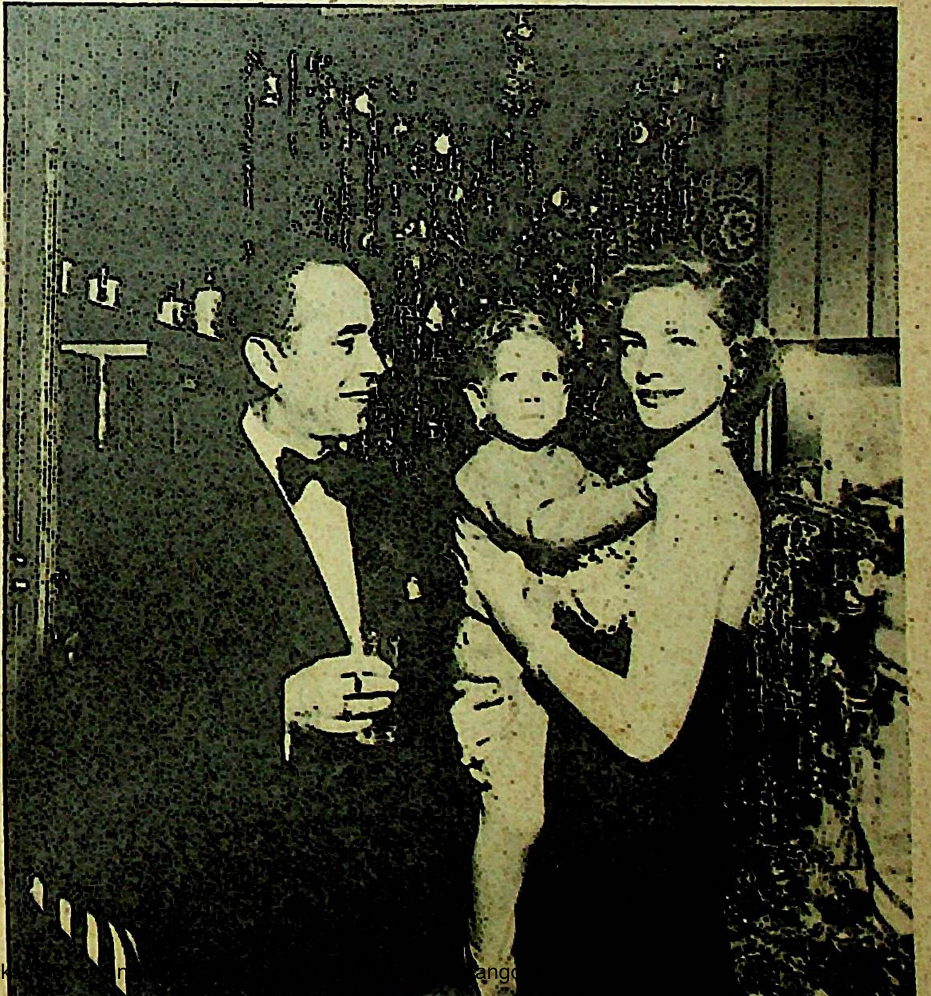
Another important biography for Cassell is Enoch Powell: A Political Study 1956–1976 by Roy Lewis, a thorough analysis of both the man's actions and his philosophy during these controversial years (March, £5·50). Two works on musicians are the autobiography of Jack Brymer, the great clarinettist, called From Where I Sit (April, £5·95), and a biography of David Oistrakh, the violinist, by Victor Jusefowitsch and Igor Oistrakh (April, £7·95). In March comes Charles II: Portrait of an Age (£7·95), in which Tony Palmer takes a new look at the more serious and lasting aspects of a reign which is regarded by some as being frivolous and superficial.



Actor Raymond Massey, whose second volume of memoirs, "My Working Years" will be published by Robson Books in May

Left, Gladys Cooper, the subject of a biography by her grandson Sheridan Morley to be published by Heinemann



Christmas with the Bogarts, from "Lauren Bacall By Myself" which Cape publish this month

One of the major titles from Macmillan London will be Ian Carmichael's autobiography Will the Real Ian Carmichael . . . (£5·95).

Also coming in Spring is David Garnett's Portraits (£7·95), in which he writes about the many literary friends he has known ranging in character from D. H. Lawrence to T. E. Lawrence and in time from Joseph Conrad to Carson McCullers and H. E. Bates.

March sees "one of the most heart-warming autobiographical treats for many years", The Bandsman's Daughter (£5·95) by Irene Thomas. Best known as the star of BBC Radio 4's Round Britain Quiz and of BBC television's 607080 Show, she has also been a woman fire officer, a chorus member in the Covent Garden opera and a Black and White Minstrel. April sees the publication of Lempriere's Ladies (£5·95) by Brian Priestley, a remarkable story of a professional balloonist and the girls who went parachuting for him in the days of Queen Victoria. The story of the Wallace Collection, which is housed in London and is among the world's best-loved smaller museums, is told by Donald Mallett in The Greatest Collector: Lord Hertford and the Found-

MARGARET POWELL returns to the scenes of her life below stairs in "Servants' Hall" in which she tells the true story of Rose, under-parlourmaid to the Wardham family, who took the shocking step of eloping with young Mr. Gerald. From Michael Joseph in May at £5·25

The Hyde Park Hotel at the turn of the century. Anthony Masters, well-known for his novels and biographies, tells the story of Mary Shiffer who joined the hotel in 1916 as a maid and remained there until her death nearly 60 years later. Now due from Sidgwick in May.

ing of the Wallace Collection (May, £5·95). Robert Wood's autobiography A World in Your Ear (May, £5·95) recalls his life with the BBC from its very earliest days when he started as one of radio's back-room pioneers and eventually personally controlled broadcasts ranging from Churchill's wartime speeches to the Crystal Palace fire. George Martin, the man who recorded and produced the Beatles, has written All You Need is Ears (June, £5·95).

Macmillan London will publish in July The Diaries of Sir Robert Bruce Lockhart: Volume II 1939–1965 (£8·95), edited by Kenneth Young. This second volume throws much light on the Second World War during most of which Bruce Lockhart was the head of the Political Warfare Executive. July also sees a biography of Emma Lavinia Gifford, The First Mrs Hardy: A Biography (£6·95) by Denys Kay-Robinson. The first wife of Thomas Hardy inspired one of the finest sequences of love poetry in the English language, and this biography explains their extraordinary relationship and also assesses her influence on his work.

Collins' list starts with Arthur Bryant: Portrait of a Historian (February, £6·50), Pamela Street's tribute to one of the most influential historians of our time. Also in February comes Edward VII: Prince and King (£10), previously scheduled for October, by Giles St. Aubyn. March sees Vivien Allen's Lady Trader (£6·50), the story of a redoubtable lady who spent her fortune on the needy sick in Victorian London and then set up with cart and oxen trading throughout the Transvaal before and during the Boer Wars. In Animal Crackers: The Wanderings of a Vet in Europe and Africa (April, £4·95), Richard Kirk describes his childhood in Scotland, his brief spell as an army vet and his present life, full of incident and variety in Southern Africa. J. P. R.: An Autobiography (April, £5·50) is the story of J. P. R. Williams, not only the greatest rugby full-back in the world but a man with many talents and achievements including being a fully qualified doctor and a former Wimbledon Junior Tennis Champion. Stanley Ayling's A Portrait of John Wesley (May, £6·50) is a scholarly but entertaining study of the great preacher who has given his name to one of Christianity's most important religious movements. A Private View of L. S. Lowry (June, £7) is a major biography by Shelley Rode.

In June 1978 28-year-old Naomi James became the first woman to sail single-handed round the world, and in the fastest time ever. Hutchinson and Stanley Paul will publish the story of her historic journey, At One With The Sea, in March at £5·95, illustrated with 32 pages of photographs in colour and black-and-white.

American Caesar (March, £9·95), William Manchester's biography of Douglas MacArthur, is, Hutchinson say, his finest book to date. Manchester examines the myths that surround America's most controversial commander and presents his own startling conclusions. Dick Wilson, author of The Long March, has drawn extensively on the memoirs of wives, lifelong friends and colleagues for his wide-ranging study Mao: The People's Emperor (April, £7·95).

The third volume of Dennis Wheatley's memoirs, Drink and Ink: 'The Time Has Come . . .' (April, £6·95) covers the greater part of his long career, from 1919 to 1977. Angus MacVicar is the author of seventy books—one for each year of his life. In Silver in My Sporran (February, £4·95), he looks back on a half-century of literary life and offers some original thoughts on the business of writers and writing. A Border Bairn (May, £4·95) is the third of Lavinia Derwent's books about her childhood on a remote farm in the Cheviot hills. In Heronsmill (March, £5·95), the colourful story of Eben Harter and his family, Roscoe Howells brings to life the characters and folklore of a Pembrokeshire farming community between the First World War and the 1950s.

Sir Thomas Beecham's autobiography, A Mingled Chime (April, £5·95), first published in 1944, covers the vital early period of his life until 1923. It is being reissued to coincide with the centenary of his birth in April. Stravinsky in Pictures and Documents (March, £15) is a unique portrait of Stravinsky in photographs and documents drawn from every period of his life by his wife, Vera Stravinsky, and longtime protégé, Robert Craft.

Heinemann announce for April Peter Drucker's autobiography, Adventures

Left, a group including J. M. Barrie and Queen Mary from "J. M. Barrie and the Lost Boys" by Andrew Birkin, now due from Constable in March of a Bystander (£6·50). Through his books, lectures, seminars and consultancies, Drucker has established himself as the management guru and many thousands who have followed his guidance should want to know more of the man who came from Vienna in 1919 through Germany and Europe and London to America.

Sheridan Morley's biography of his grandmother Gladys Cooper will be published in April at £6·50. John McCallum, the internationally known Australian actor has written about himself and his wife Googie Withers in Google and Other Adventures (May, £6·50). Martin Gilbert's Winston S. Churchill Companion Vol. V Part One covers the full documentation of the years 1922–29: The Exchequer Years (February, £20).

Heinemann would also like to make an early announcement of a big Autumn book, as yet untitled, which is Jo Grimond's autobiography.

Two of Gollancz's new biographies concern figures from the world of music. In Slobodskaya (May, £6·50) Maurice Leonard charts the astonishing life of the Russian singer who was as much at home in English music halls as on the concert platform, and whose recording success came when she was in her 70s; and in The Pursuit of Perfection: A Life of Maggie Teyte (February, £8·95) Garry O'Connor describes the long and hectic life of one of the great singers of this century, who pioneered BBC light opera, was loved by Thomas Beecham and decorated by De Gaulle.

Naomi Mitchison is a writer whose life has been a constant rebellion against convention; in You May Well Ask: A Memoir 1919–1939 (May, £5·50), she looks back on the '20s and '30s and on her involvement with the political and literary movements of the time. Jenifer Wayne in The Purple Dress (February, £4·95) has written a nostalgic recollection of growing up in the '30s and finding work at the BBC in the war years. Nancy Cardozo's Maud Gonne: Lucky Eyes and a High Heart (February, £8·50) tells the story of the beautiful and tempestuous revolutionary who was loved by Yeats and whose name became a symbol of the emer-

More than 10 years' research by Cedric Watts and Laurence Davies has resulted in "Cunninghame Graham: A Critical Biography" (July, £15), published by Cambridge. R. B. Cunninghame Graham (1852–1936), aristocrat, adventurer, politician, historian and essayist, was one of the most colourful characters of his day gent spirit of Ireland. Margaret Storm Jameson's Speaking of Stendhal (February, £6·50) is a stylish study of the great man as writer, lover and bon viveur.

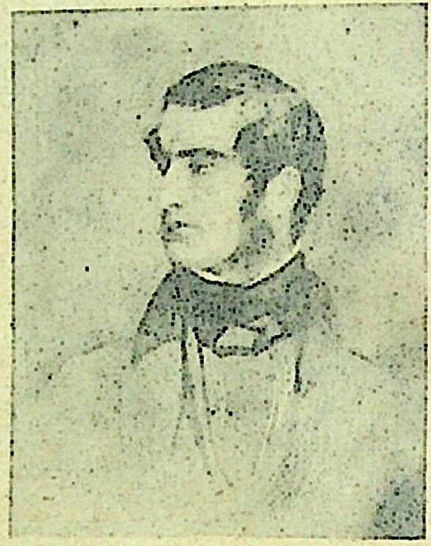
Leading Allen Lane's list is The Actor's Life, Journals 1956–1976, by Charlton Heston (April, £6·95). These diaries kept by Heston over the period when he became a superstar form an unparallelled commentary on 20 years of movie-making besides providing insight into both the professional and home life of one of the world's leading actors. It is the childhood and adolescence of Penelope Mortimer which form her book About Time, An Aspect of Autobiography (April, £4·95); her child's-eye view of her relations and surroundings is written, say Allen Lane, with the humour and perception of an accomplished writer. Brendan Bracken is remembered by history as Winston Churchill's closest friend, but Charles Lysaght's biography Brendan Bracken (March, £7·50) proves that he has far more of a claim to a place in history on his own merits than is commonly supposed; had he not been dogged by ill-health he might have risen to the top of post-war British politics. Another man who was never recognised as the genius he was in his own time was Borromini. Anthony Blunt's biography of this great architect shows him to have certainly equalled the talent of his rival Bernini and perhaps surpassed him in flair and imagination. It contains over 150 illustrations and is due this month at £8·95.

Sophia Loren will be coming to Britain to promote her new book published by Michael Joseph, Sophia: Living and Loving (£6·50) as told to A. E. Hotchner, author of the bestselling Papa Hemingway and Doris Day: Her Own Story.

The name Rachman has become synonymous with rent racketeering; in Rachman (May, £6·95) Shirley Green explores the background to his career and raises many uncomfortable points: she suggests for instance that Rachman was, to a great extent, the pawn of far more powerful and sinister figures who are still active today in the property world.

Diana Cooper's short stories appear regularly in Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping and Woman. She now recounts her hilarious time as the owner of dogs' boarding kennels in Animal Hotel (April, £4·95). Spike Mullins is a successful comedy script-writer who has written for Ronnie Corbett, Bruce Forsyth, Mike Yarwood, David Frost and Max Bygraves. Me, to Name But a Few (£5·50) is his autobiography, told in his inimitable style say Michael Joseph who publish it in April with M. & J. Hobbs.



Bell & Hyman say that life in Victorian England is engagingly evoked by a young man whose friends included J. S. Mill, Thomas Carlyle, and W. E. Forster, later to become the famous Liberal statesman. "Barclay Fox's Journal" (May, £8·95) contains a wealth of detail about life and interests from 1832 to 1844 and is a human document to rival the diaries of Kilvert and Parson Woodforde Hodder say that the autobiography of the distinguished conductor Antal Dorati is written with a rare sense of immediacy and informality and that Notes on Seven Decades (July, £8·50) should enthral music lovers of many tastes.

Fanny Trollope, the novelist's mother, from "The Life, Manners and Travels of Fanny Trollope" by Johanna Johnston (Constable)

As an aviator, sailor, film-maker and bestselling author, Ernest Gann's accomplishments and exciting life, "which matches anything in his novels", make his autobiography A Hostage to Fortune (April, £6·95) "compelling" reading.

Anthony Smith first visited Persia as an undergraduate 25 years ago; recently he made a return trip and A Persian Quarter Century (March, £6·50) is the record of his impressions and experiences then and now.

The new edition of Ronald W. Clark's acclaimed biography, Einstein—The Life and Times (March, £6·95), which is introduced by Sir Bernard Lovell, celebrates the centenary of the physicist's birth.

Oxford will publish in May a new biography of Dickens (£8·95) by Norman and Jeanne MacKenzie, the first to take account of the many newly-edited letters and the considerable research undertaken by Dickens scholars during the past quarter-century.

In the very best tradition of English memoirs, Magdalen Goffin tells the entertaining story of her grandmother's extraordinary life: Maria Pasqua (March, £4·95), the daughter of Italian peasants, was a highly successful Parisian model before marrying a sober English landowner.

Howard Florey came to Oxford from Australia in 1922, and founded one of the best schools of experimental pathology in the world. The Clarendon Press will publish Gwyn MacFarlane's biography of Howard Florey: The Making of a Great Scientist in July (£6·95). Max Eastman was a key intellectual figure on the American cultural scene for over half a century, and in April Oxford will publish William L. O'Neill's biography of Eastman called The Last Romantic (£9·75).

The extremely attractive 1945 illustrated edition of Lark Rise to Candleford by Flora Thompson,

The only authentic likeness of Henry Fielding, by Hogarth, to be used on the jacket of "Henry Fielding: A Biography" by Pat Rogers which Elek publish in June which has been out of print since 1954, will be available again in May with a new four-colour jacket (£4·95).

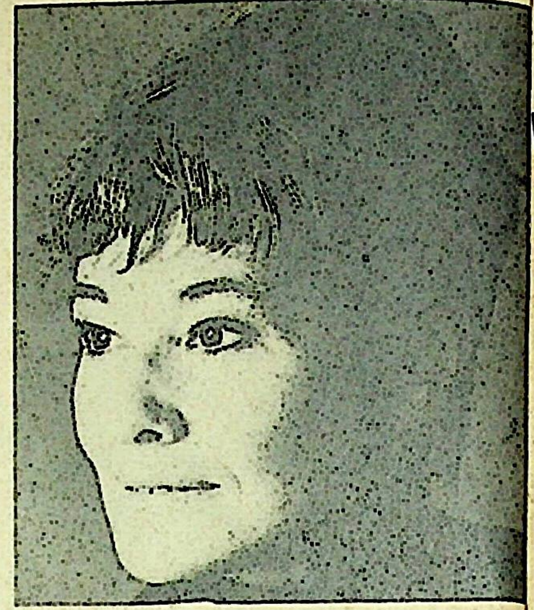
From Faber this spring comes Beckford of Fonthill (£13·50) by Brian Fothergill, a full-scale biography of the enigmatic William Beckford, author of Vathek, builder of the greatest of all architectural follies, Fonthill Abbey, and also collector, traveller, diarist, and eccentric.

In Christopher Isherwood: A Critical Biography (£9·50) Brian Finney explores the ambiguous relationship between fact and fiction in Isherwood's novels, plays and works of biography and autobiography. Prof. Federick R. Karl's "magisterial" biography of Joseph Conrad: The Three Lives (£12·50) establishes how and why this son of Polish nationalist revolutionaries turned English seaman became one of the leading novelists in our language.

On a different note, The McJazz Manuscripts: A Collection of the Writings of Sandy Brown (£7·50), compiled and introduced by David Binns, is a portrait of an outstanding musician and extraordinary man.

Faber, with Farrar, Straus & Giroux, will publish James Atlas' critical biography Delmore Schwarz: The Life of an American Poet (£8·25). Schwarz, a vivid figure in the literary world of New York in the 1930s and '40s, died miserably in 1966. He is the central character in Saul Bellow's novel Humboldt's Gift. The growth of interest in his work has been stimulated by the recent Secker & Warburg reissue of his famous first book In Dreams Begin Responsibilities, and Faber are confident that James Atlas' biography will be widely noticed.



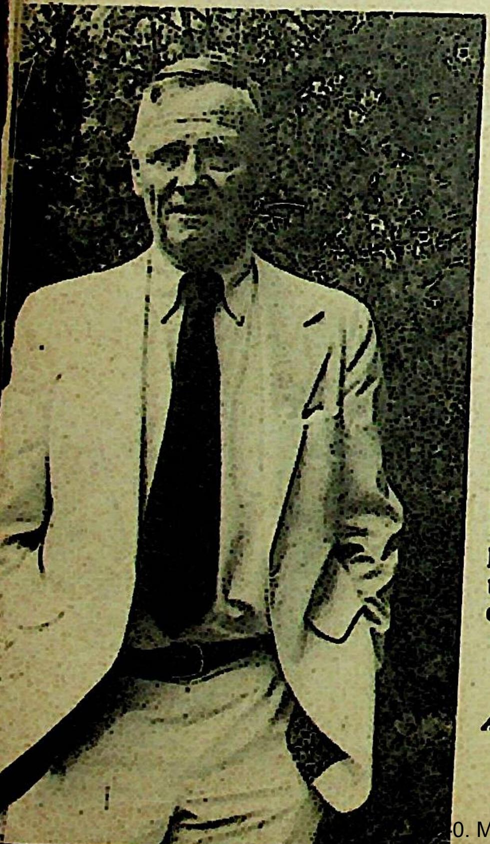
PENELOPE MORTIMER
whose autobiography "About Time" is published by Allen Lane in April

Previously announced by Constable for November, Orwell, the Transformation (£6·95, illustrated) by Peter Stansky and William Abrahams will now be published in April. Two other postponements are J. M. Barrie and the Lost Boys (March, £6·95, fully illustrated) by Andrew Birkin, recently dramatised on BBC television, and Milner (February, £10, illustrated) by Terence H. O'Brien.

The Life, Manners and Travels of Fanny Trollope (March, £7·50, illustrated) by Johanna Johnston is, say Constable, the first biography of the mother of the novelist Anthony Trollope—an extraordinary, adventurous woman, author of over forty novels and travel books.

Larry Pointer's In Search of Butch Cassidy (March, £5·95, illustrated) reveals that Butch Cassidy did not die in the shoot-out in Bolivia in 1908 but lived as a respectable businessman under the name of William T. Phillips until 1937 when he died of cancer. Based on very extensive research, this book traces his extraordinary life.

In July Eyre Methuen will publish The Path Through the Trees (£6·50) by Christopher Milne. In The Enchanted Places he described the factual truth behind the fictional Christopher Robin. He has now written "not exactly a sequel" but rather a complement, "what you might call the non-Pooh part of my life", describing amongst other things his life in Dartmouth and the creation and development of the Harbour Bookshop. In June comes Musician at Large (£5·95) in which Steve Race, best known for the BBC radio and television programmes he helped to mould, Whirligig, Opportunity Knocks, Many a Slip and My Music, looks back over a lifetime largely, though by no means exclusively, devoted to music.



CHRISTOPHER ISHERWOOD
A critical biography by Brian Finney is published by Faber

Chatto & Windus announce My Moby Dick (February, £3) by William Humphrey, a witty account of the season-long pursuit of one massive trout, by the distinguished author of that angling classic, The Spawning Run. Chaim Raphael gives a lively portrayal of what it means to be a Jew in his collection of essays A Coat of Many Colours (March, £4·95). A Nurse's War (May, £4·95) is Brenda McBryde's moving account of her wartime career, nursing civilians through the Blitz, serving in Field Dressing Stations and Field Hospitals from Normandy to the Rhineland, and finally nursing the survivors of the concentration camps in Germany.

Hamish Hamilton head their list with Max Perkins, Editor of Genius (February, £9·95) by A. Scott Berg, a biography of this great editor who discovered and nurtured the talents of authors such as Fitzgerald and Hemingway. Into The Cannon's Mouth (March, £5·95) by P. J. Campbell is a sequel to The Ebb and Flow of Battle describing his experiences as a young man in the trenches at Passchendaele in 1917. In You'll Need a Guardian Angel (March, £5·95) Alec Thackeray tells the harrowing tale of a young Pole captured in the Russian/German invasion of Poland in 1939 who, even through the most terrible experiences, never gave up hope of escape.

The Time of Love (March, £5·50) by Marcel Pagnol is the third volume of childhood reminiscences from the author of The Time of Secrets and The Days Were Too Short. Jack's Book (April, £6·50) by Barry Gifford and Lawrence Lee is the biography of Jack Kerouac, "King of the Beats", through the words of his friends. The

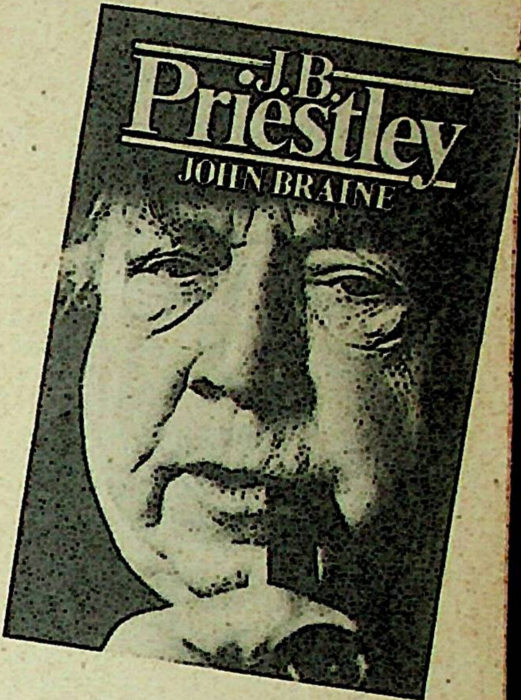
Diaries 1920-1922
Eyre Methuen



Jay Martin's biography of Henry Miller comes from Sheldon Press this month
Two titles delayed from last season: Brecht's "Diaries" are now due from Eyre Methuen in March at £6·95, while John Braine's study of J. B. Priestley, from Weidenfeld, is due this month

A hitherto unpublished photograph of Dylan Thomas, from "Welsh Dylan: His Life, Writing and His Wales", a biography by John Ackerman coming from John Jones, Cardiff, on St David's Day on 1st March at £3·95

Londonderrys (May, £8·50) by H. Montgomery Hyde is a portrait of one of the most influential families in Anglo-Irish society, seen over the course of two centuries. In Napoleon's Little Pest (May, £8·95) Peter Gunn has portrayed the Duchess of Abrantes who rose from the bourgeoisie to Imperial circles and who was the mistress of Napoleon, Metternich and the young Balzac.

Caroline (June, £7·95) is a biography by Thea Holme of Caroline of Brunswick, wife of the future George IV, a scandalous and enigmatic woman. Hamish Hamilton say that Sweet Robin (June, £7·95) is the first biography to appear about Robert Dudley, Queen Elizabeth I's favourite, for thirty years; Derek Wilson is the author of The Tower and The Bear's Whelp, a historian who specialises in the Tudor period. In Genesis and Exodus (July, £7·95) David Williams has written a study of an extraordinary Victorian family, the Bensons. Finally, Made of Gold (July, £6·95) by Diana Orton is a biography of Angela Burdett Coutts, the great Victorian philanthropist who was the first woman to be created a Baroness on her own merits.

From Secker & Warburg in April comes George Malcolm Thomson's The First Churchill: The Life of John, 1st Duke of Marlborough (£7·50). By the author of Sir Francis

Drake, this full-length critical biography of Britain's most brilliant soldier explores the complexities of his personality and his military genius and, above all, describes the enormous part played by his wife, Sarah, in his greatness and eventual downfall.

Previously announced, John Piper by Anthony West (March; £9·95 to 30th June, £12·50 thereafter) brings together the many strands of this great artist's life and work and includes reproductions of his art and photographs.

New in Thames & Hudson's "Pictorial Biographies" series is Janet Adam Smith's John Buchan and his World (May, £4·95) which includes previously unpublished photographs and captures the flavour not only of Buchan's energetic literary and political life but also of the "happy moorland peace" of his native Scottish hills. Previously announced, John Pudney's John Wesley and his World (February, £4·50) provides a richly illustrated account of the founder of Methodism.

Also delayed from 1978, Ragnhild Hatton's George I, Elector and King (February, £8·50) draws on much unpublished material to clear away the myths and legends which have surrounded the life of the first Hanoverian ruler of Great Britain.

In the Wind's Eye is the title of Volume 9 of Byron's Letters and Journals 1821–1822 edited by Leslie A. Marchand. It records the time Byron spent in Pisa where he became closely associated with Shelley and his circle. It is published by John Murray in June at £7·50. Pierre-Joseph Proudhon (April, £11) by Edward Hyams describes the life, mind and works of the 19th-century (virtuous) anarchist thinker.

From the Bodley Head in May comes a new biography of Kim Philby, K.G.B. Officer by Tim Milne (£5·95). The author first met Philby at Westminster School in 1925 and last saw him in November 1961, 14 months before Philby defected to the U.S.S.R. In the intervening years the two men travelled and worked together, Milne succeeding Philby in Section V of S.I.S.

Perverse and Foolish is the title of Lucy Boston's early autobiography (April, £4·50) in which the famous children's author looks back from her 85th year on her childhood and youth. Helen Forrester will be remembered by many for her extraordinary account of a family's fight against poverty in Twopence to Cross the Mersey, first published by Cape in 1974. It is now reissued by the Bodley Head in May at £4·95 to coincide with the publication of a sequel, Minerva's Stepchild (also £4·95), which continues the account of her family's poverty and privations in the slums of Liverpool and their untiring struggle for survival.

Leading Peter Owen's list is a new biography of Isadora Duncan by Nesta MacDonald, author of the highly-praised Diaghilev Observed. Isadora Duncan (July, £8·95) contains much new information on her life and work and is illustrated with a wide variety of photographs, many previously unpublished.

In Growing Up in London Village (February, £6·25) the distinguished social scientist Phyllis Willmot recalls her childhood during the Depression. Another very different memoir of childhood comes in March: Childhood (£6·50) is a classic account of life in North-east Brazil by Graciliano Ramos. In April Owen publish Sylvia Plath: The Woman and the Work (£7·50, edited by Edward Butscher), a collection of reminiscences by friends and essays on Plath's work by leading critics. Anne Tibble's Alone (June, £5·95) is the sequel to her widely praised One Woman's Story. Finally in July, Owen publish Recollections of the Powys Brothers (£6·95, edited by Belinda Humfrey), in which distinguished contemporaries remember John Cowper, T. F. and Llewellyn Powys, that brilliant trio of brothers whose work has recently become a cult; and The Assistant Physician (£7·50, previously announced for January) by Michael Rose, a study of the 19th-century doctor and reformer, Thomas Hodgkin.

From Routledge & Kegan Paul comes a chilling account of life in Auschwitz concentration camp, Sonderkommanod (April, £6·95), written by one of the workers in the Gas Chambers, Filip Muller.

Havelock Ellis: Philosopher of Sex (February, £9·95) by Vincent Brome is a life of that most remarkable of Victorians who played a considerable part in changing entrenched attitudes towards sex. Elizabeth Gaskell (March, £7·95) is the subject of a biography by Angus Easson which looks at both her life and her work, including Cranford and North and South, and Coleridge (April, £6·95) is a detailed biography by Katharine Cooke which focuses on each facet of his work. A new biography of Virginia Woolf (£6, paper £2·50) by Michael Rosenthal concentrates on her remarkable literary achievements. The Confessions of Aleister Crowley, edited by John Symonds and Kenneth Grant (£15), is the autobiography of the self-styled Beast 666, one of the most notorious personalities of modern times. By the time of his death in 1947, his career and writings on magic, occultism, psychology and sex had become legendary. Finally, previously announced last year and now to be published in May is a biography of J. B. Watson by David Cohen (£8·50).

Robert Gittings, Thomas Hardy's biographer, has with his wife Jo Manton, also a biographer, now traced the fascinating life story of Hardy's second wife, Florence Dugdale. The Second Mrs. Hardy (£6·50) comes from Heinemann Educational in May.

Einstein: A Centenary Volume (March, £9·50), edited by A. P. French, has contributions from internationally famous contemporary scientists. Also in March, Beardmore: The History of an Industrial Giant (£10·50) by Michael Moss and John Hume traces the rise and fall of the firm of Sir William Beardmore, from the 1890s to the 1930s, and includes many original photographs.

Elek say they have the first new biography of Fielding for over 25 years coming in June. Henry Fielding: A Biography (£8·95) by Prof. Pat Rogers (University of Bristol) presents the life and work—including the plays—of one of the best-loved of English novelists in his political, professional and literary milieu, doing full justice to his many-sided personality and career. Stanley Spencer: Correspondence & Reminiscences (£8·50) edited by John Rothenstein will now be published in April (previously announced for November).

The recent death of Lili Brik at the age of 83 led to reminiscences of her partnership with the Futurist poet, Vladimir Mayakovksy. I Love by Ann and Samuel Charters, which Deutsch publish in June at £5·50, is the story of their tempestuous but lasting affair and of an unconventional relationship which tested the limits of personal and creative freedom.

Ronald Lockley is perhaps best known for The Private Life of the Rabbit, which became the source-book for Watership Down. Running through Myself When Young: The Making of a Naturalist (May, £5·95), a vivid memoir of his boyhood in South Wales, are the clear signs of what he was later to become—a lone naturalist pioneering many original wildlife studies.

Hans Kraus is generally acknowledged to be one of the world's foremost rare book dealers, as well as a noted bibliophile and collector. A Rare Book Saga (March, £7·95) is an anecdotal and informative memoir for everyone who loves, buys, sells or studies old and rare books.

June sees the publication by Dent of The Golden Visit by Madeleine (Mrs. Robert) Henrey (£4·95), the latest volume in her life-story. Lewis Carroll: A Biography by Anne Clark (£6·95), previously announced for January, will now be published in June.

Heading the Sidgwick & Jackson list is Inside Marbled Halls (now due in March, £7·95) by Anthony Masters.

Nancy Cunard (£7·95) by Anne Chisholm will be published in May, a biography of one of this century's most extraordinary personalities, and also Foxy Ferdinand 1861–1948 (£7·95) by Stephen Constant. Ruler of one of the most turbulent and impoverished European states he managed in 31 years to make Bulgaria a force to be reckoned with politically, economically and militarily. Milestones: And People on the Way (£8·95), the autobiography of the Rt Hon. Sir John Smyth, will be published in April, and Contemporaries (£7·95) by Robert Ducci in June.

The biggest promotion from Paddington Press this spring will be for Beyond Reason by Margaret Trudeau (April, £5·50). One of the most publicised and criticised women of the '70s now speaks out about her experiences of life at the very top.

Also from Paddington comes The Kid: The Inside Story of Steve Cauthen's Spectacular Ride to Stardom by Peter Axthelm, with an introduction by Lester Piggott (March, £4·95). Steve Cauthen is the 18-year-old American jockey who in 1977, his first year of top competitive riding, rode 487 winners, won six million dollars and was elected Sportsman of the Year in the U.S.

Curt Jurgen's And None the Wiser (June, £6·95) from Macdonald & Jane's is a revealing autobiography by the internationally famous playboy, stage and film actor—star of over 50 films. Also in June Kate Greenaway by Rodney Engen (£9·50) is a biography of this shy Victorian woman who was courted by society and royalty and whose art still delights millions both old and young.

Robson Books head their list with two books about famous actors: Larger than Life is an affectionate but not uncritical biography of Robert Morley by his daughter-in-law Margaret Morley, while My Working Years by Raymond Massey is the sequel to his highly-praised first volume, When I Was Young. Both are published in May at £5·95 and are illustrated.

Two further books about well-known figures in the entertainment world are Scott Joplin: The Man Who Made Ragtime, a "lively and well-researched" biography by James Haskins (February, £5·25, illustrated), and an inside view of Groucho Marx, Hello, I Must be Going—Groucho and his Friends (February, £6·95, illustrated) by a close friend for many years, Charlotte Chandler, who also includes recollections by Woody Allen, Jack Benny, George Burns and others.

Previously announced for October, A Doctor's War by Aidan MacCarthy (£5·75, illustrated) will now be published in March.

Robb, for many years the well-known fashion artist for the Daily Express, writes about his life amongst society's élite in Name Droppings, published by Elm Tree Books (May, £6·95). In Young Gemini (April, £4·95) Alec McCowan recounts in vivid detail his boyhood experiences, drawing a fine picture of his relationship with his father. Mary Ralph Powell, daughter of the great music-hall star, Little Tich, has collaborated with Richard Findlater to produce a biography of her father entitled Little Tich (February, £7·95). Two very different singers are saluted in two further biographies: The Crosby Years by Ken Barnes (July, £6·95) and Bob Dylan by Michael Gross (cased version, March, £5·95).

Maurice Lindsay, author of A History of Scottish Literature and compiler of A Scottish Anthology, has now edited for Robert Hale As I Remember (March, £5·25), in which ten contemporary Scottish writers recall their upbringing and its influence on their work. It includes George Mackay Brown on Orkney, Derick Thomson and Iain Crichton Smith on Stornoway, Sydney Tremayne on Ayr, Alexander Scott on Aberdeen, and Fred Urquhart on Edinburgh, and so provides an interesting cross-section of life in different parts of Scotland.

Working close to his home ground, Nicholas Rhea tells in Constable on the Hill (April, £4·25) of his first year as a policeman in a remote Yorkshire village. Errol Flynn: a Memoir (March, £4·95) is by Earl Conrad, the man who ghosted Errol Flynn's autobiography My Wicked, Wicked Ways, and recounts from first-hand knowledge the last year of that legendary figure.

Robert Payne, the biographer of Ivan the Terrible and other historical figures, has now turned his attention to Leonardo, and his highly illustrated biography is coming from Robert Hale in July at £9·95.

The Man Who Built London Transport is a fair title for Frank Pick, in whose hands London transport became, in the words of the Times, a "civilising agency". His biography by Christian Barman will be published by David & Charles in March at £6·95.

From Angus & Robertson in March comes a major new biography Peter Finch (£6·95) by his closest friend Trader Faulkner.

Heading the Aidan Ellis list in May is Henri Troyat's Catherine the Great (£7·50) which was a bestseller in France. Troyat's Russian background has enabled him to write this biography as if it were a detective story.

Rose Gamble, author of A Chelsea Child from BBC Publications in May (£5) was the fourth child in a family of seven who inhabited one first-floor room in Chelsea in the 1920s. In this autobiography, to be serialised on Woman's Hour in May, Rose Gamble describes with great affection and an incisive accuracy, a mode of life which disappeared with the Second World War.

Arthur Barker are publishing The Road I Travelled (April, £4·95) by Percy Edwards, the man whose remarkable ability to imitate animal sounds on the radio made him a household name to millions. It is essentially a book for the lover of the countryside, as Percy Edwards' gifts spring from the most intense awareness and study of the sights and sounds of nature. Arthur Barker say it is a beautifully written book.

Sheldon Press publish in February Always Merry and Bright: The Life of Henry Miller (£8·95) by Jay Martin. This is Henry Miller's life story from his boyhood in Brooklyn, his years in Paris with Anaïs Nin, Lawrence Durrell, his memorable stay in Greece with Katsimbalis and his return to America. Isaac Bashevis Singer describes it as a "thorough and loving biography of a man who dedicated his life to fight for literary freedom all over the world".

A June title from Hodder & Stoughton Educational is Cyril Burt: Psychologist (£7·95). In October 1976 academic controversy gave way to scandal as press headlines alleged that Sir Cyril Burt, one of Britain's most influential and honoured psychologists, had faked crucial research data. Was the whole of his life's work suspect? Had he simply become careless with age? Professor L. S. Hearnshaw, who started writing this official biography before Burt's integrity was put in doubt, has attempted to answer these questions. He was afforded access to Burt's private papers and full co-operation by those closest to Burt.

Thomas Yoseloff publish The Time Of My Life (£4), by Thomas Yoseloff, the life story of the man who became a New York and London publisher, growing up in America, the son of East European immigrants, at a time when the country was beginning to shape as a world power. On a more historical note is Carl W. Breihan's book The Man Who Shot Jesse James (£6·50), the story of Bob Ford who tried to become a hero by killing the legendary Jesse James.

In June Harvard University Press publish Bernard Berenson: The Making of a Connoisseur by Ernest Samuels (£12·25). Critic, arbiter of taste, and renowned authority on Renaissance painting, Bernard Berenson was the most formidable presence in the Anglo-American art world for more than 30 years.

Left, Joan Crawford, about whom Weidenfeld publish in June a "sensational" biography by Bob Thomas which exposes the ruthless side of her character (£6·95)

May sees the publication by Yale University Press of The Kindly Fruits of the Earth: An Environmental Study of an Embryo Ecologist (£13·30) by G. Evelyn Hutchinson, a memoir by a founder of population ecology, describing his childhood, boyhood and early youth in Cambridge at a time when important discoveries and debates in science were taking place.

Undeterred by the largely hostile reception given to L. I. Brezhnev's Short Biography issued last year, Pergamon follow it with two more books by the Soviet President. Selected Speeches and Writings on Foreign Affairs (£15) covers the 1970s, from Brezhnev's meetings with Presidents Nixon and Ford to the Helsinki Conference, and ends with the run-up to the new phase of SALT. The material ranges widely, and most of it has not been previously published in book form. Still less known—though often talked about—are Mr. Brezhnev's personal memoirs (as distinct from the official biography). These appear as a paperback, How It Was (£1·50).

WILLIAM HUMPHREY
whose new book "My Moby Dick" is published by Chatto this month

McGraw-Hill announce the February publication of a biography of one of Canada's greatest statesmen, Pearson: His Life and World by R. Bothwell (£6).

Europa publish in March Herbert Austin: The British Motor Car Industry to 1941 (£8) by Roy Church, the biography of a pioneer of British motor car technology. Robert Lowery: Radical and Chartist (April, £10), edited by Brian Harrison and Patricia Hollis, is a reissue of the autobiography of a 19th-century radical activist.

My Lady of the Chimney Corner, from Blackstaff Press in December (paper, £1·95), by Alexander Irvine is a new edition of this Ulster classic about late 19th century peasant life in Antrim.

Scan Books' list is led by The First Rotarian—the Life and Times of Paul Percy Harris (February, £9·50). The author James Walsh is himself a Rotarian, a distinguished librarian and author of a number of reference works. Another February title is Way for a Sailor by Captain "Trader" Horn (£5·25). He went to sea at an early age and tells of his many adventures on the high seas, but he has also spent 25 years as a lawn tennis umpire at Wimbledon.

In Banner Headlines (March, £5·25) Stafford Somerfield, ex-editor of the News of the World, reveals the inside story of the battle for control of the newspaper, finally won by Australian Rupert Murdoch.

Enid Bagnold's Letters to Frank Harris and Other Friends, coming from the Whittington Press in July in a limited edition of 350 copies (cloth £30, full leather binding £80), is based on a recently discovered volume of letters she wrote to Harris some 60 years ago.

July sees the publication by New English Library of Donald Zec's book Lee Marvin, a look at the noted star of such successful films as "The Dirty Dozen" and "The Wild Bunch" (£5·50).

From Satellite Books this month comes Witch Amongst Us (£5·50), by Lois Bourne, an account of the author's life as a practising witch and occultist.

WEIDENFELD publish Thomas Pakenham's The Boer War (June, £10), an "authoritative history" based on 10 years' research. In James VI of Scotland (May, £6·95) Caroline Bingham presents a "new and balanced portrait" of the son of the ill-fated Mary Queen of Scots who succeeded to Elizabeth's throne. Sarah Gainham brings her novelist's gifts to The Hapsburg Twilight (April, £6·95) which relates eight true stories illustrating the glitter and decadence of late 19th-century Vienna.

Due from Macmillan London in February is Voyagers to the New World (£6·95) by Nigel Davies, which looks at the contacts, real and mythical, between peoples of the ancient world. The story of the "civil" airlines which flew countless secret missions for the CIA is told in The Invisible Air Force (April, £5·95) by Christopher Robbins. The Wreck of the Almiranta (May, £5·95) by Peter Earle is an account of the partial salvage in 1687 of a treasure-laden Spanish galleon which had sunk 40 years before off Hispaniola while in The Hunger Winter (June, £6·95) Henri van der Zee traces the history of the winter of near-starvation in Holland which followed the Allied invasion in 1944, an event the author himself lived through.

Oxford publish in June Zhores A. Medvedev's Soviet Science (£5·50), a short history of science in the Soviet Union which emphasises the interaction between scientific and technological developments and the political aims of the Soviet government. Britain and the European Jewish Tragedy (July, £6·50) by Bernard Wasserstein (published for the Institute of Jewish Affairs) examines British policy towards the Jewish problem during the Second World War. Guenter Lewy's America in Vietnam (March, £9·50) provides a fully-researched history of the course of the war; The Course of Mexican History (April, £12·50) by Michael C. Meyer and William L. Sherman, for the general reader, covers the pre-Columbian period to the present day.

Jonathan Cape publish in March Theodore H. White's In Search of History (£6·50), which topped American bestseller lists for months. The author of "The Making of the President" books considers the changing face of international political power as he observed it throughout his career as a political correspondent. Christopher Sinclair-Stevenson covers the reigns of the four Hanoverian Georges in Blood Royal: The Illustrious House of Hanover (March, £6·95).

Leading Allen Lane's list is Nuremberg: A Nation on Trial by Werner Maser (June, £8), the result of more than a decade of research. In Blood of Spain; The Experience of Civil War 1936–1939 (April, £11) Ronald Fraser uses more than 300 personal interviews to give an account of the war as seen by its participants from both sides. Rule of Fear (February, £4·95) by Peter Becker relates the life of Dingane, king of the Zulu; cruel, merciless and treacherous, he was the most controversial of the South African tribal kings. The Coward of Minden by Piers Mackesy (March, £8) examines whether Lord George Sackville was justly court-martialled for his disobedience at the Battle of Minden.

In May Edward Arnold publish Anti-Semitism in British Society, 1876–1939 (£15) in which Colin Holmes studies anti-semitism as an ideology.

John Murray publish in April The Enormous File (£6·50) by Alan Delgado, who traces the history of the office worker from the Italian Renaissance to the present day.

Dorothy Hartley has written The Land of England: A Survey of the English Rural Year in Pre-industrial Times (£6·95) due from Macdonald & Jane's in May. It is based on extracts from Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry by Thomas Tusser.

In May Elm Tree Books, in association with H. Samuel, publish With This Ring by Elizabeth Laverack (£6·95), an illustrated survey of marriage customs, ceremony and celebration over the last 100 years. Bryan Forbes writes about the history of actors and acting in That Despicable Race (June, £6·95). In The Spice of Life (February, £7·95) Patrick Beaver examines popular Victorian entertainment from fairgrounds and the music hall to the beginnings of cinema.

Lutterworth publish European Weapons and Armour: From the Renaissance to the Industrial Revolution (April, £11·50) by Ewart Oakshott, a sequel to the author's The Archaeology of Weapons. The book describes the development of handgun and pike; the use of mace, axe and war-hammer; how armour attained its full Renaissance splendour; and the history of the sword and rapier from the medieval war sword to the small-swords of the late 18th century. In Words, Words, Words (April, £5·50) C. M. Matthews shows how words have evolved and changed their meanings over the centuries.

J. A. Allen publish The Role of the Horse in Man's Culture (July, £10) by Harold B. Barclay, an examination of the part played by the horse in man's domestic economy from earliest times to the present.

In March Yale University Press publish Six Lives/Six Deaths: Portraits from Modern Japan (£12·25) by Robert Jay Lifton, Shūichi Katō and Michael R. Reich, which describes "Old Birmingham", an etching of the city in about 1850, is one of many illustrations in "The Birmingham Heritage" by G. Eley and Lady J. Zuckerman (Croom Helm) how six talented Japanese writers and public figures prepared for their deaths.

From the High Plains by John Fischer (£4·95), published by Harper & Row, is an account of the hard men, high-spirited women, and a few rascals, who settled the last frontiers of the west.

Gresham Books publish The Spirit of London's River (June, £5·50) by Leonard Bates, a popular commercial and social history of the Thames in the 20th century.

Godfrey Cave publish A Sussex Garland (April, £4·95) by Tony Wales, a collection of rhymes, recollections and recipes of 70 years ago embodying Sussex folklore, customs and superstitions, illustrated with over 100 old photographs and drawings.

Dobson Books publish two titles by Mora Dickson, a kaleidoscope of people and places she encountered in an Assignment in Asia (£4·95) and the third of her missionary lives, The Powerful Bond: Hannah Kilham 1774–1832 (£6·95).

Due from Scolar Press in February Plenty and Want (£8, paper £4) by John Burnett, subtitled A History of Diet in England from 1815 to the Present Day, was previously announced for November.

Yesterday's Witness (£4·50), edited by James Cameron, the BBC book connected with the television series, will now appear in April.

Frederick Muller will now publish the previously announced At A Crossroads—Britain 1945–1978 (£5·50) by Edwin P. Hoyt in March.

ARCHAEOLOGY

NEW in Thames & Hudson's series of "Ancient Peoples and Places" edited by Professor Glyn Daniel is John Oates's Babylon (May, £8·50) which sketches the rise of Babylon from Sargon of Agade to Hammurapi. Delayed from November, Ann Sieveking's The Cave Artist (£7·50) will be published in March.

New titles from the Society of Antiquaries of London, distributed by Thames & Hudson, include A. C. Renfrew's Investigations in Orkney (May, £20) and G. J. Wainwright's Mount Pleasant, Dorset: Excavations 1970–1971 (April, £20).

"Tutankhamun: The Untold Story" by Thomas Hoving is Hamish Hamilton's lead title for the spring

Hamish Hamilton say their "most exciting title of the season" is Tutankhamun: the Untold Story (February, £7·95) by Thomas Hoving, which reveals hitherto unknown facts about the adventure and intrigue surrounding the discovery of the tomb.

Routledge & Kegan Paul are launching a new five-volume series entitled "Britain before the Conquest: An Archaeological History of the British Isles c. 1500 B.C. to A.D. 1066". First titles are Celtic Britain (April, £6·95) by Lloyd Laing, and Anglo-Saxon England (March, £6·95) by Lloyd and Jennifer Laing. The Bronze Age in Barbarian Europe by Jacques Briard (March, £6·50) uses archaeological evidence to reconstruct the way of life of Europeans in the Metal Ages.

Elek publish Industrial Archaeology in the British Isles (May, £7·95) by John Butt and Ian Donnachie, a survey that sets industrial archaeology in its historical context. The Changing Landscape of South Etruria (£9·95) by T. W. Potter, previously announced for January, is now due in February.

Academic Press publish Italy before the Romans (May), edited by David and Francesca R. Ridgway, which covers recent and current excavations and other research by leading European scholars. Mediterranean Europe: A Historical Geography of Italy, Spain and Southern France since the Neolithic (June) by Catherine Delane Smith examines social groupings, settlement, social and economic organisation, land use and environmental changes in this region. Academic Press also publish Analytical Archaeologist: Collected Papers of David Clarke (March), edited by his colleagues, a conspectus of one of the leading prehistorians of his generation before his tragic death in 1976.

Oxford publish Winchester Studies, Vol. 3 Part 2: Pre-Roman and Roman Winchester by Giles Clarke (April, £25), which deals with the Roman cemetery at Lankhills.

"Overwhelming evidence" is given for prehistoric man's scientific genius in Chatto & Windus' In Search of Ancient Astronomies (June, £6·50), a collection of essays edited by Dr. Edwin Krupp.

HMS Colossus by Roland Morris (May, £5·95) from Hutchinson is the story of Sir William Hamilton's second collection of antique Greek vases, lost on board Nelson's warship Colossus in 1798, and of the huge salvage operation mounted to save them. Morris's three-year excavation has been the subject of two recent BBC TV films, and the vases reconstructed from some of the sherds recovered from the wreck are currently a centre of controversy.

Coming from Macdonald & Jane's in June is Stonehenge and its Mysteries (limp £5·95, paper £3·95) by Michael Balfour, a pictorial history of the monument. Also coming in June is Our Prehistoric Heritage (£7·95) by Felix R. Paturi, a study of the cave paintings, carvings, symbols and tombs of Europe.

From Collins comes Man's Conquest of the Pacific (March, £12·50) tracing the history of man in the Pacific.

From Benn comes a new edition of the late Dame Kathleen Kenyon's illustrated Archaeology in the Holy Land (May, £9·25, paper £5·95), incorporating some discoveries of the last 20 years.

Subterranean Britain (June, £7·50) from Adam & Charles Black is an

An ancient astronomical observatory, the Caracol at Chichen Itza in Yucatan, from "In Search of Ancient Astronomies" edited by Dr. Krupp and published by Chatto illustrated collection of articles edited by Harriet Crawford covering prehistoric flint mining, mining of the early industrial era, ice houses and fancy grottoes.

Blandford Press publish The Prehistoric Rock Art of Galloway and the Isle of Man (June, £5·75, paper £2·75) by Ronald Morris, who explores the mystical phenomena of prehistoric rock carvings in Southern Scotland and the Isle of Man

In April New English Library publish Secrets of the Lost Races (£5·95), in which Rene Noorbergen contends that a superior technological race of man existed in ancient times: among ancient artefacts found by archaeologists are remains of model aircraft, dry-cell batteries, rough computers and X-ray equipment.

In the "Classical Studies" series Aris & Phillips publish Trademarks on Greek Vases (May, £15) by A. W. Johnston, which describes the makers' marks on the bottom of decorated Greek vases of the period c.630–60 B.C. and is a revision of Hackl's work of 1909. In the "Modern Egyptology" series comes Ancient Egyptian Furniture (April, £15) by working cabinet maker Geoffrey P. Killen, and Egyptian Stelae, Reliefs and Paintings from the Petrie Collection: Part 2 Archaic to Second Intermediate Period (May) by H. M. Stewart. John Ruffle, G. A. Gaballa and K. A. Kitchen have edited a collection of essays on Ancient Egypt in Glimpses of Ancient Egypt (May).

Studies on Scarab Seals: Vol. I Pre-Dynastic Scarab-Amulets by William Ward, previously announced for November, will now appear in February.

In May Yale University Press publish a new book by Aubrey Burl on Prehistoric Avebury (£8·95). Illustrated and aimed at the general reader, it is accompanied by a paperback edition of Burl's Stone Circles of the British Isles (£4·95). These are followed in June by Legal and Administrative Texts of the Reign of Samsu-Iluna (£14·40) by Samuel Isaac Feigen.

Previously announced, Leicester University Press' Introduction to British Prehistory (£10, paper £5) by Professor J. V. S. Megaw, D. D. A. Simpson and others is a basic introduction for first-year students and the general public.

Ebla—An Empire Rediscovered by Paolo Matthiae (£12·50), previously announced by Hodder for January, is now due in July.

MURIEL SPARK
Her new novel "Territorial Rights" is due from Macmillan London in March

THE 1978 Nobel Prize for Literature was awarded to Isaac Bashevis Singer last October. This month Jonathan Cape publish his first novel for six years, Shosha (£4·95). Returning to that singular world—not just of pre-war Poland but of timeless questions about all humanity for which Singer's work has been so distinguished—Shosha is the story of a young man who finds in a guileless, backward girl of his Warsaw childhood, a soul with whom to share his dreams.

There is also much excitement at Cape about Peter Straub's new novel, Ghost Story (April, £5·50). A full Book-of-the-Month Club Choice in America and with rights sold to Universal for a major film, Ghost Story has already—six months before publication—also fetched very large paperback advances from Pocket Books in America and from Futura in this country.

FICTION General

A new novel from Joseph Heller comes in May, Good as Gold (£5·50), in which the contortionist social climbers of Washington, and Henry Kissinger, come in for some knocks. Nadine Gordimer's Burger's Daughter (April, £5·95) portrays a young South African girl who finds her identity inexorably bound up with the heroism of her father, who died in prison for his political ideals. May also brings A Game of Secrets (£4·95) by Thomas Wiseman which blends an affecting love story with the intrigues of Washington, 1948, as Truman toys with "preventive war".

With the reissue of The Collector (£4·95) in March, all the fiction of John Fowles becomes available for the first time in a uniform edition. Shadows of the isolated Sussex house where John Fowles' collector kept entrapped his prey Miranda are to be found in a new novel by John Gill, Kiki (June, £3·95), a story of misplaced revenge, sexual jealousy and the elaborate inventions of a suffering mind. As the afterword to Raymond Hawkey's new documentary novel, Side-effect (£4·95) indicates, the methods of this unscrupulous transplant surgeon—bent on becoming a 20th-century Frankenstein—may prove to be as chillingly prophetic as the events in Hawkey's first novel Wild Card, which anticipated Watergate by two years. It comes this month.

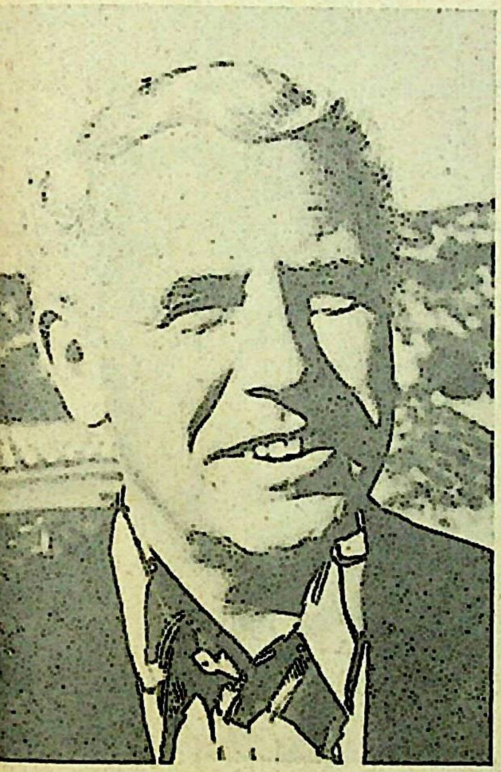
A novella and 11 short stories written over a span of three decades come from Gabriel García Márquez in Innocent Erendira and Other Stories (March, £4·50), the title story recalling, in atmosphere and characterisation, Márquez's One Hundred Years of Solitude. An unusual novel is scheduled for June by the Russian author Georgi Vladimov, former editor of Novy Mir, who has now been banned from print in his own country. Faithful Ruslan (£3·95) which is described by Richard Adams as "among the greatest animal stories ever written", falls somewhere in the tradition of anthropomorphic fiction between White Fang and Animal Farm, capturing the plight of a prison guard dog after Khruschev closed Stalin's camps and liquidated the "Gulag".



A new Arthur Hailey heads the fiction list for Michael Joseph and Souvenir Press this spring

In his new collection of stories, Sleeps Six (June, £3·95), Frederic Raphael examines love—or the human attachments that pass for love—deftly prodding that easily afflicted area which preoccupies so much of our time. In Mary Celeste (April, £4·50) John Maxwell draws on court records and written testimony to unravel one of the greatest mysteries of maritime history, which has prompted a century of fanciful conjecture including Conan Doyle's famous short story. A new edition of another of Conan Doyle's classics, The Lost World (£4·95), with an introduction by Alastair MacLean, will be coming from Cape in March.

Secker & Warburg head their list with a new novel, Music and Silence (£4·95) by Anne Redmon, whose Emily Stone won the 1974 Phyllis Bentley Award. Two women—one a doctor wrestling with the demands of a life of prayer and the other a cellist whose life has been shattered by her mentor—are brought together by a neighbour, a half-mad religious fanatic whose arrival brings with it a dimension of menace to all around. In Tom Sharpe's The Wilt Alternative (April, £4·50) Henry Wilt resumes his fantasy of struggle, this time against political bigots and reactionary bureaucrats in addition to his wife's enthusiasm for every organic alternative under the compost heap.

The Far Arena (March, £4·95), by Richard Ben Sapir, is the tale of the gladiator Eugenianus who, having been cast naked on the ice of the "German Sea" is revived 1900 years later and, while still unconscious mumbles out the story of his life. A. N. Wilson, author of The Sweets of Pimlico for which he won the John Llewelyn Rhys Prize, and Unguarded Hours, continues the adventures of Norman Shotover in Kindly Light (May, £4·50).

Catastrophe Practice by Nicholas Mosley (May, £4·90) is an experimental work by the author of Accident. It is a network of three plays with prefaces and a short novel, in which six characters, or actors, try to find ways through some catastrophe that is not just in the world outside them but in their minds. White House by Patrick Anderson (March, £4·95) is both the story of a President of the United States and his wife as they try to save their marriage amid the pressures of the office, and a panoramic study of the men and women of modern Washington. For May, Angels on the Point of a Pin (£4·95), by Edwin Mullins, explores the problems of a philanderer who loves his wife.

A Perfect Vacuum, by Stanislaw Lem (£4·50), comes this month and finds the master of pastiche turning to a new form. As Lem points out, he has not invented the notion of reviewing non-existent books—the scheme has been used before—but he can claim to have assembled the first book made up entirely from such critiques. Also this month, at £6·50 each volume, Secker & Warburg are reissuing one of the most famous novels of the 20th century: Robert Musil's The Man Without Qualities. The work will consist of three volumes and will be published simultaneously with the paperback editions from Pan/Picador; it is hoped to publish the fourth and posthumous novel in about two years' time. Another classic reissue—this time a trilogy now in one volume—is the March publication of James T. Farrell's Studs Lonigan (£8·50).

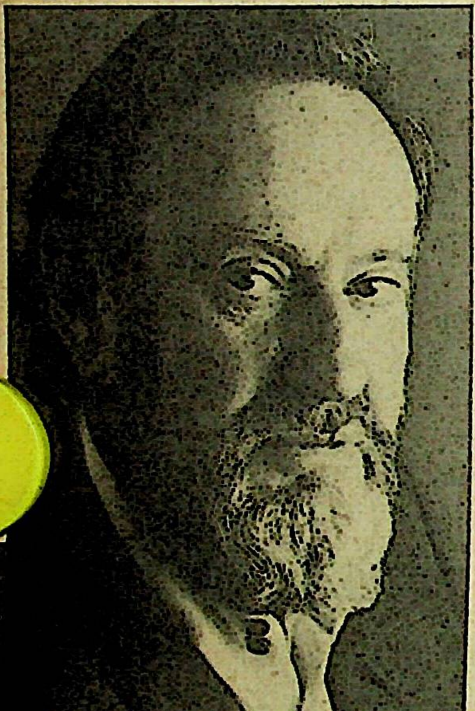
the imaginary African nation of Kush, the story is narrated by the country's ruler, Colonel Hakim Félix Ellelloû, and chronicles his fanatical aversion—cultural, ideological and personal to the United States, and his ultimate overthrow. Mervyn Jones joins the list in May with The Beautiful Words (May, £4·95) which deals with Tommy, a 17-year-old with the mind of a small child, who is taken up by various rootless people who find something steadying in his trustful presence.

Hailed by Erica Jong as "the most lucid and intelligent story of a woman revolutionary to date" Kate Schulman's Burning Questions (April, £5·50) documents many of the major cultural and historical events of the past 30 years. The author of The Desperate Hours, Joseph Hayes, turns in his latest novel, Island on Fire (May, £4·50) to 1973 when the Icelandic island of Heimaey erupted.



WOLF MANKOWITZ

Macmillan London's programme includes major new works from Howard Clewes, Brian Garfield, Wolf Mankowitz, Edith Pargeter, Frank Ross, C. P. Snow and Muriel Spark.

This month come Brian Garfield's Wild Times (£5·95) set in the American mid-west in the years between the Civil War and Prohibition and following his successful Death Wish and Recoil; The Marriage of Megotta (£4·95) by the historical writer Edith Pargeter; and The House of Alarcon (£4·95), an impressive first novel by Joseph Dispenza, a young American writer who tells the story of a Spanish-American dynasty ranging from the earliest Spanish settlers in Mexico to the creation of the nuclear research station at Los Alamos.

March sees the publication of Muriel Spark's Territorial Rights (£4·95). Set in present-day Venice her web of high comedy and base cunning is—as ever—resplendent with observation of human nature in disarray. Wolf Mankowitz, the author of A Kid for Two Farthings and Make Me an Offer, joins the Macmillan London list with the bizarre Raspberry Reich (£4·95). An expensive Swiss finishing school produces not only "young ladies" but embryo revolutionaries.

In April Macmillan London launch Howard Clewes' I The King (£4·95), which they expect to outdo his best-selling The Long Memory. Patrick Alexander made a big impact with his prizewinning first novel Death of a Thin Skinned Animal, and his second Show Me a Hero (£4·95), will be published in April.

C. P. Snow's last novel, In Their Wisdom, was published several years ago, and his large public will welcome Coat of Varnish (May, £4·95). Also due in May is The Golden Harlot (£4·95) by Jeanne Wilson, a novel of Hogarthian London and the turbulence of the West Indies in the 18th century.

JAMES BALDWIN
Michael Joseph publish in May "Just Above My Head"

The Bodley Head will publish in April a novel of 848 pages that has been described as "the bitterest satirical attack on the Soviet system to appear in Russian": The Yawning Heights by Alexander Zinoviev (£9·95) and translated by Gordon Clough was previously announced for January.

Lying Low is the title of a new novel by Diane Johnson (April, £4·95) who will be remembered for her last novel The Shadow Knows. Her new book is a comedy about four oddly juxtaposed people, living together in a Victorian house in a small Californian town in the 1970s.

The Diary of Vikenty Angarov by Victor Muravin (£5·50), a novel based on the facts of Angarov's arrest, exile and years in a Stalinist labour camp—and his will to survive—will be published by Dent in April.

A new Arthur Hailey heads the Michael Joseph list. Overload (March, £5·95) is published with Souvenir Press. It is, as usual, a deeply researched novel, this time about the power industry and the very real possibility of an energy crisis and complete electricity breakdown. Its publishers say that it is his most ambitious novel yet. In April comes Father in a Fix (£4·95), Neil Boyd's third volume of the St. Jude's saga of television's now famous Father Duddleswell. This month sees the publication of a new collection of Roald Dahl's most famous stories, Tales of the Unexpected (£4·95), which coincides with a 14-part Anglia Television series of the same name.

It is five years since the publication of James Baldwin's last book, If Beale Street Could Talk. In May Michael Joseph publish what they believe is one of his most important and revealing works, Just Above My Head (£5·25). The treachery of memory and the impediments it creates is the springboard for this very personal novel, in which Baldwin returns to the New York negro revivalist scene of Go Tell It On the Mountain.

John Masters, author of Bhowani Junction, Nightrunners of Bengal and many more bestsellers, returns to his most comfortable medium in Now God Be Thanked (£5·50), a panoramic novel of English life just before and during the First World War. It has been three years in the writing and Michael Joseph believe it may come to be regarded not only as his finest achievement, but also as one of the greatest novels ever written about the First World War. Richard Llewellyn's new book, A Night of Bright Stars (April, £5·50) has as its theme the excitement of the discovery of powered flight in the early 1900s.

Goodbye Un-America by James Aldridge (March, £4·95), is about the subtle changing relationship between two talented writers and draws on the scandals of the McCarthy witch-hunt for its drama and pathos. Barry Hines, author of Kes, has lived much of his life in a Yorkshire mining town and his success as a novelist has not removed him from the world of miners. The Price of Coal (March, £4·50) is almost a documentary novel and has been developed from two television films written by Barry Hines, which have been shown twice on BBC television. The midlands and north country have produced many highly talented novelists, amongst them Barry Hines, Stan Barstow and Keith Waterhouse. In April comes a novel from a new name, Paul Breeze, While My Guitar Gently Weeps (£5·50), a story of revenge, featuring love, rock music and street violence.

J. A. Davis' lifelong study of otters has produced Samaki: The Story of an Otter in Africa (May, £4·95), while the author of Von Ryan's Express, David Westheimer, was himself an airman in Palestine in World War II, and has now written from his experiences a novel of American flyers in Palestine in 1942, with a strong love theme, Ride on the Wind (£5·25) which comes this month.

This March Allen Lane will republish The Case of Mr. Crump (£4·95) by Ludwig Lewisohn. First published in 1926 it won a worldwide reputation as a pioneering study of a dreadful marriage. In paperback it sold a million copies and foreign editions appeared in almost every European language. Allen Lane say that it still justifies Thomas Mann's praise: "His book stands in the very forefront of modern epic narrative". Conflict in a different relationship—between father and son—is the subject of Padre Padrone (May, £5·50) by Gavino Ledda. The prize-winning film of the same name was based upon it. Also set in Italy, but in a far lighter vein is The Sun and The Moon (April, £5·50), a funny and passionate love story by Niccolo Tucci.

Entertaining Strangers, by A. R. Gurney (June, £5·50), is also a humorous novel which the moral seems to be "beware of strangers bearing gifts". A collection of new stories from Jorge Luis Borges form The Book of Sand (April, £3·95).

Chatto & Windus' lead title for the spring is Bernard Malamud's Dubin's Lives (April, £5·50), a wry tragicomedy about a successful biographer suddenly facing middle age. In the Lap of Atlas by Richard Hughes (May, £4·50), is a collection of reminiscences and exotic tales which the author culled after a visit to Morocco in 1926 and were never published in his lifetime. Laurie Colwin's second novel Happy all the Time is a comedy about romantic love with a happy ending (May, £4·95). In April, Chatto publish The Summer Portrait (£5·50) by Robert Harling, the eventful story of a portrait painter, the women he loves and the fashionable London society in which he moves. Two Thomas Hardy titles come from the Zodiac Press in June (£5·50 each), Tess of the D'Urbervilles and The Return of the Native.

The Wise Virgins, Leonard Woolf's first novel, comes from the Hogarth Press this month at £4·95. It is a thinly disguised roman à clef, first published in 1914 and never reprinted, giving an insight into Leonard Woolf's fascinating family life and courtship of Virginia Stephen.

Heinemann's list is headed by four women, Alison Lurie, Patricia Highsmith, Helen van Slyke and Lee Langley. Alison Lurie's first novel since The War Between the Tates, Only Children (April, £4·50) is a dissection of the marriages and parenthood of two couples on a weekend in the country. Patricia Highsmith's Slowly, Slowly in the Wind (March, £4·50) finds her in her macabre short story-telling vein. Helen van Slyke's is a reputation that is climbing strongly, particularly in the U.S.A. where she is frequently on the bestseller lists. Her new book is, Heinemann believe, her strongest so far. In Sisters and Strangers (June, £4·95) three sisters in their 40s assemble dutifully for their parents' wedding anniversary but find themselves plunged into an emotional turmoil that swamps their estrangement and binds them into an intense reinvolvement. Lee Langley's From the Broken Tree (£4·95) is a Jewish family saga stretching from Poland in the 1860s through the East End to Golders Green today, but emphasising that whatever the surroundings the Jews are always an embattled race. It is a book already acclaimed in the U.S.A. and a Literary Guild Alternate Heinemann publish it this month.

Bantam Books paid a very high price for the first novel by Richard Hislop, A Rose in the Banyan Tree (July, £4·50) and Heinemann expect much of it too. An inexperienced, newly married English girl arrives in a remote little Indian state with her husband. A meeting with the Rani and her beautiful daughter is the start of an adventure which plunges her into an erotic almost magical world of the senses where all her preconceptions founder. Richard Gordon returns with another romp around Dr. Lancelot Spratt in Doctor in the Nest (£3·95), due this month, as is Nicola Thorne's A Woman Like Us (£4·50), in which the central character suddenly finds herself single again and set out along the road of her self re-establishment.

In a Yellow Wood (March, £4·50), by Gore Vidal, was first published in America in 1947 but has not previously been issued in this country.

ALISON LURIE
author of "Only Children" (Heinemann)

Hodder's list is headed by a new Mary Stewart, The Last Enchantment (May, £4·95), the third novel in her Arthurian series. Jacky Gillott's humorous The Head Case (£5·25) comes this month and takes an ironically amused look at life through the eyes of an endearing character named Reggie Montis. John Gale's The Camera Man (May, £4·95) was written shortly before his death and has been edited by John Hellpern. It is set in Hong Kong and tells the story of Peter Lochiel, a photographer, and his search for an odyssey.

Fay Weldon's Praxis (£5·95) will be published this month and is the story of a woman's coming to adulthood in war-time Brighton, which Hodder say, plumbs the depths of the period's changing face and consciousness. Jane Aiken Hodge's Lissenberg (June, £4·50) is a romantic adventure set against the fairy tale background of the tiny independent principality. Rona Jaffe, author of The Last Chance has written Class Reunion (June, £5·25), which sets out to capture the attitudes, prejudices, the petty surface morality and the limited '50s horizons of four Radcliffe girls who go back to Harvard after a 20-year absence.

Heinemann publish a new collection of short stories by Patricia Highsmith in March, "Slowly, Slowly in the Mind"

Bernard S. Fischman's tale of the exploits of Stephan Aaron, The Man Who Rode His Ten-Speed Bicycle to the Moon (£4·25), The American Bride (June, £4·50), by Mario Soldati, is a love story and also a panorama of America as seen through the eyes of an immigrant. Joy Cowley's The Growing Season (£4·50), out this month, brings a New Zealand setting to the Hodder list, as it traces the effects of terminal illness on the sufferer's family and friends.

Margaret Evans found a wide audience with her autobiographical story The Hall in the Field, published last year. She now makes her début as a novelist with And the Little Hills Rejoice (July, £4·95) in which she explores the journeys made by a mother and her son to a new awareness. Drama pervades the world of Miss Charley (this month, £4·95), in which Charity Blackstock writes of the gulf which exists between idealism and reality in the 1970s. In Anna Gilbert's new novel The Leavetaking (June, £4·50) the central character, Isobel, learns the depths of poverty and misery to which an individual is capable of sinking.

FAY WELDON
author of "Praxis" (Hodder)

Eyre Methuen's list, for May, is headed by Leslie Thomas' new novel That Old Gang of Mine (£5·25) an account of a group of elderly gangsters in Florida in his usual both comic and ribald style. Two further novels being published in May are The Cloud Catchers (£5·50) by Ursula Holden, and exploration of the passage from innocence to experience; and Links (£5·50) by Charles Panati, in which he uses his knowledge of the bizarre results of actual experiments in mutual hypnosis. In July in the Left-Handed Woman (£3·95), his third novel to be published in English and hailed by The New York Times as his best so far, Peter Handke has written a disturbing account of a woman with an eight-year-old son whose husband suddenly deserts her. July also sees the publication of a new Flaxborough novel, Blue Murder (£5·50), by Colin Watson. Like its predecessors, it is Eyre Methuen say, at times hilarious, at times chillingly ghoulish.

ALEX KATE SCHULMAN
whose novel "Burning Questions" Deutsch are to publish in April

Hamish Hamilton believe that Graham Masterton, author of Rich (May, £5·95)—an epic story of the rise to riches of a Dutch imigrant in the boom years of Texas oil is the most exciting epic author they have published since Susan Howatch. Hugh Fleetwood's The Godmother (April, £5·50) is the story of a guilt-obsessed woman, and is set in Rio de Janeiro. Also coming are a new comedy from Honor Tracy, The Ballad of Castle Reef (June, £5·50), and Jane White's Benjamin's Open Day (£5·50), a tale of a precocious schoolboy, which is out this month. The last volume of Bruno Schulz's fine Polish stories to be translated into English, coming this month, is called Sanatorium Under the Sign of the Hour Glass (£5·95).

MARY RENAULT
This month sees the publication by John Murray of "The Praise Singer"

Heading their list Souvenir Press have Wings by Robert J. Serling (May, £5·50), a saga of the growth of American aviation, spanning five decades of pioneering, bravery and competition. Also in May comes Cuddon Return by John Finch (£4·50), a portrayal of childhood in the poverty of a Yorkshire mining village during the Second World War. March sees the publication of a novel by the late Scottish author Fionn MacColla, The Ministers (£4·95, paper £2·50). Unpublished in his lifetime, Souvenir say it represents MacColla at his sharpest and most perceptive. In "Condor Books" they will publish another novel by Knut Hamsun, Growth of the Soil (£5·95, paper £3·95) translated by W. Worster.

Iain Crichton Smith's An End To Autumn (£4·95), coming from Gollancz this month, is a study of a failing marriage that takes the right turning. Mrs. Job (March, £5·50) is a first novel by Victoria Branden, a comedy about an unliberated woman whose need to be loved constantly lands her in difficulties. Also coming in March is Philip Glazebrook's Byzantine Honeymoon: A Tale of the Bosphorus, a novel of passion and treachery set in Stamboul and concerning the adventures of a young Englishman with a taste for the exotic.

Charles Webb is probably best known as author of The Graduate; his new novel Booze (April, £4·50) is a bizarre comedy about a painter whose only subject is oranges, and whose problem is his need to indulge in programmed drinking sessions to revitalise his interest in sex. In May the winner of the Gollancz/Pan/Picador Fantasy Competition will be published, D. M. Thomas' The Flute-Player (£5·50), which they describe as a lyrical tale about the survival of love and art in a repressive state which resembles the Soviet Union. Another acclaimed writer of fantasy, Angela Carter, rings the changes on some well-known fairy tales in her new collection, The Bloody Chamber and Other Stories (May, £5·50).

MacDonald Harris, author of The Balloonist and Yukiko, re-creates the fraught atmosphere of Venice during the Napoleonic years in Pandora's Galley (May, £5·95), to spin a complex tale midway between dream and reality.

Yael Dayan, the daughter of Moshe Dayan, is the author of Three Weeks in October to be published by Weidenfeld in March at £4·95. Set in Israel during the Yom Kippur War it tells the story of Amalia and Daniel whose marriage is strained by the tensions of fighting and also gives a picture of the courage and suffering of the Israeli people. Another novel scheduled for March is The Rich Boy from Chicago (£5·25), by Derek Marlowe, author of Dandy in Aspic, set in the fashionable society of Europe and America from the 1920s to the '60s.

The former British Ambassador to Finland and to Israel, Sir Bernard Ledwidge, is the author of Frontiers, the story of one man's search for love and self-knowledge set against a backdrop of war and espionage on the north-west frontier during the Second World War (March, £4·95). Another story with a wartime setting is Enemy at the Door by James Andrew Hall, based on the London Weekend Television series about the Channel Islanders under German occupation.

This month John Murray have a new Mary Renault The Praise Singer (£4·95), set in ancient Greece and telling the life of a poet in the courts of Athens; and Nahid Rachlin's Foreigner, about a woman in her 30s married to an American, who experiences estrangement when she returns from America to visit her family in Iran (£4·95).

Collins titles for this month include Court of Honour (£5·50) by Maria Fagyas, a story of love, death and dishonour set in the highest circles of Imperial Germany at the peak of Kaiser Wilhelm II's reign; and Hans Hellmut Kirst's Twilight of the Generals (£5·50), also set in Germany, which recounts how, in 1938, Hitler gained control of the Wehrmacht by destroying the reputation of two honourable top-ranking generals. The Plate Shop (March, £4·95) is a first novel which Collins say is of great distinction. It is by John Harvey, a young Cambridge don. Based on a first-hand experience, it portrays life on the shop-floor and the petty realities and poetry of that world.

One of the most important titles for March is the new Taylor Caldwell novel Bright Flows the River (£5·50), about the mental struggles and inner torment of a man who tries to kill himself, is then confined to a sanitorium and tries to break the psychological bonds of an unhappy marriage in order to join the woman he really loves. Other titles for March include Close to Home (£5·25) which is Deborah Moggach's follow-up to her much acclaimed first novel You Must be Sisters; Frank de Felitta's The Entity (£5·95) a terrifying story, based on fact, of a woman ravaged by a spectoral rapist, from the author of Audrey Rose; and Flip (£4·25), Geoffrey Morgan's East Anglian tale of an orphan seal pup growing to maturity, overcoming natural hazards and resolving the relationship with man.

MARY STEWART
has written a third novel in her Arthurian series, from Hodder

a selection of novels and stories by Herman Hesse and was previously scheduled for October, and the other is composed of some of the best works of Vladimir Nabokov including Lolita, The Gift, Invitation to a Beheading, King Queen Knave, Despair, Glory, A Russian Beauty, and other stories. Both are priced at £4·95. James Houston's new novel, The Spirit Wrestler (April, £5·25) is set among the eskimos in North America. Also scheduled for April is Other People (£5·50), Sol Stein's new novel set in New York that exposes both the dark and bright sides of love.

The only May title announced by Collins is Edith Reveley's A Pause for Breath (£4·95), which follows her impressive literary début with the short story collection, The Etruscan Couple. Dress Grey (£5·50) is their big title for June. This is Lucian Truscott's first novel, and is set at West Point, America's Sandhurst, and concerns one cadet's battle against a group of corrupt senior army officials who attempt to cover up a murder within the Academy itself. Also in June comes Sian James' third novel, A Small Country (£5·25), the story of a Welsh farming family in the years leading up to the First World War.

In Charles McCarry's The Better Angels, which Hutchinson will publish in April (£4·95), the leaking of a secret at the beginning of the presidential re-election campaign signals the start of a vicious political contest. Pretty Doll Houses (April, £4·95) is Gabriel Fielding's first novel for twelve years. A highly autobiographical study of childhood and adolescence set in the '20s and '30s, it is a new novel in the "Blaydon" series.

Spanning 30 years in the life of one extraordinary East End family, Claire Rayner's Sisters (£4·95) is a story of ambition and jealousy which will be published this month. Night Tennis by Annabel Davis-Goff (April, £4·95) is a light tale of a woman in mid-life struggling to balance a career with a marriage, a deceiving husband with a feckless young lover.

In Occupational Debris (June, £5·50), the second novel of Stuart Evans "Windmill Hill" sequence, the violent suicide of a leading media personality stirs in his friends degrees of disquiet about his true history and about their own lives. New Stories 4, coming in April at £5·50 and £3·50, is the second of the annual Arts Council short story anthologies to be published jointly by the Arts Council of Great Britain, Hutchinson and PEN. Stories by Angela Carter, Robert Nye and Emma Tennant are included. Following Archie Hill's autobiography A Cage of Shadows and his first novel, Corridor of Mirrors, comes Sergeant Sahib (April, £5·50), a novel set in Arabia at the time of the Palestine Emergency. Pre-war Berlin is the setting for James Tucker's Blaze of Riot (£4·95), the story of an English businessman caught up in the dramatic events leading to the Reichstag fire. It comes this month, as does William Kotzwinkle's Herr Nightingale and the Satin Woman (£4·95), a blend of text and illustration in a large format—a fantasy involving a band of dream smugglers and a character called the Golden Caterpillar.

Leading Faber's list is An Infinite Summer (£4) by Christopher Priest, a collection of five extraordinary stories, each dealing in its different way with the themes of human love and sexuality, of innocence and corruption. There will be a second edition of Sylvia Plath's collection of stories and other prose writings, Johnny Panic and the Bible of Dreams (£4·95), introduced by Ted Hughes. It contains nine additional stories as well as all the original material. Nightwood (£4·95), the poetic novel by Djuna Barnes (with an introduction by T. S. Eliot), is now recognised as a minor masterpiece in the literature of the '30s and it is being reissued in hard covers.

The publication in America of Edwin Mulhouse: The Life and Death of an American Writer 1943–1954—by Jeffrey Cartwright, written by Steven Millhauser, attracted some spectacular reviews: Newsweek described "Millhauser's extraordinary first book" as "a major début", Life called it "astounding and delightful, enormously funny and moving . . . a thoroughly original, brilliant first novel." Routledge & Kegan Paul publish this in April (£4·95). Sam Chard, by Don Bannister (£4·50), is set in a Yorkshire mining village in the 1930s and presents against a harsh backcloth of unemployment and poverty the characters of the village people, dominated by the restless personality of Sam Chard. In a very different vein is Emmy, by Ruth Boswell (July, £4·95), a subtle novel of childhood and the loss of innocence, set in an Oxfordshire village in Edwardian times. The Love Siege, by Tom Wakefield (£3·95) is set in the not too distant future when a Government of National Unity controls the lives and actions of all its citizens.

Previously announced for October Marion Boyars are now publishing "the major sexual novel of this century" Story of the Eye, by Georges Bataille (£5·95), this month. March sees the reissue of Witold Gombrowicz's Ferdydurke (£5·95), and Arno Schmidt's The Egghead Republic (£4·95), previously announced for January.

In April come two novels from the North American continent. Michael Ondaatje's Coming Through Slaughter (£4·95), set in New Orleans, is based on the extraordinary life of the legendary trumpet player Buddy Bolden. In Requiem for a Dream (£4·95), Hubert Selby, author of Last Exit to Brooklyn, gives another of his tales set in the seemy streets of New York, with three drifters desperately trying to dispose of a pound of uncut heroin.

Marion Boyars publish "Requiem for a Dream" in April

June sees the publication of Penelope Shuttle's latest novel The Mirror of the Giant (£4·95), a ghost story set in a country village presided over by the ancient figure of a giant carved in the chalk upland.

John Calder's list starts with the first publication of William Burroughs' short fiction Ah Pook is Here, together with The Book of Breeething and Electronic Revolution in one volume called Ah Pook is Here and Other Texts (£4·95). Trevor Hoyle is best-known for his science fiction trilogy the "Q" series, and in his latest novel The Man who Travelled on Motorways (£4·95), which comes this month, he brings all the freedoms of that form to explore our peculiarly anonymous and threatening modern world. In March comes David Galloway's "loving parody" of the tough Raymond Chandler detective novel, Lamaar Ransom—Private Eye (£4·95), in which the familiar world of Philip Marlowe is turned upside down. In quite another vein Michael Hayes has brought together in one volume The Ghostly Tales of Washington Irving (March, £4·95), the American writer best known for Rip van Winkle and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow.

Wilhelm Meister, Goethe's great Romantic masterpiece was written in two large parts—The Years of Apprenticeship and The Years of Travel. With the publication of the third volume of The Years of Apprenticeship (April, £5·95) the first part of this great work will be available and the second part (also in three volumes) will be published during 1979–80, the two parts making an impressive six-volume set. The Brae House (April, £4·95) is Millie Sutherland's autobiographical novel about the life of an orphaned girl from the Highland glens.

The Argentinian playwright Copi first made an impression in Paris with his plays and later with his fiction. Drag Ball (June, £4·95), a provocative romp through the fashionable bohemia of the Latin Quarter in Paris, is his first novel to be translated into English. Another novel of Paris is André Breton's nostalgic reminiscence of the city of his youth conjured up by his love affair with a young girl, Nadja (May, £4·95). In June, too, comes New Writing and Writers 17 (£4·95 cased, paper £2·50) which will contain a number of novella-length fictions including Fable by Robert Pinget, Snow by Jan Cremer and work by George Moor, the Dutch writer Harry Mulisch and several others.

Ivo Andric, a previous Nobel Prize winner, wrote Bosnian Story (July, £5·95) in 1958. It is a classic of Yugoslav literature, set during the Napoleonic Wars but whose contemporary theme is the political, cultural and spiritual effect of the East on the West.

Allison & Busby's largest-ever list is headed by the ironically-titled The Joys of Motherhood (March, £4·95) by Buchi Emecheta, the Nigerian-born novelist who has just won the New Statesman's Jock Campbell Award for her last three novels. Set in Nigeria, it is the story of a woman who sacrifices herself for her children, and it will be published simultaneously with a reissue of the same author's first book, In the Ditch (March, £4·95 and £1·95). Another, and very different, African writer who now joins the list for the first time is Nuruddin Farrah whose Sweet and Sour Milk (March, £4·95) is set in his native Somalia and is an attempt to come to grips with the problems of "the embarrassed generation of Africa".

Mexico is the setting for two books by the mysterious B. Traven, who also appears on the Allison & Busby list for the first time. The Kidnapped Saint and Other Stories (March, £4·95 and £1·95) contains nine of his tales of peasant life, together with two very rare glimpses of the author himself (a brief memoir by his widow and an autobiographical account of his experiences in Bavaria before the First World War); and The Cotton Pickers (March, £4·95 and £1·95) which, through the eyes of a poor and roving American expatriate, describes the turmoil which existed in post-revolutionary Mexico and the birth of trades unions there.

The birth of a trades union movement, but this time in Trinidad, is also one of the main themes of Ralph de Boissiere's Crown Jewel (July, £6·95 and £2·95), a famous book (which has been much translated but never before published in Britain) about the turbulent pre-independence struggles of that island during the 1950s. Another West Indian island, but this time a mythical one, is the setting for George Lamming's Season of Adventure (July, £5·95 and £1·95), which is now something of a classic of West Indian literature. Jack Daniel is a professional artist and art-teacher, which was apparent from the descriptive insights in his first novel about Tobruk (The Siege). His second novel, The Don R's Progress (June, £4·95) also draws strongly on his own wartime experiences to tell the story of a motorbike dispatch rider's ordeal as he carries one message across the desert during the North African war campaign.

Allison & Busby are also republishing three of Jack Trevor Story's best and most enjoyably individual novels, those which tell the exploits of Albert Argyle: Live Now Pay Later, Something for Nothing and The Urban District Lover (April, £4·95 and £1·95 each). And last, but by no means least, come two books which span a 40-year era: Rayner Heppenstall's classic novel about a blind man, Blaze of Noon (April, £4·95 and £1·95) comes back into print, and Clive Sinclair makes his début as a short-story writer with Hearts of Gold (May, £4·95), a collection of stories whose themes range from vampirism to communism.

Peter Owen's list starts this month with a new novel by the widely acclaimed Japanese writer Shusaku Endo, When I Whistle (£6), about the conflict between generations in modern Japan. Lodgings (March, £5·95) by Wolfgang Georg Fischer, concerns life in exile during World War II, while Joseph Roth's The Silent Prophet (May, £5·95) is a recently discovered novel about the Russian revolution by a German writer whose reputation has increased greatly in recent years. In June comes The Lead Soldiers (£5·75) by Uri Orvel, a novel about the Holocaust. Sean Treacy's Scallywags (July, £4·95) continues the adventures of the heroes of Shay Scally and Manny

Wagstaff; also in July Owen publish Wild Tales (£5·75), the first collection of stories in English translation by the leading Bulgarian writer Nikolai Haitov.

Sidgwick & Jackson continue in their second year of fiction publishing with two books which have attracted high critical acclaim in America. Hasen (£4·95), by Reuben Bercovitch, is a fable about children attempting, and failing, to survive under conditions that oblige them to be as responsible and resourceful as adults. The American critics compared the book to both Lord of the Flies and A High Wind in Jamaica. It comes this month. Twiddledum, Twaddledum (June, £4·95), by Peter Spielberg, is a tragicomedy about growing up, first as a raw youth in Vienna, then as a "survivor" in America.

From Thomas Yoseloff comes What Are Little Girls Made Of? (£6), by Martin Yoseloff, which explores the marriage of a middle-class, sophisticated New York couple, and shows that life for the wife is not all sugar and spice.

W. & R. Chambers are publishing The Captive Summer by Jeremy Bruce-Watt, and Scully's Lugs by Stewart Hutchison in May (each £4·95). Joint winners of the 1977 Chambers Awards for fiction they were previously announced for October of last year.

The Straw and The Gold is a collection of 13 grown-up fairy tales from such authors as Ted Hughes, Angela Carter, J. G. Ballard, and Alison Lurie. Each is illustrated with the original paintings by 13 of the most original illustrators and artists working today, Wayne Anderson, Ralph Steadman, Russell Mills and Ian Pollock among them. It will be published by Pierrot in June (paper, £5·50).

The first full-length novel for many years from the Irish short story writer Sean O'Faolain comes from Constable in May. And Again? (£4·95) is about Robert Younger who is given a chance by the gods to live his life over again, but he starts from his present age of 65 and lives backwards, retaining the fruits of his experience but not his memory.

Geraldine Halls' Thawle (June, £4·95) has as its hero a large English country house in decline, at present lived in by an assortment of eccentrics. Its fate among the tax men and the antique dealers is both tragic and comic. Desmond Meiring's A Foreign Body (May, £4·95) is about the political and personal intrigues of the Arab world.

Previously announced for July 1978, A Woman, by Sibilla Aleramo and translated by Rosalind Delmar, will now be published by Virago this month (£6·95, paper £2·95). Bad Connections by Joyce Johnson (May, £4·95) deals with the perils of romantic love. Its witty heroine Molly, hopelessly in love and struggling to come to terms with it, is, Virago claim, one of the universal heroines of our time. Published in America to critical acclaim from novelists such as E. L. Doctorow, Marilyn French, and Judith Rossner, its author is executive publishing editor at the Dial Press in New York.

W. H. Allen's list opens this month with Cyril Kersh's Minnie Ashe at War (£4·95), in which his heroine's sharp tongue and superb logic, battle her through to survival in one of Kersh's typically humorous novels with bitter undertones. Another Jewish novel, also for this month, is The Lost Tribe (£5·50). Peace in a small Jewish community in Lithuania in 1885 is shattered by the mindless brutality of non-Jewish neighbours. Jack Ronder's story will become a BBC television series in the autumn.

Women Writing: An Anthology (£4·95), edited by Denys val Baker, is a collection of stories by 12 distinguished women writers. Contributors include Irish Murdoch, Bernice Rubens, Agatha Christie and Antonia Fraser. It comes this month. Donald Zec's The Colonel (March, £4·95) revolves around a struggle for power, sanity and human rights within the regiment.

The Red Raven (March, £4·95) is an autobiographical novel by the distinguished actress and painter, Lilli Palmer. Concerning her relationship with a young woman friend she calls the "Red Raven" and the memories and revelations of her "friend's" diary given to Lilli as a last gift, W. H. Allen expect it to prove as successful as her Change Lobsters and Dance. After the funeral of his first love whom he had not seen for years, Cyril Marvey is handed a letter in which she implores him to find her son who vanished six years before. On finding the boy with a French girlfriend, he takes them both back to his house in London which is when tragedy begins. Peter de Polnay tells the story in The Autumn Leaves Merchant (April, £4·95).

SEAN O'FAOLAIN
whose novel "And Again?" will be published by Constable

To celebrate The International Year of the Child Granada are publishing this month Army of Children by Evan Rhodes (£5·95), a story of the Children's Crusade. Elizabeth Troop's Slipping Away (£4·50), her first book since the highly acclaimed Woolworth Madonna also comes this month. The first title in C. L. Skelton's Regiment Quartet, The Maclarens (£4·95), will be published in March.

Granada's lead title for April is Paloverde by Jacqueline Briskin (£4·95), a saga of three generations of a family who dominate the growth of California. The Fifth Horseman is the first novel written by Larry Collins and Dominique Lapierre, the authors of such bestsellers as Is Paris Burning? and Freedom at Midnight. The Fifth Horseman (April, £4·95) is an epic of fear which Granada say is researched with the same painstaking concern for detail that characterises all their books.

Robert Hale feel that their leading title Outrun the Dark, by Cecilia Bartholomew (March, £4·75), shows penetrating psychological insight, as well as a keen sense of drama, as the author explores the rehabilitation of a 21-year-old girl after 13 years in a mental asylum following the murder of her 4-year-old brother. The U.S. paperback rights have been sold for over $300,000 and a film is being made. Another story with a medical background is George Sava's No Man Is Perfect (£4·50), by the author of The Healing Knife. His new novel, out this month, depicts the disintegration of a once-successful brain surgeon. Another doctor, Alice Dwyer-Joyce, has Dánny Boy (£4·50) due in May. It is set in Ireland and tells of the strange powers of Lalage Fitzgerald, the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter.

GEOFFREY HOUSEHOLD
A new anthology of stories comes from David & Charles this month

Lawrence Sanders' The Tomorrow File (April, £5·25) has a promising pedigree in that it and its predecessor and successor have featured on the U.S. bestseller lists. From televised sex instruction to a society based on genetic ratings this 512-page novel is an imaginative and detailed picture of tomorrow's world. An unusual collection of short stories coming in March (£4·25) is Their Children Will See and Other Stories by James Shaw Grant, all of which feature the Gallic-speaking communities of the Western Isles.

Carrie, Salem's Lot and The Shining have assured Stephen King his place at the top of the horror field. This month New English Library publish The Stand (£6·95), which they say is his strangest and most powerful novel yet. An epidemic has wiped out nine-tenths of the world's population, and the survivors are confronted with the decision of whether they should join the forces of ultimate good or ultimate evil. The Wolves of Paris (£4·95), also due this month, is Daniel P. Mannix' account of a wolf pack at the time of the Hundred Years' War. In The Savage (March, £4·95) Alex Peters has a psychology and medical student set out to disprove that certain races are inherently more intelligent than others. The Deal is a novel of Hollywood, by Donald Zec (March, £5·95) in which the excesses of a leading actor are covered up by the old fraudulent methods.

In April N.E.L. publish The Pilots (£4·95), the latest book by the author of The Interns, Richard Frede. In May comes Catherine Reynold's Black is the Colour of My True Love's Heart (£4·95), a novel about a woman who gradually realises that she is enmeshed in a prolonged and vicious campaign initiated by her step-daughter; Summer of the Monkeys, Wilson Rawl's sequel to Where the Red Fern Grows (£4·95); and Schultz! (£4·95), the story of one of World War II's most outrageous characters—the monitor of the Salon Kitty—which is shortly to be serialised on BBC television, and is by Jack Pulman and Walter Pedlow.

Adam Hall appears on the N.E.L. list with The Sibling (June, £4·95), about a terrifying relationship between a rival brother and sister. Two books of sinister tone are due in July, One By One is by American author Linda Lee (£5·95), and supposes the contamination of a city's food supply, and Lair (£4·95) is the latest work by James Herbert, bestselling author of The Rats, to which it is the sequel.

Stephen King, bestselling author of horror and the occult has written The Dead Zone which Macdonald & Jane's are publishing in May (£4·95). It is the story of a young man, who after a serious car accident, finds he has the "gift" of precognition. Mortal Friends, a Raven title by James Carroll (£6·95), comes this month and is a panoramic novel of the American Irish and Mafia in a tangled web of love, ambition and crime. Of Better Times than These by Winston Groom (May, £5·50) Irving Shaw has written "a robust, earthy account of how a group of Americans fought the pitiless war in Vietnam." The Family Affair, another Raven title (March, £4·50), by scriptwriter N. J. Crisp, is to be a new television series. Another March title is Wynner, the first novel from the internationally famous singer Mel Torme (£4·95).

YAEL DAYAN
author of "Three Weeks in October", a novel set during the Yom Kippur War from Weidenfeld

Arthur Barker continue their run of film tie-ins with Damien: Omen II by Joseph Howard (£4·50), the sequel to the world-wide bestseller, The Omen; The Promise by Danielle Steel (£4·95), a tie-in with the film in the "Love Story" tradition from Universal Pictures, which stars Kathleen Quinlan, Stephen Collins and Academy Award winner Beatrice Straight; and Capricorn One (£4·95), by Bernard Ross, of which the film stars Karen Black, Elliott Gould and Telly Savalas. All come this month.

In April Arthur Barker publish Moment by Moment (£4·95) by Darcy O'Brien, adapted from the screenplay by Jane Wagner. It is a story of a young man seeking identity and his love affair with an older, more disillusioned woman; the film stars John Travolta and Lily Tomlin.

PENELOPE SHUTTLE
author of "The Mirror of the Giant" published by Marion Boyars

A new book by David Kossoff is to be published by Robson Books in March. A Small Town is a World (£4·25, illustrated by the author) is a retelling by Kossoff of some of the great folk tales of the Jewish tradition. Also in March, Robson Books publish a new edition of Charles Causley's long-out-of-print classic collection of naval stories, Hands to Dance and Skylark (£5·25), which includes a long, new autobiographical section in which Causley looks back on his life in the wartime Navy.

CHRISTOPHER PRIEST
Faber are to publish his stories "Infinite Summer"

When Alan Coren took over as Editor of Punch last year, he initiated a series of original short stories which have been attracting wide attention. In March Robson Books will publish The Punch Book of Short Stories (£4·95), a lively selection by such eminent writers as Paul Theroux, Edna O'Brien, Richard Gordon, Melvyn Bragg and Alan Sillitoe.

The first posthumous work of Rhys Davies is a collection of his favourite short stories, edited by the author just before his death in 1978 and published by David & Charles this month as The Best of Rhys Davies (£4·95). The Europe That Was (£4·95), also for this month, is an anthology of stories by Geoffrey Household.

Paddington Press will publish in March their first work of fiction which is also the first novel by a 65-year-old wife, mother, grandmother and, above all, they say, natural storyteller. Maggie, by Lena Kennedy (£4·95), is a family saga spanning four decades and four generations and is set against the background of the depression, the war, the blitz and the '50s.

Denys Val Baker, well-known for his autobiographical books, has written a novel to be published by William Kimber in May. Barbican's End (£4·50) is set in Cornwall and combines romance with strange echoes of the legends of Atlantis and the lost land of Lyonesse. In April come Whisper in the Night (£4·50) by Mary Williams, a new collection of ghost stories by the author of Unseen Footsteps and The Haunted Valley; The Phantom Coach: Thirteen Journeys into the Unknown (£4·50) edited by Peter C. Smith, a tour of the macabre and the occult; and One Footprint in the Sand (£4·50) by Meg Buxton.

Northern Myths is a collection of black-comic stories, many of them about the Ulster Troubles, by John Morrow, whose novel The Confessions of Proinsias O'Toole has been compared with the writings of Tom Sharpe in its hilarious treatment of a tragic subject (April, paper £2·50). Stories, by Sam McAughtry, is a collection of short stories by the author of The Sinking of the Kenbane Head (April, paper £2·50) and comes from Blackstaff Press.

Musco-Blue Whale by Vincent Smith, coming from Harper & Row this month (£3·95) is a journey into the world of whales. It tells the tragic story of man's intrusion and aggression.

Leo Kessler's Guns at Cassino will be published by Seeley Service in March. It was previously announced for September (£4·25).

Severn House are publishing in June The Greek Tycoon (April, £4·25) which is a film tie-in title.

One of the world's prolific and successful authors, Heinz G. Konsalik has four novels coming from Aidan Ellis. The Changed Face (£5·25) and The War Bride (£4·95) close his war series, and Doctor Erica Werner (£5·25) and A Summer With Danica (£5·25) begin a new doctor romance series. Henri Troyat's Head in the Clouds (£5·50) is published in April while a new novel, Jessica (£4·50) by Sonia Scott-Fleming, about a blind woman, comes in March.

Annie Parsons (£4·95) by Sarah Shears, previously announced for November, will now be published by Elek in March.

Previously announced for November, Julian Friedmann's second novel Book of Trances by Güneli Gün will now be published in February at £3·95.

TERRY COLEMAN
His first novel "Southern Cross" will be published by Hutchinson in March

whose new novel "A Marriage of Convenience" comes from Hamish Hamilton in June

JOURNALIST Terry Coleman's Southern Cross (March, £4·95) is "destined to be one of the great historical novels of the decade", say Hutchinson. Set in Australia three hundred years ago, it follows the birth of a nation as seen through the eyes of several generations of a single family. While Terry Coleman has not previously written a novel, his successful non-fiction works include the widely praised The Railway Navvies.

Robert Neill's The Devil's Door (April, £4·50) is a tale of mystery and superstition set in an English country village in 1662. The Forging of Fantom (£5·50) is the second of Charles Underhill's novels about the "quarrelsome" soldier-of-fortune first mentioned in John Aubrey's Brief Lives and comes this month. This new book tells of Fantom's early adventures in Venice where he learns the art of chivalry, and becomes proficient in murder, theft and high treason.

Parson Harding's Daughter (June, £4·95), by Joanna Trollope, author of Eliza Stanhope, is the story of a Dorset clergyman's daughter who makes an unexpected life for herself in 18th-century Calcutta.

Hodder's historical list for the spring is particularly strong. Howard Fast's sequel to The Immigrants, Second Generation (£4·95) now comes this month. It takes the story of Italian immigrant Dan Lavette and his San Francisco family up to the period of the Second World War. Another author to build on a successful family saga is Malcolm Macdonald; he follows his earlier three books, The World From Rough Stones, The Rich Are With You Always, and Sons of Fortune with Abigail (June, £5·95) in which a determined heroine battles against the morality of the Victorian age. In July comes The Passing Bells (£5·25), by Phillip Rock. It follows the fortunes of the Earl of Granville and his family from 1914 through to the end of the First World War. Very much in the tradition of R. L. Delderfield, it is a surprise to learn that Mr. Rock is an American. Hodder have high hopes for his book.

May sees the publication of Macbeth the King (£5·95), by Nigel Tranter, in which he unravels the story of the true Macbeth, and plots his struggle to make and save a united Scotland. Katharine Gordon's Peacock in Flight (March, £4·50) is the sequel to her successful The Emerald Peacock.

One Man's Inheritance (£4·95) is by John Attenborough and Hodder will publish it in May. They say that it is a penetrating novel, rich in incident and background, which takes place at the turn of the century. It revolves around the world of Philip Mortimer-Wotton, heir to the great house of Ockenham in Kent, his family and his estate, and the sadness which lies beneath the prosperous surface of his life. Frances Lynch's In the House of Dark Music (April, £4·95) is set in Victorian days. Dark Sweet Wanton, by Sheila Lancaster, is about Mary Fytton, reputed to have been the Dark Lady of Shakespeare's sonnets. A familiar name on the Hodder list is that of Jill Tattersall. Her new saga of mystery and intrigue, Dark at Noon (June, £4·50) is set in rural Wales.

Fate plays a major part in Catherine Dillon's novel beloved Prisoner (May, £4·50). Hesta Sheridan seizes the opportunity to escape the drab life of a Victorian governess, journeys to the Russian port of Balaclava as companion to the eccentric wife of a British general, and is thrust into a bizarre turn of events.

Philip Mason's Skinner of Skinner's Horse (£4·50) draws upon his talents as historian, biographer and novelist to present a detailed and entertaining picture of India at the turn of the 18th century. It comes from Deutsch in June.

In Elgar on the Journey to Hanley (£4·50), due this month, Keith Alldritt takes as his central character an historical figure, and creates around him a picture of provincial life at the turn of the century, and gives, too, a view of Elgar's development as a composer.

Cassell lead their list with the fourth historical-romantic novel by Brian Cleeve, following Sara, Kate and Judith. Set in the time of the French Revolution Hester is due in April (£5·25). Another popular series is "The Performers" by Claire Rayner, and her seventh novel of 19th-century London is entitled Charing Cross (May, £5·25). An evocative first novel by Margaret Davidson, My Lords Richard comes in April (£4·95), and tells of Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick, and Richard III during the turbulent days of the Wars of the Roses. Trade Imperial, by Alan Lloyd, also due in April, deals with the tea trade with China during Queen Victoria's reign, and the more sinister opium trade (£5·25).

VICTORIA HOLT
Her latest novel "The Spring of the Tiger" is due from Collins in June

Jean Plaidy, who must be almost unique in producing bestsellers under three pseudonyms, writes of Eleanor of Provence, later the wife of Henry III, in The Queen from Provence, the sixth novel in her Plantagenet saga. It comes from Robert Hale in March at £4·50. Another well-known novelist is Pamela Hill (her last three novels reprinted shortly after publication) whose Homage to a Rose (£4·25) comes this month. It is the story of the child bride who became first the mistress and then the wife of Talleyrand. Set in the same period is Helga Moray's tale of a girl's fight to clear her father's name, The Birds are Watching (March, £4·50), which Hale say has the same epic quality as her Untamed, which became a famous Susan Hayward and Tyrone Power film.

Amongst other forthcoming historical novels are Joanna Dessau's Fantastical Marvellous Queen (March, £4·25), the sequel to Absolute Elizabeth, in her fictional autobiography of Elizabeth I; Rogue's Mistress, Constance Gluyas' 384-page saga of a runaway white slave, which was a bestseller in America (May, £5·25); and A Dream of Fair Serpents by Catherine Darby (March, £4·50), whom Publishers' Weekly commended for her "fiendish imagination". Remarkably, it spans nearly 2,000 years, from the present day back to the Roman occupation of Britain. The Scourge of the Ninth, by Howard Nield (May, £4·50), is a first novel whose hero is commander of the Roman Ninth Legion.

Well-established writers who also have new novels coming are Eva McDonald, John Ruskin's Wife (May, £4·50), Betty King, Nell Gwyn (May, £4·50), and Philippa Wiat, whose Westerfalca (March, £4·50) is a further story of the Lords of the Black Boar.

The story of a young girl's romantic awakening, love and disillusion in 18th-century Aberdeen is told in Agnes Short's Clatter Vengeance, a sequel to her earlier novel, The Heritors (£5·95). Constable publish it this month.

Two Michael Joseph titles delayed from last year until this month are The Secret Memoirs of Lord Byron (£5·95), by Christopher Nicole, and The Goddess (£4·95), a reworking of the legend of Helen of Troy, by Miranda Seymour.

Julian Rathbone has stepped right out of formula to write a "racy, picaresque and historically convincing" novel of the Peninsular Wars. Joseph (April, £5·95) has a cast that Michael Joseph say "would not disgrace the pages of a Fielding". Welsh novelist Alun Richards, script writer for many of the popular "Onedin Line" programmes, also makes a journey into the past with Barque Whisper (£4·95, April), the second in his trilogy of novels begun with Ennal's Point. Carol Wensby-Scott's first novel Proud Conquest (£4·95), which comes this month, is from an author in whom her publishers have considerable confidence. It is the story of Matilde, daughter of the Count of Flanders, and the man she was forced to marry, William the Bastard, Duke of Normandy, who was willing to defy Rome to win her. In The Iron Sleep, the continuing saga of the Oakwood family whose story began in Tides of War, the horrifying battles of the First World War play a major part. It is by Ronald Pearsall, in the R. F. Delderfield manner, and comes this month (£5·50).

The sequel to "The Immigrants" comes from Hodder this month

The leading title from Hamish Hamilton is Tim Jeal's A Marriage of Convenience (June, £5·95), successor to Until the Colours Fade. Three historical romances from established writers are Laura Black's Wildcat (July, £5·50), Rona Randell's The Mating Dance (June, £5·95), which follows her bestselling Dragonmede, and Margaret Mayhew's The Railway King (May, £5·50).

In March Collins will publish The Winds of Freedom (£4·95), a novel of the American War of Independence by Mary-Helen Clague. William Rayner's The Conversation of Dragons, for the same month, parodies the style of Fielding and Sterne in an entertaining story set in the last years of the 18th century. Jane Sheridan's Damaris (April, £5·50) is a Regency novel set in Brighton, Bath and Brussels, while Morisco (April, £5·50) is the tale of a Devon villager turned Moorish corsair who returns to ransack the village of his birth.

Collins' only title for May is Isabelle Holland's seventh romantic suspense novel, Tower Abbey (£5·25). Their leading title for June is the new Victoria Holt, The Spring of the Tiger (£4·95), in which the queen of gothics returns to the Victorian period with a story set in England and Ceylon. The list is completed with The Sun Princess (June, £5·25), by Sylvia Pell, set at the court of Louis XIV.

Roy Clews joins the Gollancz list with The Golden City (July, £5·50), a historical adventure set in the Sahara desert in the 1820s, among a band of soldiers going in search of the fabled city of Timbuktoo.

The first published novel from a new Arlington historical romance writer, Caroline Courtney, was launched in January, Duchess in Disguise (£4·95). It is followed in May by A Wager For Love (£4·95). Arlington say that Miss Courtney has written numerous novels over many years and, at last, "with the encouragement of her family", she has agreed to their publication in a uniform edition by Arlington Books.

Eyre Methuen will publish in April Mollie Hardwick's Regency novel Lovers Meeting, which begins with four people meeting on the stage and moves from great theatres in town to barn-stages in the country. In June comes Dorothy Backer's first novel The Parma Legacy (£6). It tells the story of two women born on the same day, one a noblewoman, the other her maid, and is set against a well-researched background of 17th-century France. Nancy Buckingham's Vienna Summer (£5), also due in June, is about a young English girl who gets caught up in a frightening mystery in late 19th-century Austria.

Having, in Warrior in Bronze, established his portrait of the young King Agamemnon, George Shipway follows his progress in King in Splendour (£4·50) first of all as the dominating warlord of mainland Greece and subsequently leader of the great expedition against King Priam and Troy. Peter Davies publish in April. Patricia Ormsby's reputation as an interpreter of the Regency period is ever growing and Peter Davies believe it will be sustained in The Elusive Marriage (May, £4·25). Deborah Hill in The House of Kingsley Merrick (£4·95) has written a successor to This is the House which plunges the reader straight into the turbulent commercial world of New England and the mixed fortunes of wealth and the heart; it comes this month.

Allen & Unwin will publish in June My Brother Chilperic (£5·50) by Paul

ROSEMARY ANN SISSON
author of "The Queen and the Welshman", from W. H. Allen in April

Murray Kendall, author of biographies of Richard III, Warwick the Kingmaker and Louis XI.

Macdonald & Jane's head their list with a new Troubadour, Emma Drummond's Devil's Leap (June, £5·25) set at the time of the Boer War. The author's Scarlet Shadows was acclaimed on both sides of the Atlantic. Two further new Troubadour titles are The Adventuress by Daoma Winston (April, £4·95), a romantic whirl through 19th-century America, and Ring of Fate by Joyce Bentley (March, £4·95), a fast-moving story of England on the brink of the Crimean War.

This month sees the publication of Lucy Emmett: A Lady of Quality by Anita Bronson (£4·95), an 18th-century romance of a young heroine's determination to marry where she loves, and who causes those in the highest places to take notice. Rolande, by Clare Darcy, comes from Macdonald Raven in March (£3·95), and is set in the Regency period.

The second volume in Alexandra Hamilton's trilogy based on the life of Nefertiti will be published by Frederick Muller in May. In The Lady of Grace (£4·95) Nefertiti is repudiated by Akhnaten and caught up in the struggle for power between her husband's family and the faction of Horemheb, commander of the Army.

Previously announced for January and now coming from Chatto & Windus in June is William Watson's Beltran in Exile (£4·95), the story of a crusading Knight of the Order of the Temple and his twenty years of exile after the Moslem reconquest of the Holy Land. Cato's War (£5·50) by Guy Wheeler, first announced for November and now due in April, follows the adventures of Colonel Cato in the American War of Independence.

Souvenir Press have the fifth volume in their bestselling "Dragonard" series due in June. The Siege of Dragonard Hill, by Rupert Gilchrist (£4·95), carries forward the story of Richard Abdee and his descendant family of slave-owners to a climax involving black and white Abdees alike.

The Queen and the Welshman (£4·95) by Rosemary Ann Sisson, author of The Stratford Story and Escape From the Dark, is the first part of a trilogy about the Royal House of Tudor and comes from W. H. Allen in April. In The Elder (April, £4·95) Leslie Epstein examines the predicament of the head of one of the Jewish councils the Nazis set up in their occupied territories, was he hero or betrayer? In June comes Alison Yorke's chronicle of the adventures of Anne Bonney: Woman Pirate (£4·95).

Mollie Hardwick's The Atkinson Heritage (£4·25), coming from Severn House this month, is the story of two families caught in the upheaval of the Industrial Revolution. It was to have been published last August.

Dobson Books will be publishing three more of Juliet Dymoke's historical novels: The Lion of Mortimer (£3·95) number 3 in "The Plantagenets" series, and number 4, Lady of the Garter (£3·95), and The White Cockade, a dramatic tale based on Prince Charles' secret visit to London in 1750.

Adventure and Crime

TWO men, lazing on a game-fishing boat during the hottest hours of a Caribbean day, notice a canoe which appears to be adrift. They edge their boat alongside; one reaches in to pull back the tarpaulin which conceals whatever the canoe contains … and, Deutsch say, the reader receives a shock which will remind him of the famous first pages of Jaws. The scene begins Peter Benchley's third book, The Island (Deutsch, May, £3·95). It has already been bought for filming by Zanuck and Brown, the team who made Jaws and Deutsch are confident it will equal, if not surpass, that first success.

Moses Wine, the young Jewish private eye who made his name in The Big Fix, reappears for his fans in Peking Duck, (May, £4·50), by Roger L. Simon. E. V. Cunningham's Japanese-American detective, Masao Masuto, becomes embroiled in a drama of moneyed Los Angeles and its seamier underside in The Case of the Russian Diplomat (March, £3·95), while Sergeant Verity, the Victorian plain-clothes sergeant from Paddington Green, is as eager and unabashed as ever when caught up in a scandal which threatens to blacken the name of Britain in Sergeant Verity and the Blood Royal (April, £4·95).

Heinemann are already able to announce a first printing of over 100,000 copies for the new Wilbur Smith, Wild Justice (£5·50) which they will publish in March. They say that this confirms him as their number one bestseller. They also have the highest expectations of a newcomer to the genre, Stanley Johnson with The Doomsday Deposit (May, £4·50), an adventure story in the tradition of The Andromeda Strain. In Alan Scholefield's Point of Honour (March, £4·50) a man always held up as the epitome of virtue, is found not all that his son had been told and he sets out on a search for the unpalatable truth. Freny Olbrich was given a warm welcome from the critics for her creation of Chief Inspector Desouza of the Bombay C.I.D. and he returns with Sweet and Deadly (July, £4·50).

Emma Cave joins the Heinemann list with The Blood Bond (May, £4·50), which they describe as a macabre but gripping psycho-sexual thriller, and Phyllis Whitney continues with her suspense-romances in The Glass Flame (April, £4·95).

Nicolas Freeling, moved perhaps by the outcry when he allowed his hero van der Valk to die, has come some way towards placating his fans in The Widow (June, £4·90) where he reintroduces his widow Arlette, but she is as she always was, very much her own woman and very resourceful in the life that faces her. Janwillem van de Wetering continues the career of de Grier and Grijpstra his Dutch policemen, this time in America in The Maine Massacre (July, £4·95).

The most celebrated author writing for Cassell this spring is Irving Wallace, whose The Pigeon Project (June, £5·95) is centred upon a scientist who discovers the formula of the elixir of life. In June also come two thrillers involving murder hunts. One is set in a Cambridge college, Academic Murder by Dorsey Fiske (£4·95), and the other is based in Imperial Russia, Russian Roulette by Richard Freeborn (£4·95). Atlantic Convoy by David Williams, is set in 1942 and tells of the men and women caught up in the harrowing realities of the North Atlantic battle (April, £5·25).

Richard Hough's trilogy of World War II flying novels, started so successfully in Angels One-Five, continues with The Fight of the Few (April, £5·25). The Second World War is also the subject of The Bulgarian Horse by Leslie Paul (May, £4·95), and it is set in Palestine. This month comes Jeremy Lloyd's lighthearted The Continuing Adventures of Cap- tain Gregory Dangerfield (£4·95), which follows the adventures of Mr. Potts, who has unwittingly inherited the typewriter on which P. W. Arnold wrote the adventures of Captain Gregory Dangerfield, super-hero.

From Hodder this month comes John Gardner's The Nostradamus Traitor (£4·50), which harks back to the war and the manoeuvres of the Psychological Warfare Executive. Cold is the Sea (now due in March, £5·25) follows the nautical theme of Edward L. Beach's earlier adventure novels, with the submarine Cushing on a secret mission to the Arctic Ocean. Peter Tonkin makes his début on the Hodder list with The Pack (April, £4·50), also set in the Arctic and centred upon an aircrash and a pack of killer whales. William Garner's The Mobius Trip (£4·50) is an inventive thriller in which a security genius is asked to create a security system apparently to guard itself.

PETER BENCHLEY
His new thriller "The Island" is published by Deutsch in May

THOMAS GIFFORD
Hamish Hamilton publish "The Glendower Legacy" in March

Clive Egleton will, Hodder think, continue his success with Backfire (June, £4·95) which has a British agent imprisoned in Siberia after a failed assassination attempt on President Gaddafi. Christopher Hyde's The Wave (June, £4·50), imagines the collapse of the Mica Dam in Canada, and its consequences. Presidential Emergency by Peter Stovall (£4·95) comes this month and has the unlikely plot of a U.S. president about to visit China, whose loyalty becomes suspect. B. F. Cage, the Californian private eye and hero of Peter Israel's novel The French Kiss moves to Paris for The Stiff Upper Lip (£4·50) also due this month. The Joker (March, £4·50) by Helena Osborne is set in London and delves into the worlds of smart society, fringe theatre, Hungarian political exiles and a soft porn tycoon. In Love for the Baron, by John Creasey as Anthony Morton, John Mannering is asked to make an evaluation of a rare collection of antiques and the high value leads to dispute and intrigue. Philip McCutchan's Sunstrike (April, £4·50) again features his Commander Shaw, while The Saint in Trouble, by Leslie Charteris (March, £4·50), has two more adventures for Simon Templar. Donald E. Westlake's A New York Dance (£5·25) is rather different. It is the story of the hunt for a solid gold Aztec priest with sparkling emerald eyes. Written in light, urbane vein, it comes this month. Hodder's list concludes with The Visitor, by Jere Cunningham (May, £4·95), a blending of horror and the occult.

This month Gollancz publish William Hallahan's successor to his well-received Catch Me, Kill Me, Keeper of the Children (£4·95), a bizarre story of supernatural crime; and Joe Gores' thriller based upon a car repossession agency in Gone, No Forwarding (£3·95). March sees the publication of a topical thriller set in South Africa, June Drummond's The Patriots (£4·25); while two incorruptible detectives investigate murder and power politics in, respectively, Judson Philips' A Murder Arranged (£4·50), and A. J. Russell's Pour the Hemlock (£4·75).

Anthony Price's new thriller, Tomorrow's Ghost (April, £4·95) has as heroine an army widow, called on to investigate a disappearance, who finds herself caught up in a murderous intrigue; W. J. Burley's Charles and Elizabeth (April, £4·75) is a Gothic drama of mutual haunting in which a young schoolteacher meets his double from the previous century.

In May come J. R. L. Anderson's Festival (£4·95), featuring Piet Deventer, last seen in A Sprig of Sea Lavender; Peter Way's corridors-of-power exposé, Sunrise (£4·95); Wessel Ebersohn's A Lonely Place to Die (£5·50); Hugh McLeave's spy adventure A Borderline Case (£4·95), in which British Intelligence finds the connection between a deadly virus and a series of explosions in Shangri-La; The Smoking Mirror (£4·50) by Helen McCloy, about espionage and gambling in wartime Dieppe; and Wolftrap (£4·25) by Eric Bercovici, the story of an amnesiac hit-man reconstructing his past, by the author of TV's "Washington: Behind Closed Doors".

The classically-plotted whodunit is alive and well in Lesley Egan's Look Back on Death (March, £3·95), where parapsychology and detection combine to solve an eight-year-old murder; in Simon Brett's A Comedian Dies (April, £4·75), and Kenneth O'Hara's The Searchers of the Dead (May, £4·75), both set in the entertainment world; and in Don Bloch's Double Take (May, £4·95), in which the kidnapping of an American Television producer's wife becomes a media event. Revenge is the keynote of Hillary Waugh's Madman at My Door (April, £4·95), while the coin-collecting market is the deceptively mild setting for several "accidental" deaths in Joel Hinsley's A Killing in Gold (April, £5·25). In Fredric Neuman's The Seclusion Room (May, £5·50), murder and intrigue pervade a psychiatric hospital. Champions of Mystery (April, £5·50) is the 33rd anthology of stories from Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine.

Michael Joseph have some new authors among their established favourites. The 1980 Moscow Olympics form the setting for a thriller coming from a popular author writing under the pseudonym of David Grant. The background to Moscow 5000 (April, £4·95) has been researched with the help of Lynn Davies, Olympic Gold Medal winner at Tokyo. Due this month is Threat Warning Red, (£4·95), a novel by Anthony Fox, the pseudonym for an established Michael Joseph writer of sea books.

In Storm Force to Narvik (April, £4·95) Alexander Fullerton's hero, Nick Everard, is helping to cover the minelaying ships that are trying to prevent a German landing on the Norwegian coast. Television personality Bob Langley's previous two books have been well-received on both sides of the Atlantic. His new thriller, Warlords (March, £4·95), is set in the near future when the C.I.A. launches a plot to destroy the structure of British democracy.

Owen Sela, bestselling author of An Exchange of Eagles, joins the Michael Joseph list in May with The Uadriga Run (£5·50), a blending of fiction and the facts of Lenin's sealed train to Petrograd when the Germans helped the Bolsheviks and altered the directions of history. Raymond Hitchcock's Attack the Lusitania (April, £4·95) revives the old rumour that the sinking of the Lusitania in 1915 was a British, not a German, act designed to bring the U.S.A. into the war.

Michael Brady was trained as an economist and statistician, and this with his absorbing interest in political and military strategy is reflected in American Surrender (May, £5·25), a novel about a Russian plan to take over the West intact without the destruction of a nuclear war. In South African Jon Burmeister's The Glory Hunters (March, £4·95), the action takes place off the coast of Japan aboard a sophisticated American spy ship, masquerading as a rusty old tramp steamer.

Two woman crime writers round off the list. Christianna Brand makes a long overdue return to detection writing with The Rose in Darkness (June, £4·95), and the new Gladys Mitchell, Nest of Vipers, out this month at £4·50, again features her inimitable Dame Beatrice Lestrange Bradley.

Hamish Hamilton's leading title is Craig Jones' Blood Secrets (March, £4·95), a first novel that they say is in the tradition of Rosemary's Baby. Stephen Barlay, author of Blockbuster has Crash Course coming this month (£5·95), about the aircraft industry and a crash landing in Singapore. Walter Winward's Seven Minutes Past Midnight (March, £5·95) follows his success with Hammerstrike, and is set in Germany during the last days of the Third Reich. A new thriller from Thomas Gifford, prize-winning author of The Windchill Factor, is The Glendower Legacy, about a mystery surrounding a murdered Harvard student (March, £4·95).

Two more Simenon thrillers, due this month, are The Night Club and Maigret's Rival (each £4·95). Ed McBain's Calypso (March, £4·95) is a new 87th Precinct Mystery, and a fifth Yellowthread Street mystery is coming from William Marshall, Skulduggery (March, £5·50). black, is Looneyhime, a war novel infused with black humour (May, £5·50).

In April Hutchinson will publish at £7·95 a facsimile of Murder Off Miami by Dennis Wheatley, the crime dossier that made publishing history in the 1930s and is now a collectors' item selling at £40 a copy. Produced in conjunction with Webb & Bower (designers of Diary of an Edwardian Lady), Murder Off Miami comes complete with authentic clues—real hair, cigarette butts and pieces of bloodstained cloth.

Ruth Rendell's new suspense novel Make Death Love Me (May, £4·50) tells what happens whan a bank manager's fantasy about robbing his own bank becomes a grim reality. In Thursday the Rabbi Walked Out (March, £4·95), the seventh in Harry Kemelman's series about Rabbi David Small, he is asked to help solve the local murder of a much-hated anti-Semite. In Mather Again (£4·25), Bruce Graeme's latest book, due this month, a worried wife reports a series of threatening anonymous letters to the police. The Solid Gold Buddha, by W. H. Canaway (March, £3·95), is the story of a scheme to rob a Bangkok temple.

Souvenir Press have The Number to Call Is … by Ray Thompson and Treve Daly (June, £4·95), the story of a television studio commandeered by hijackers; and in May, The Soul Eater by Robert Alexander (£4·95), a first novel of the macabre set in a seemingly idyllic country village.

Collins publish this month, in the Crime Club, Ritchie Perry's Bishop's Pawn (£4·25), Mary Craig's Were He a Stranger (£3·95), and The Penny Murders (£4·25) by Lionel Black. Lead title for March is the new Morris West novel Proteus (£5·25) which Collins are launching with a television advertising campaign. It is the story of one man's crusade against the forces of government terror. Quicksilver (March, £4·95) is Norman Hartley's second novel following the success of The Viking Process. This time Hartley enters the world of computer crime.

Two Crime Club novels for April are Saturday of Glory (£4·25), by David Serafin, David Anthony's Beauty and the Beast (£4·25), and The Eleventh Little Nigger (£4·50), written by two Frenchmen, Jacquemard and Senecal. The plot surrounds a Paris performance of Agatha Christie's Ten Little Niggers and captures the essence of the late queen of crime's style.

Geoffrey Jenkins' Southtrap (May, £5·25) is another sea adventure set in the South Atlantic. Finally, in June, come The Two Faces of Nemesis (£4·50), Antony Melville-Ross' follow up to Blindfold, and Dominic Wiles' Betrayed (£4·95).

Robert Hale lead their list next month with You Must be Kidding (£4·25), by James Hadley Chase who, in the past 17 years, has had 750 foreign editions in 29 languages. The setting is Paradise City on the West Coast of America and the novel features an old favourite for Chase fans, Detective Tom Lepski. John D. MacDonald's The Empty Copper Sea (£4·75) is his latest Travis McGee novel and successor to the bestselling Condominium. In the U.S.A. it is a choice of three book clubs and here B.C.A. has bought the Bookclub and Pan the paperback rights. It comes this month. Another American suspense novel is Gemini Trip by Janice Law (March, £3·95) with the charming but none-too-honest Anna Peters in a sophisticated international intrigue.

Two British writers—a scientist and a journalist—making their début in the crime field are Leon Phillips and Brian Bearshaw, authors of Fire In His Hand (July, £3·95), and Practice Makes Murder (£3·95) which comes this month. For his eighth novel Sinister Charade (June, £4·25) David Mariner has as his narrator a salvage contractor on board a hijacked ocean-going tug, and for her sixth novel Death by Bequest (May, £3·95) Mary McMullen explores the intriguing situation of two people independently competing to dispose of a relative. Penguin have bought the U.S. paperback rights in four of her novels.

Amongst a number of well-established thriller writers with new novels, all at £3·95, are The Sixth Raid by Douglas Enefer (May), Thieves' Kitchen by John Newton Chance (May), Down Among The Dead Men by Evelyn Harris (April), Aftershock by Lillian O'Donnell (July), and The Watcher by Collin Wilcox (June).

Macmillan London open their list with Donald MacKenzie's story about the confrontation of a corrupt senior police officer in Raven Settles a Score (£4·25) which is due this month; the disappearance of young women in a Suffolk village in the '20s in A Tomb of Flowers (£4·25) by Mary Ingate; and Hooky Hefferman's Hooky and the Villainous Chauffeur (£4·25), which involves suicide, murder, adultery, revenge and a touch of comedy.

March sees the publication of Boudapesti 3 by Desmond Lowden (£4·25), a complex story which unfolds in the streets of Athens. Smooth Justice (£4·25) by Michael Underwood is a whodunit in the classic last page dénouement style. This Fatal Writ (£4·25) by Sara Woods is a tale of treason and murder. The Conservative leader in the House of Lords, Bertie Denham, makes his début as a novelist with The Man Who Lost His Shadow (March, £4·95) in which a public figure becomes enmeshed in a profitable and ruthless conspiracy.

There are two novels coming from John Wainwright: Tension (£4·25), a minute by minute account of a bank raid, and Duty Elsewhere (June, £4·25), in which a police commando operate outside normal routines to trap a villain. Also in April comes Dead Game (£4·25) by Gerald Hammond, a whodunit set against the background of guns and poaching in the Highland Glens. In The Three Colonels (May, £4·25) Patrick Cosgrave has Colonel Cheyney trying to prevent London becoming a battleground for terrorists. In The Menace Within (May, £4·25), by Ursula Curtiss, a pleasant duty turns into a nightmare of violence. Last Movement by Nicholas Goller (May, £4·25) is a black comedy, and finally, in June, Edwin Leather has Rupert Conway embroiled in The Mozart Score (£4·25), and there is a cunning plot based on espionage by computer in Peter Fox's The Mantis Conspiracy (£4·25).

Macdonald & Jane's head their list with Project Pangolin by Peter Driscoll (May, £4·95). Set in the underworld of Hong Kong it recounts the plans of a discredited journalist to kidnap a C.I.A. chief. From Macdonald Raven comes Storozhevoy, a spy thriller, by David Gurr (June, £5·95). Also in June, and another new Raven, comes White Falcon by James McVean (£4·50), a novel of suspense set in the Arctic. The Great Sky and the Silence by James S. Rand, previously scheduled for late last year will now come out in April (£5·50). In March comes The Puma Quest by Michael Hastings (£4·95), set on a jungle-clad island.

Peter Levi's The Head in the Soup (May, £4·95) leads Constable's suspense novels. It is set in the Greece of the Colonels and involves a chase to discover Jewish treasure. June Thomson's new Inspector Finch novel Deadly Relations (£4·50) comes this month and investigates the complex relationships of Essex country people, following the discovery of a murdered girl in a field of blackcurrant bushes. Michael Allen's second detective novel, Spence at the Blue Bazaar (£4·95), also this month, is about the hunt for the murderer of a stripper. Ted Willis has written of it: "Has the depth of a good novel ... With this book Michael Allen puts himself in the Top Ten of crimewriters."

Two New York suspense novels, J. F. Burke's Crazy Woman Blues (£3·95) is about the disappearance of an illusionist's assistant in a Broadway nightclub and is another February title, and Robert Gillespie's The Crossword Mystery (April, £4·25) involves the murder of a crossword puzzle editor of a daily paper.

Peter Hill sets Scotland Yard's Commander Dice against the Triad cells of London's Chinatown in The Washermen (£4·10), the competing

S.I.S. is thrown in for good measure. It comes from Peter Davies in June. Kit Thackeray's Counterflood (April, £4·25) is set in the Amazon jungle, with chases, fights, love and adventure. Black Jack (May, £4·25), a first novel by journalist Geoffrey Watson, has a financial troubleshooter kidnapped by West German terrorists and forced to cover up a scandal in the United Nations.

Jonathan Cape announce the publication of Brian Freemantle's new novel, The Inscrutable Charlie Muffin (June, £4·50), to coincide with release of the first Muffin film. With world sales for the ex-foreign editor of the Daily Mail's books already topping a million copies, Euston Films and Thames Television have now jointly bought film rights in Charlie Muffin for an international feature film directed by Jack Gold, who made Aces High. Together with a major Charlie Muffin television series, it is one of the biggest deals of its kind ever signed. Coming in April is Dear Judgment (£4·95) by John Crosby in which the Mafia put up two super-secret U.S. fighter jets for bidding between the shamefaced Air Force who lost them in the first place, a foreign country anxious to swing the balance of power and an ageing billionaire of the Howard Hughes school. Stanley Ellin's new thriller Star Light, Star Bright (July, £3·95) brings detective Johnny Milano to a lavish Florida retreat for movie celebrities, where murder threats have been flying and the price for Milano's security is $10,000 a day.

Secker & Warburg head their crime fiction with Backfire is Hostile! (May, £4·50) by James Barnett, the ex-C.I.D. Commander whose first novel, Head of the Force, was well received. It is set in the shadowy area where the law collides with treason. Also following up his successful first novel, The Spoils of War, is Douglas Scott with The Gifts of Artemis (March £4·95), centring on a mission to try to unite the Resistance in a final bid to outwit the occupying forces. Peter Niesewand has set his new novel A Member of the Club (March, £4·50) in South Africa and the Mozambique border areas where the horror of apartheid's front line defences leads into a full-scale invasion. Also for March is The Wages of Zen by James Melville (£4·50) in which a Japanese policeman makes his début.

For May, The Four Hundred, by Stephen Sheppard, is a novel about an audacious fraud on the Bank of England in Victorian times and takes the reader from the newly United States, through European casinos, Rio de Janeiro, and on Threadneedle Street. Death Watch by David Creed (May £4·90) is a story of passion, betrayal and love played out against the background of the Andes, the setting for Mr. Creed's previous successful novel, The Watcher of Chimor.

An Alison Press book coming this month is Across the Water (£4·50), by Stewart Binnie, which takes a look at the roots of terrorism through the story of a widow who returns from Belfast but finds that the violence follows her. Also from the Alison Press is a new Dudley Pope novel, Convoy (May, £4·50) in which he describes action, sabotage and espionage at sea in the Battle of Atlantic.

For Verdict of Thirteen: A Detection Club Anthology (£4·95), 13 famous writers, ranging from Dick Francis to P. D. James, have each produced a story, and, Faber say, none have been published in Britain before.

In Douglas Reeman's new adventure which Hutchinson will publish in April, A Ship Must Die (£4·95), a veteran ship with a makeshift crew sets out to hunt down a German raider. Richard Cox, author of Sam 7, has written The Botticelli Madonna (May, £4·95) in which a masterpiece, looted in the last war, comes to light and brings with it intrigue and violence. Falling Angel (£4·95), by William Hjortsberg, comes this month and is a story of both detection and the supernatural. It is highly commended by Stephen King who wrote the bestseller The Exorcist.

The Weidenfeld list includes John Wingate's The Seawayman, set in the exotic but corrupt port of Singapore (April, £4·95); a story by Wilfred Greatorex which recounts "the robbery of the century", Quicksand (March, £4·95), and two political thrillers set against the background of international espionage, The Spike (June, £4·95), by political journalists Arnaud de Borchgrave and Robert Moss, and The Deadly Documents (June, £4·50), by Michael Barak whose previous successes have included The Enigma Sacrifice and The Spy who Died Twice.

Joyce Porter's admirers will be pleased to hear that the Hon. Con. has embarked on a new criminal investigation in The Cart Before the Crime, (£4·95), out this month.

Eyre Methuen have three titles for next month: Stephen Knight's first novel Requiem at Rogano (£5·50), set in Edwardian London and medieval Italy; Karen Campbell's The Bells of St. Martin (£4·50), a romantic thriller in which an air crash leads to a world of deception, violence and nightmare; and Tasman Beattie's Judas Flight (£5·50), an adventure involving the Tongs. In April comes Hounds and Jackals (£5·50), Barbara Wood's second novel, set in Egypt. Nuclear Letters (£4·95), by Graham Lancaster, is published in May and is a thriller of international espionage set in London and the Middle East. The Olympic Sleeper by Tom Barling (June, £4·95), revolves upon the seizure of an atomic device by Palestinian terrorists.

The latest in a long line of successes from Robert Ludlum will be, Granada say, The Matarese Circle, a story of a terrorist conspiracy, coming in June (£4·95). The Assault on Mavis A, by Norman Stahl, is another adventure with a besieged oil rig as its theme (July, £4·95).

Satellite Books lead their list this month with Andrew Crofts' first novel, Crown Kidnap (£4·75), the story of the kidnapping of Prince Charles by political fanatics a week before his Coronation as the new King. In May comes Dillibe Onyeama's Operation Pigment Power (£4·50), described as "a hilarious erotic saga that does for multi-ethnic Britain what Fear of Flying did for women".

From New English Library comes Singled Out (March, £4·95), Steven Witney's story of a young, rich, good-looking man who could easily be every girl's dream, except for the fact that he is a manic murderer. Goodbye Chairman Mao (April, £4·95) has a Chinese diplomatic agent found murdered on a London street, a fragment of apparently uncrackable code in his pocket. Peter Heath's Night Trains (May, £4·95) is set in a railway depot in America's west and its action follows the theft of a freight car loaded with plutonium. Based in Liverpool, and ranging as far as Hong Kong and Toronto, Harry Arvay's The Society of Fear (June, £4·95) is the sequel to the bestselling Triad 21.

Robin Maugham's 16th novel The Dividing Line (£4·95), coming from W. H. Allen in May, is a complex tale of inheritance, switched identity, sexual licence, and insanity. Following an earthquake in Agadir, Simon Perry, recovering from injuries in hospital, accepts the identity of a man he has seen buried alive. Straw Boss (£4·95), by Stephen Longstreet, is the story of a power hungry but dedicated union leader, who comes into fateful conflict with the Mafia. Norman Garbo's Cabal (June, £4·95) has as its climax the Israeli pre-emptive strike of the Six Day War.

In Ester, Ruth and Jennifer by Jack Davies (March, £4·95), a supply ship, production platform and the largest oil rig in the world become the objects of a £25-million ransom demand to the Government when mines are placed around the sunken base of the rig. It is shortly to be made into a major film starring Roger Moore. Six minute silicon chips which, when programmed, can control lethal missiles, are stolen from an American computer. A Soviet diplomat's flat in London is torn apart and the chips are found, but they are blank and therefore totally useless. So why were they taken? False Flags (April, £4·95) by Noel Hynd provides the answer.

Programme for a Puppet (May, £4·95) by Roland Perry, also uses computers, or rather, a giant corporation that manufactures them, for a theme of technological take-over. Salt Mine (May, £4·50) is David Lippincott's new novel of terror, and some adroit black comedy, in which dissenters seize a part of the Kremlin.

Two additions to Elek's new "Ibex Crime" series are Funeral March for Siegfried (April, £4·95), by Audrey Williamson, which introduces opera-loving, racegoing Detective-Superintendent Richard York; and Kisses Leave No Fingerprints (£4·50), by Mike Fredman, which, previously announced for January, will now be published this month.

This month Arthur Barker have the first of three television tie-ins, Out (£4·50), by Max Austin, a novelisation of the series abut the ex-convict Frank Ross. It is followed in March and April by two books from "The Professionals" series, Stake Out and Hunter Hunted (each £4·95), both by Ken Blake.

Diamonds, a dishonest fortune-teller, and a murder investigation, are some of the problems the less-than-reputable Johnny Baxter is up against in James Grant's Tightrope (£4·95), which Frederick Muller publish in March. The same month introduces the first in a series of thrillers by C. Macartney Filgate, featuring pilot Charlotte Eliot. In Bravo Charlie (£4·95), Charlotte finds herself involved in an audacious prison rescue in the Greek islands.

Severn House publish this month The New York Connection (£4·25) by Robin Moore (author of The French Connection) and Milt Machlin, in which a New York policeman searches for ninety million dollars worth of stolen French heroin. In June comes The Chinese Ultimatum by Robin Moore and Edward McGhee (£4·50), a political thriller about a rapidly escalating World War III.

Severn House publish in April Charles Whiting's T Force Massacre at Metz (£3·50). It is in a new "T Force" series. In their series of television tie-ins they have The Sandbaggers by Ian Mackintosh (April, £3·75) a story of the British Secret Service; The Professionals: Long Shot by Kenneth Bulmer, another volume in the adventures of Bodie and Doyle (May, £3·75); and Target: The Bronze Heist by Michael Feeney Callan (June, £3·75), a story based on one of Detective Superintendent Steve Hackett's most celebrated cases.

Science Fiction

FREDERIK Pohl, having won almost every science fiction award possible with his last novel, Gateway, describes the founding of man's first interstellar colony in Jem: The Making of a Utopia (May, £5·95), which leads the Gollancz list. Thomas M. Disch straddles the genres with On Wings of Song (£5·50, this month), a fable about the flight of the human spirit, set in the 21st century. The innumerable devotees of Frank Herbert's Dune books will be glad to hear that all three are to be published in one volume as The Great Dune Trilogy (March, £6·95).

Bob Shaw's Dagger of the Mind (May, £4·75) and James Gunn's The Dreamers (June, £5·50) both deal with the potential for good or ill in drug experimentation. Richard Cowper's Profundis (March, £4·75) is a comic romp set in a vast submarine that has alone survived a nuclear holocaust. In The Stars in Shroud (June, £5·50), Gregory Benford describes the conflict between Earth's first interstellar empire and a mysterious enemy, the Quarn. Three new collections of stories from major authors—Robert Silverberg's The Songs of Summer (April, £4·95), Ian Watson's The Very Slow Time Machine (£4·50) and Algis Budrys' Blood and Burning (£4·75) which both come this month—complete the list.

Leading Sidgwick & Jackson's list this month is Anne McCaffrey's White Dragon (£5·95). It continues her tales of the dragonriders of Pern. White Dragon has sold over sixty thousand copies in America and been on all the major bestseller charts since publication. Sidgwick & Jackson are republishing her previous two novels Dragonsong (£5·95), and Dragonsinger (£5·95), at the same time. Stardancer by Spider and Jeanne (£4·95) and Double Shadow (£5·95) by Frederic Turner will be published in April; Xeno (£4·95) by D. F. Jones completes the list in June.

Dobson Books' The Prisoner, by Thomas M. Disch (£4·25), is based on the successful television series, which should attract for it an immediate audience. The fate of the universe is at stake in Richard A. Lupoff's The Triune Man (£4·25), a story in the colourful tradition of A. E. Van Vogt, and the dice are loaded against mankind in Colin Kapp's The Chaos Weapon (£4·25), a device that can alter probability and is wiping out all the best brains. Love and hostile aliens conflict in The Horde by Joseph Green (£4·25), and mind-reading robots provide a strange twist to The Worlds of Sector P by a new name, K. D. Franklin. A high standard of varied, original stories will be found in Universe 7 (£4·25) and Universe 8 (£4·25), both edited by Terry Carr.

Robert Hale publish several novels by authors well-known to aficionados of the genre including two by Eric C. Williams. Largesse from Triangulum, coming this month, describes the reactions of an exploring party on discovering Earth to be a stable, primitive society unwilling to discuss the past. In Time for Mercy (June) a time traveller comes back to stop the murder of a woman important to the future, but fails. Another familiar name is Lloyd Biggle Jr, whose The Silent Sky (March) consists of nine wide-ranging short stories. Stellar Assignment by E. C. Tubb (April) tells of a 21st-century mission to find a billionaire's daughter lost in space.

In Out of Time by David G. Penny (April) a society that values conformity above all else regards time trippers as an unwanted reminder of the past. May sees the publication of Julia Riding's first novel Gabion, which follows the fortunes of an orphan living on a planet barely touched by the fringes of Earth's civilisation; and The Sea of Rings by John Paton, which tells of two men's break for liberty from the Rings of Saturn. Other titles are The Backwater Man by David Clements (March), and (both July) The Frisk Donation by Robert Hendrie Wilson, and Prelude to Exodus by Mark Jales. All Robert Hale's science fiction novels are priced at £4·25.

William Kimber's first science fiction novel, by B. A. Young, The Colonists from Space (May, £4·50) is also this distinguished author's début in this field. Combining satire and parody, it is set in England in the foreseeable future.

John Lymington's A Caller from Overspace will be published by Hodder in August (£4·50). A small Cornish fishing town provides the setting and strange happenings presage an alien invasion. Edmund Cooper's short story collection Jupiter Laughs (July, £4·25), presents a great variety of subjects and moods.

Lee Harding commissioned twelve leading SF writers (Brian Aldiss, Kevin McKay, etc.) to each supply a story on a given theme. The result is The Rooms of Paradise (£4·95) which Quartet Books publish this month.

April sees the publication by Michael Joseph of a previously unpublished John Wyndham novel, WEB (£4·95). Like The Day of the Triffids, WEB explores the threat of a lower species, in this case spiders, making a giant step in evolution.

Aries I (June, £4·95), edited by John Grant, marks a new departure for David & Charles. A new science fiction anthology of original stories, it includes work by Bob Shaw, Christopher Priest, Steven Spruill and many others.

Macdonald & Jane's Raven, Parsival or A Knight's Tale by Richard Monarco (£5·95) is a story of the quest for innocence and the struggle against evil and will be published this month.

Andre Norton: A Primary and Secondary Annotated Bibliography by Roger C. Schlobin is coming from George Prior in March (£15·95).

Severn House have a book by James Blish, The Night Shapes (£3·75) previously unpublished in hardcover, coming in July.

LITERATURE and CRITICISM

OXFORD publish A Chaucer Glossary (April, £7·50, paper £3·50) by Norman Davis, Douglas Gray, Patricia Ingham and Anne Wallace-Hadrill, which explains the meanings of words and phrases used by Chaucer in ways unfamiliar in modern English. In June comes the first volume of The Letters and Prose Writings of William Cowper (£20) edited by James King and Charles Ryskamp, covering the years 1750 to 1781. The 2nd edition of The Letters of William and Dorothy Wordsworth continues with Part 2 The Later Years: 1829–35 (June, £25). A new volume in the Clarendon edition of the novels of the Brontës is Shirley by Charlotte Brontë (April, £19·50) edited by Herbert Rosengarten and Margaret Smith. Stephen Donadio's Nietzsche, Henry James and the Artistic Will (May, £7·50) suggests a relationship between these two writers and examines an important moment in intellectual history.

Continuing the "Selected Tales from Chaucer" series, Cambridge publish Chaucer's Reeve's Prologue and Tale (May, paper £1·40), which also includes the "Cook's Prologue" and the fragment of the unfinished "Cook's Tale". The text is accompanied by a glossary, notes on difficult passages and a critical introduction.

In April comes the first volume of a projected eight-volume edition of The Letters of D. H. Lawrence (£23·50) edited by James T. Boulton and covering the period 1901–13. A "distinguished addition" to the corpus of criticism on T. S. Eliot is A. D. Moody's Thomas Stearns Eliot: Poet (February, £13) which concentrates on elucidating the poetry. In The Literary Criticism of F. R. Leavis (April, £13·50) R. P. Bilan places Leavis' literary criticism in the context of his wider social concerns and of his religion; while J. P. Stern in A Study of Nietzsche (April, £10) offers a careful exegesis of Nietzsche's writings and takes issue with their language and literary forms.

V. S. Pritchett's essays on European novelists, The Mythmakers (April, £5·50) from Chatto, range from Stendhal and Dostoevsky to Borges and Solzhenitsyn. The Collected Works of Isaac Rosenberg (£9·50), edited and introduced by Ian Parsons with a foreword by Siegfried Sassoon, will now be published in February. A new edition of Reading and Discrimination (£4·50, paper £2·50) by Denys Thompson and Stephen Tunnicliffe is also due in February.

Heading Faber's list is The Poetic Achievement of Ezra Pound by Michael Alexander (£7·95)—a "full, lucid and judicious" introduction to a dominating figure in the evolution of modern poetry. Also due is A Student's Guide to the Selected Poems of Ezra Pound by Peter Brooker (£7·25, paper £3·95), in the same format as previous guides on Eliot and Beckett.

Wordsworth is rightly celebrated as a poet of human kindness, but he is also a great poet of human consciousness and its efforts to make sense of the universe; in Wordsworth in Time (£8·50) Dr. John Beer studies this side of his achievement and illuminates many otherwise obscure points.

Peter Mudford's The Art of Celebration is a study of a number of major English and European writers in the period 1860–1914, including Hardy, Conrad, Mann, Ibsen, Chekhov, Forster, Péguy, Shaw and Wells. Clive James' At the Pillars of Hercules (£7·95) is his second collection of critical essays.

In Louis Ferdinand Céline (£15) Dr. Merlin Thomas presents the works of this highly original writer in a serious yet readable manner to English students of French literature. Two other Farrar, Straus & Giroux titles on the Faber list are the concluding volumes in the uniform edition of the works of Witter Bynner, Prose Pieces and Letters (each £8·25).

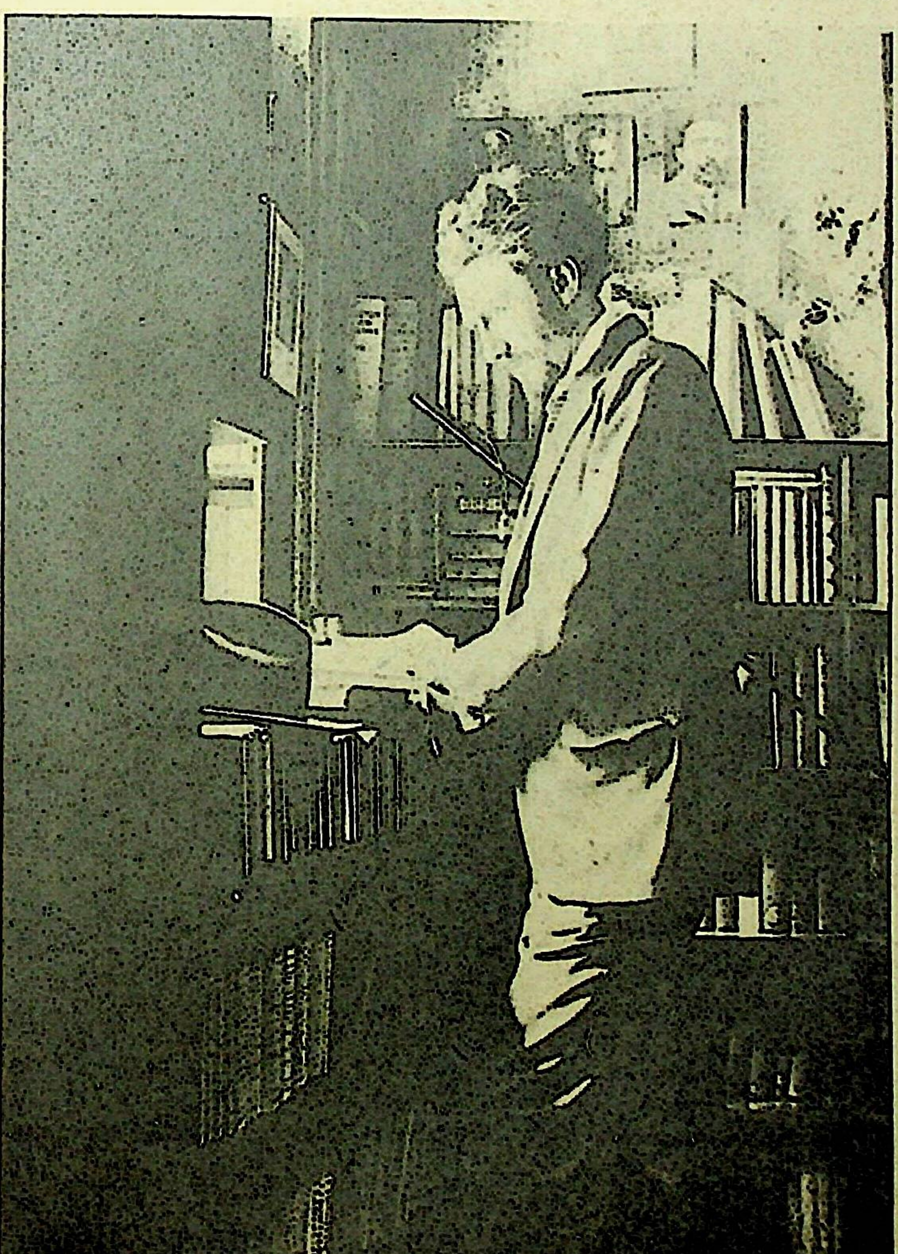
Macmillan Press publish Jane Nitzsche's Tolkien's Art (April, £8·95) which traces the development of Tolkien's English mythology. Other titles include Hardy and the Sister Arts (February, £8·95); D. H. Lawrence and the Idea of the Novel by John Worthen (May, £8·95), an examination of the changing way in which Lawrence saw his novels; and Ioan Williams' The Idea of the Novel in Europe 1600–1800 (February, £10), which traces the early development of the novel. Two new titles in the "Casebook" series are Jonson: Every Man in his Humour and The Alchemist by R. V. Holdsworth (February, £6·25, paper £2·95) and A. P. Hinchliffe's Drama Criticism—Developments since Ibsen (May, £6·50, paper £2·95). The centenary of E. M. Forster's birth is marked by E. M. Forster—A Human Exploration: Centenary Essays (February, £10) edited by G. K. Das and John Beer, a collection of specially-commissioned essays, and G. Cavaliero's A Reading of E. M. Forster (April, £8·95) which examines Forster's personality and background in relation to his work.

From Routledge & Kegan Paul comes Paradise Lost and the Classical Epic by Francis Blessington (July, £5·50), which describes the relationship between Milton's poem and the classical epic form. Edited by Ian Small, The Aesthetes: A Sourcebook (April, £7·95, paper £4·25), assembles major documents of the Aesthetic movement and the principal critical reactions to it. Charles Proudfit's Landor as Critic (March, £8) discusses Landor as both critic and poet. The Cultural Critics by Lesley Johnson (June, £8·50) examines the concept of culture over the last century as embodied in the work of Matthew Arnold, Raymond Williams and F. R. Leavis. The Veil and the Mask (£7) by J. G. Merquior is a collection of essays on culture and ideology from a sociological viewpoint, and New Phoenix Wings: Literature and Reparation by Simon Stuart (June, £8) studies a number of authors from a Kleinian point of view.



Ezra Pound, the subject of two books on the Faber list: "The Poetic Achievement of Ezra Pound" by Michael Alexander, and "A Student's Guide to the Selected Poems of Ezra Pound" by Peter Brooker

CINEMA

Oxford publish two new film books in May. Eugene Rosow's Born to Lose: The Gangster Film in America (£10·75) shows how the genre developed out of, and reflected, American society and culture. There is also an updated second edition of P. Adams Sitney's Visionary Film: The American Avant-Garde 1943–1978 (paper, £2·95).

From Secker & Warburg in June comes Cinema: A Critical Dictionary (2 vols, £12) a study of the major film-makers edited by Richard Roud. Distinguished international film critics have written articles on the major film-makers, as well as the genres and schools. For February, Kevin Brownlow's The War, The West, and the Wilderness (£12·50 to 30th June, £15 thereafter) presents the handful of cinematographers, directors and actors who, from 1905, ventured out of the studio to film actual events and distant places.

From Yoseloff/Tantivy come Close-Ups: From The Golden Age of the Cinema (£12·95) by John R. Finch and Paul A. Elby, which contains 484 star portraits from the Jorifin Collection, with brief biographies for each; The Hollywood Professionals: Volume 6, Capra, Cukor, Brown (£6) by Allen Estrin; Eileen Sheahan's Moving Pictures (£4·95, paper £2·50); Horses In The Movies (£7·95) by H. F. Hintz, and The Singing Cowboys (£10) by David Rothel, a nostalgic look at popular musical Westerns.

In March Macmillan Press publish the International Index to Film Periodicals 1977 (£20), edited by Frances Thorpe, a guide to the articles that appeared during the year in the world's 80 most important film magazines.

From George Prior comes a further selection of film reference guides, including Frederick Wiseman (March, £9·50), Mauritz Stiller (March, £9·50), Jean Renoir (March, £9·50), and Robert Altman (June, £9·50).

In March Scolar Press publish Cinema and History (£12, paper £5·95), subtitled British Newsreels and the Spanish Civil War; by Anthony Aldgate, it provides fresh material for the great debate on the use of film as a primary source of reporting. Noel Burch's To The Distant Observer (£10, paper £4·95) carries its immediate study of form and meaning in Japanese cinema through to an examination of western as well as Japanese film language and ultimately to an analysis of the nature of cinema itself.

April sees the publication of Salamander Books' The Illustrated Encyclopedia of the World's Great Movie Stars and Their Films (£7·95), distributed by New English Library. The author, Ken Wlaschin, is the American-born programme director of the London Film Festival. Portraits of over 500 of the world's film stars are grouped in three sections, covering the years from 1900.

Eyre Methuen publish a new expanded edition of World Cinema—A Short History by David Robinson in June. It was previously announced for January.

Gordon Fraser report that the previously announced Crucified Heroes—the Films of Sam Peckinpah (£7·50) will now appear in April.

In February from Batsford (previously announced for October) comes An Illustrated Who's Who in British Films (£10·50) by Denis Gifford.

Previously announced but now coming in June is Angus & Robertson's guide to the cinema Great Movie Stars (£12) by David Shipman.

ART

IN February Thames & Hudson publish John Onian's Art and Thought in the Hellenistic Age (£10·50), "a radical reinterpretation which no future criticism will be able to ignore"; Diane Waldman's Mark Rothko (£18) and Sirarpie der Nersessian's Armenian Art (£35). March has Roberto Tassi's Graham Sutherland: The Complete Graphic Work (£25), previously announced for autumn 1978, and Apocalypse (£45) by Frederick van der Meer, a study of the works of art inspired by the "Book of Revelation".

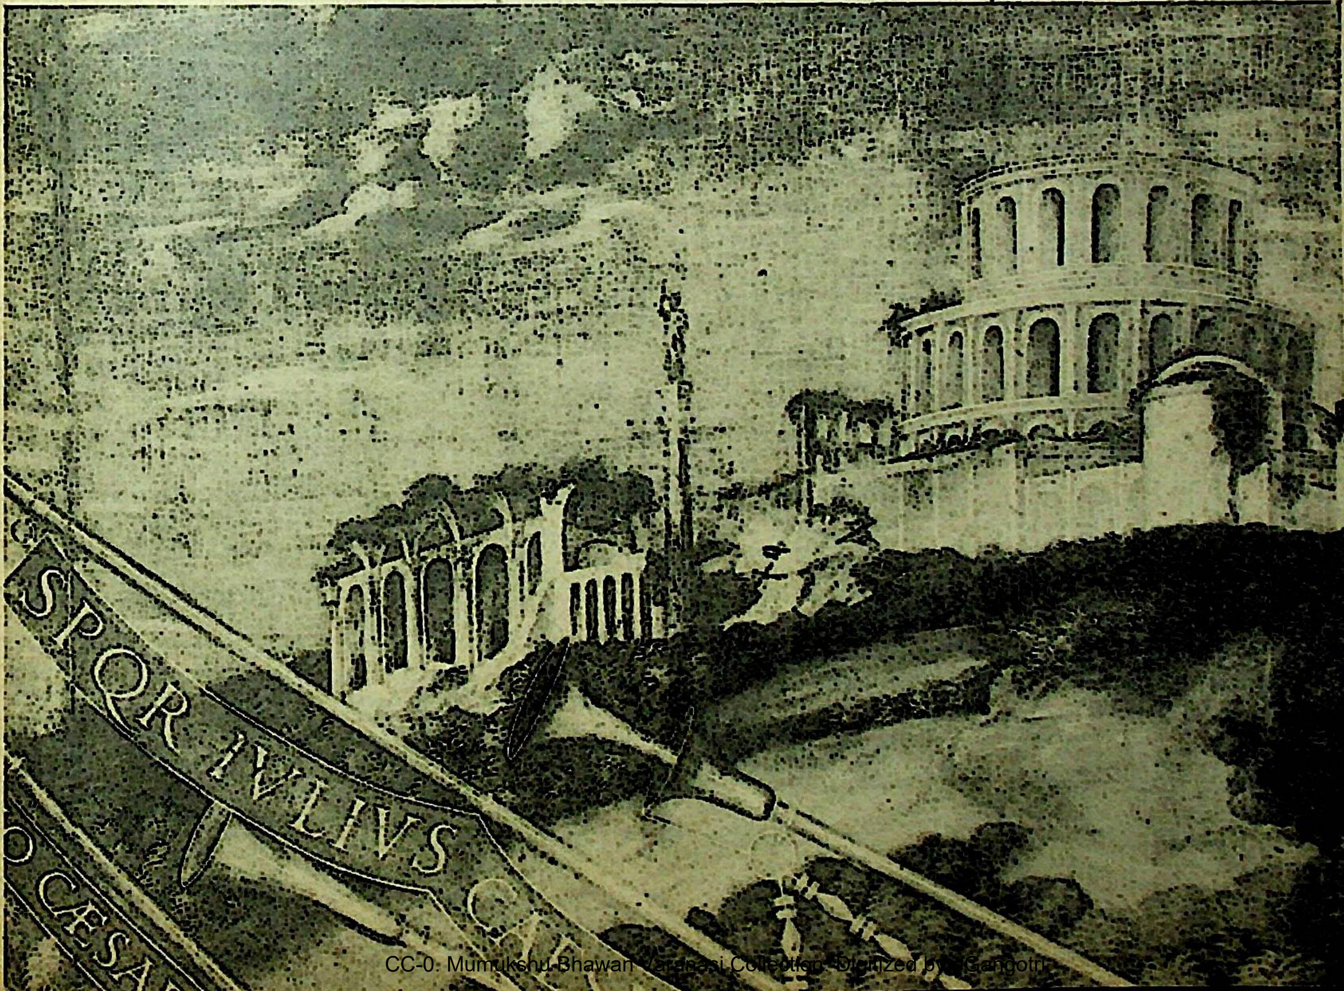
Enchanted World: The Magic of Pictures (April, £3·95) by Bryan Holme demonstrates the extraordinary power of enchantment which many paintings exude. In the "World of Art Library", John Russell's Francis Bacon (April, £5·50, paper £2·95) is based on conversations with the artist which extended over several years. The Arts of Ancient Georgia (April, £12) by Rusudan Mepisashvili and Vakhtang Tsintsadze is an illustrated study with a foreword by David M. Lang. Gordon Brotherston's Image of the New World (May, £9) portrays life on the American continent through the early writing systems of the ancient Mexicans, the sandpainting of the Navajo Indians, and similar hieroglyphic texts, while Yantra (May, £10) by Madhu Khanna examines the Hindu power diagram which is used for ritual and meditation. Roy Strong's The Renaissance Garden in England (June, £12) examines the great formal gardens of Tudor and Stuart England. Also in June German Karginov's Rodchenko studies one of the key figures in Russian art in the years surrounding the Revolution.

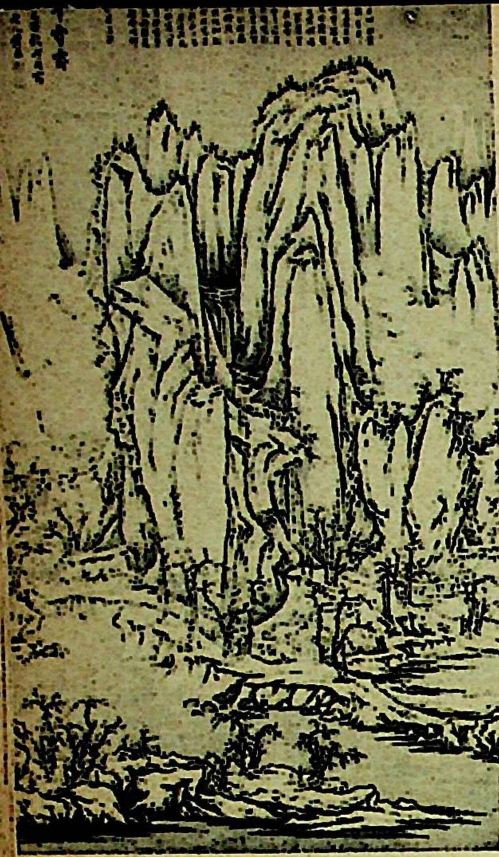
February sees the launch by Phaidon of a new series which introduces the decisive periods and styles of painting in the 20th century. Each volume places the subject in its political and sociological setting as well as underlining its historical importance. The first two are Cubism and Futurism by M. and D. Gerhardus and Naive Painting by Anatole Jakovsky (each £6·95 with full colour throughout).

Continuing their "Giant Art Paperback" series is Chinese Painting by

One of Frans Hal's group portraits from "The Age of Rembrandt and Vermeer" from Phaidon in March at £8·95

Architectural detail from Canvas IV of "Mantegna's Triumphs of Caesar at Hampton Court" from Andrew Martindale's volume in the Catalogues of Paintings in the Royal Collection (Harvey Miller)



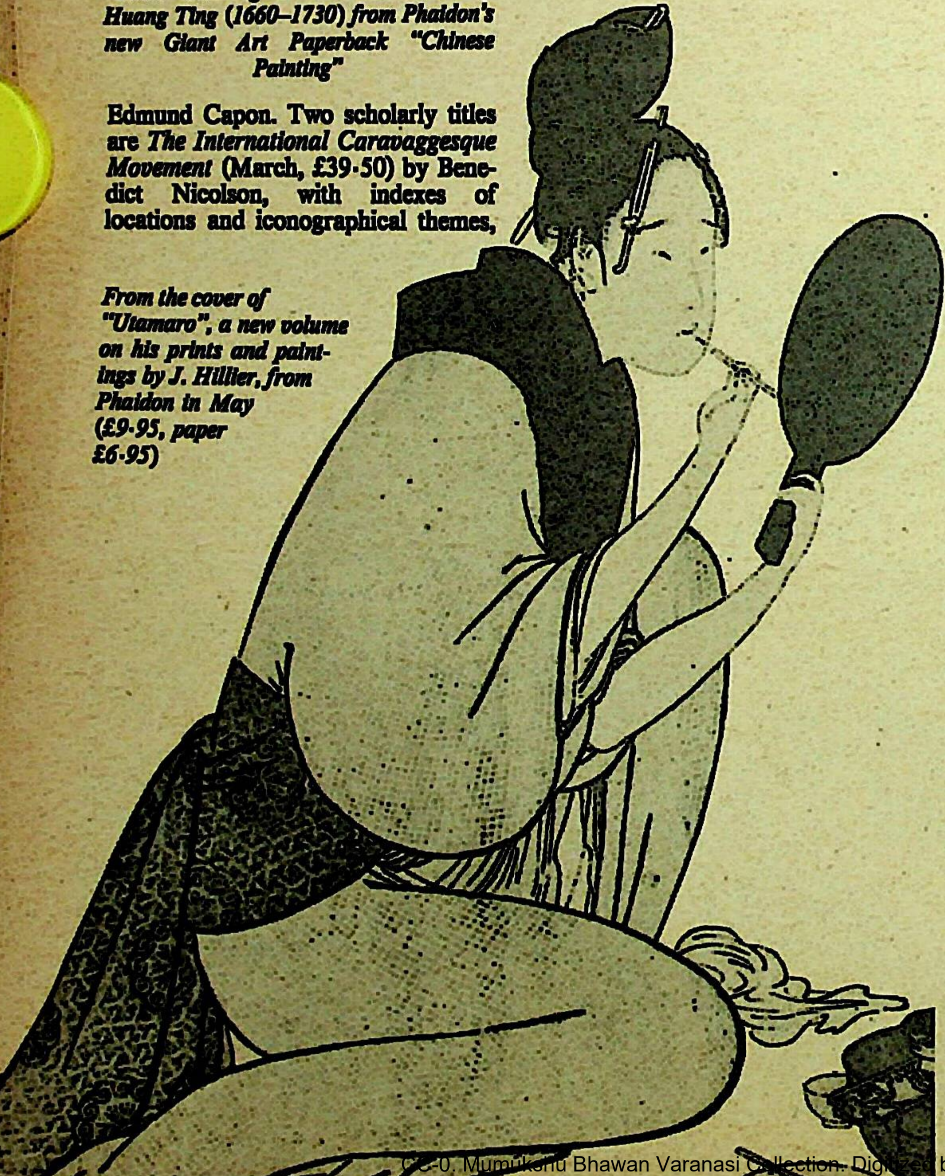


"Snow Clearing in the Mountains" by Huang Ting (1660–1730) from Phaidon's new Giant Art Paperback "Chinese Painting"

Edmund Capon. Two scholarly titles are The International Caravaggesque Movement (March, £39·50) by Benedict Nicolson, with indexes of locations and iconographical themes, and 240 illustrations, and Gothic Architecture Transformed: The English Decorated Style (June, £15) by Jean Bony, which is based on the Wrightsman Lectures given by the author in 1969.

In March another series, the "Phaidon Gallery", is launched. The 12 paperback originals are illustrated studies of the major themes in the history of Western art. Young art historians have been briefed to suggest new ideas about their subjects while taking note of all recent research. The first four titles, all published in April, are Landscape Painting by Bo Jeffares, Modern Painting by Hugh Adams, Nude Painting by Michael Jacobs and Religious Painting by Stephanie Brown. Each is £2·95 and all contain full-page reproductions. Two studies of artists who at present are undergoing revivals are Whistler by Frances Spalding in May and Stanley Spencer by Duncan Robinson in June (£5·95 each).

Painting the Town (May, paper, £3·95) by Graham Cooper and Douglas Sargeant is an illustrated record of the impulse of ordinary people to embellish and personalise their environment. The text contains a history of outdoor painting, a case study involving student participation, a technical section on how to paint a mural and, finally, a list of the best street paintings to be seen. In complete contrast The Illuminated Manuscript (June, £5·95) by Janet Backhouse is an illustrated history from the Lindisfarne Gospels to the atlases made during the early 16th century. All the examples are drawn from the collection of the British Library where the author is Assistant Keeper. Particularly for students is a new reference book, A Time Chart of Art History (July, £6·95, paper £3·95) by Roslin Nair, which provides a chronological layout showing art movements from Paleolithic times to the present. There are also more than 150 single-page pictorial studies to illustrate the key masterpieces of important styles in the history of art.



From the cover of "Utamaro", a new volume on his prints and paintings by J. Hillier, from Phaidon in May (£9·95, paper £6·95)

Heading the Studio Vista list is The National Portrait Gallery in Colour (£6·95, paper £4·95) edited by Deputy Curator Richard Ormond and produced in association with the Gallery; 200 of the best portraits are shown in colour, and 100 in black and white. March sees The Art and Craft of Handmade Paper (£6·95) by Vance Studley, describing fundamental techniques, equipment and materials. Several projects are suggested including collage and layering, and a section on history places the craft in context with both the early Chinese papermakers and today's huge industry. An anthology of posters produced by Klimt, Schiele, Lefler, Klinger and their contemporaries is the basis of Nicholas Powell's Vienna Secession Posters (June, £6·95).

Calligraphic Styles (February, £2·95) by Tom Gourdie is a practical survey of the alphabets used over the last thousand years, with an analysis of the construction of each letter and examples given from the major calligraphers practising today. Twentieth-Century Advertising (June, £12·50) edited by Felix Gluck and Philip Kleinman combines illustrations showing the breadth of advertising art during the 20th century with essays by experts. A self-explanatory title is Big Art: Megamurals and Supergraphics (February, £3·95) edited by David Greenberg, Kathryn Smith and Stuart Teacher.

In April Macmillan London publish Balthus (£55) by Jean Leymarie, which includes 51 colour plates and 24 reproductions of drawings. American Painting—From the Colonial Period to the Present (June, £30) by Jules David Prown and Barbara Rose, traces the conflicts in American painting in the early part of the century, and the development of pop art through to the present-day shift back towards conservatism.

Following his Sketching and Painting F. C. Johnston has written The Complete Painter (July, £5·95), an instructional book on oil-painting for beginners covering landscapes, still life and flower painting.

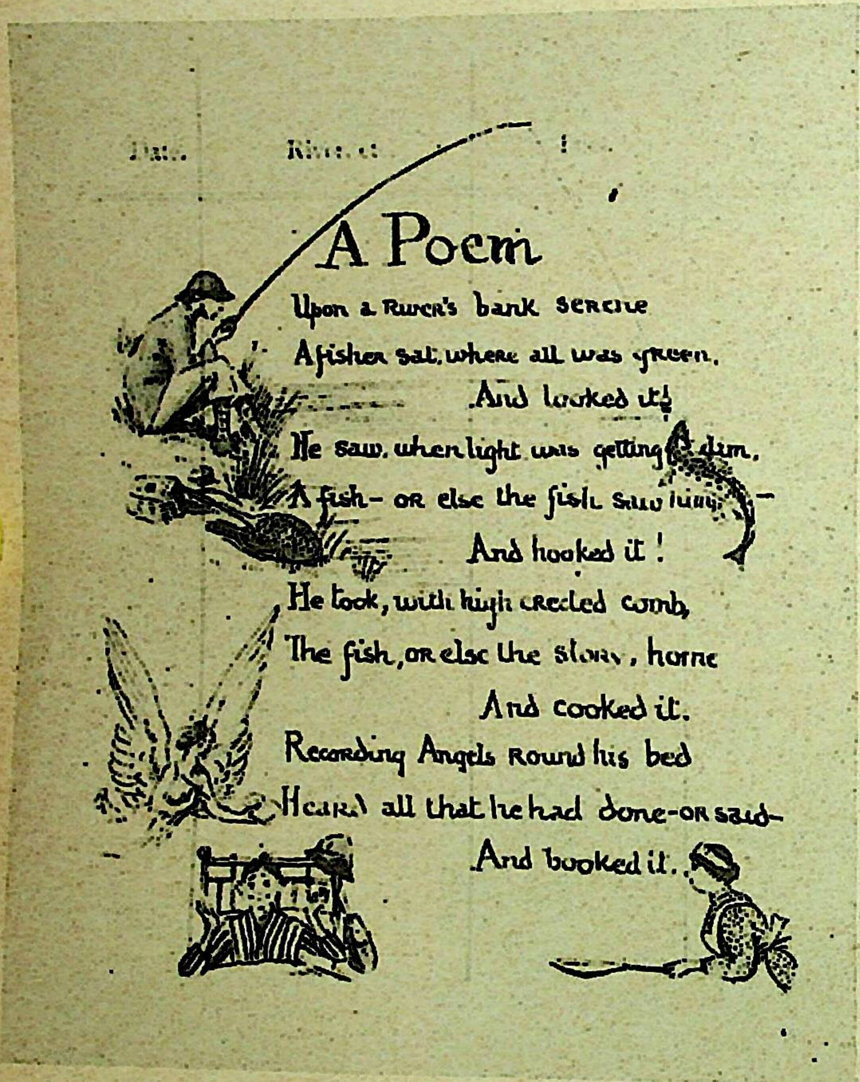
The new illustrated edition from Allen Lane in May



A Poem
Upon a River's bank serene
A fisher sat, where all was green.
And looked it!
He saw, when light was getting dim,
A fish — or else the fish saw him —
And hooked it!
He took, with high erected comb,
The fish, or else the story, home
And cooked it.
Recording Angels round his bed
Heard all that he had done — or said —
And booked it.

SPORTS and PASTIMES

So many titles about the benefits of running and walking are to be published this season that they have been grouped together on this page. First of all the English edition of James Fixx's American bestseller, The Complete Book of Running (£4·95), which was expected from Chatto last October, is now due to appear in May. In June, Macmillan London publish The Complete Jogger (£3·95) by Bruce Tulloh, the British track athlete who set a record of 65 days for the world's longest jogging course, the 3,000 miles from Los Angeles to New York. This handbook for men and women takes the new jogger through a complete series of week-by-week exercises, and discusses problems, health, equipment and diet.

The titles about walking are headed by two that stress its physical and psychological benefits. From Paddington Press in May, Walk! It Could Change Your Life (£4·95) by John May is described as the complete book of walking for people of all ages and covers country walking, rambling, and mountain walking. For Pelham, Peter Williams, a physical education officer in the R.A.F., has written Hill Walking (April, £5·50), a handbook for the rambler and backpacker which amplifies the syllabus of the popular Summer Mountain Leader Training Scheme.

The other titles offer suggestions for particular walks and seem to cover most of Britain. Julian Friedmann's Britain at Your Feet—Everything You Need to Know About Backpacking (February, £4·95) by David Wickers and Art Pedersen includes a survey of backpacking equipment and descriptions of "many of the most interesting walks in Britain". Several titles due from Constable cover more specific areas. A Guide to the West Midland Way (May, £4·50) by Ron Leek and Eric Jones, describes an unusual walk encircling Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Walsall, Warley, West Bromwich, Dudley and Solihull, a route of 162 miles through some of the most delightful countryside in Britain. Tom Hunter's A Guide to the West Highland Way (£4·50) was previously announced but is now due in April; it describes a 100-mile footpath north from Glasgow to Fort William on the West Coast, and there is a foreword by John Hillaby. Three updated guides are Christopher John Wright's The Pennine Way (March, £4·50) and W. A. Poucher's volume The Scottish Peaks (February, £4·50). All these titles include maps and photographs.

Wales is covered in a Robert Hale title due in April. In Walks in Wales (£3·95) Roger Jones groups the 77 walks round various themes: Richard Llewellyn country, Kilvert country, walks to find ancient British remains, and so on. Hale's The Backpackers' Handbook (£3·50) by Derrick Booth appeared in January. Scotland is again covered in two pocket-size guides from Hodder in April: the anecdotal text of West Highland Walks—Ben Lui to the Falls of Glomach and More West Highland Walks—Skye to Cape Wrath (£4·75) by leading climber and mountain rescue expert Hamish McInnes is interspersed with practical

Air, Land and Sea

Continued

An unusual reference work from Gresham Books is Nares' Seamanship 1862 (February, £6·50), a facsimile of the most important seamanship manual of the Victorian "sailing navy". Covering all aspects of shiphandling, rigging, anchors, and ropework, it is illustrated with fine engravings and has a modern introduction by David R. MacGregor.

From Kenneth Mason this month comes a facsimile edition of Our Seamen—An Appeal by Samuel Plimsoll (£5·95). The book caused a sensation when first published in 1873 and led to the introduction of the Plimsoll line for all shipping. Due in April is The Yachtsman's Cross-Channel Timetable Guide (£1·50) by Patrick Blackwood, a directory for all sailing men.

Astragal Books, the trade imprint of The Architectural Press, touch on a neglected area of the railway book market with How to Drive a Steam Locomotive (May, £6·95), providing for what appears to be a universal ambition of railway buffs and others.

Warne are bringing out two new titles in their Transport Library: English Horse Drawn Vehicles (February, £6·95; postponed from October) by David Parry, and Blue Blood (June, £9·50) by Serge Bellu and translated by John V. Bolster, the story of the racing car builders of France. February also sees the latest editions of The Observer's Book of Aircraft by William Green and The Observer's Book of Automobiles by the Olyslager Organisation (each £1·25).

The Bedside Book of Sea Stories (April, £4·95), edited by Herbert van Thal, from Arthur Barker, includes stories by Joseph Conrad, H. G. Wells, Roald Dahl, and others.

Thomas Yoseloff announce On High Pinnacles And Snow: Mountain Climbs and Hikes, Past and Present (£6·75) by Tom King. □

WAR and MILITARIA

MATTHEW Cooper, author of German Army has written The Phantom War: The German Struggle Against Soviet Partisans (£7·95), which Macdonald & Jane's publish in May. Also in May comes The Secret of Stalingrad (£6·95) by Walter Kerr, a reappraisal of the siege of Stalingrad. Warships of the World (June, £5·95) by Anthony Preston is an illustrated compendium of the major classes of warship in service throughout the world today.

Three March titles are Battles with Model Tanks (£4·25, paper £2·95) by Donald Featherstone and Keith Robinson; Rommel in Normandy (£5·95) by Admiral Friedrich Ruge, an account by his naval adviser of Rommel's struggles from his appointment to Army Group B to his eventual murder, and Jane's Weapons Systems 1979 (£31) edited by Ronald T. Pretty. Macdonald & Jane's also publish three new titles in the "Strategic Studies" series, Tactical Nuclear Weapons by Van Cleave and Cohen, Imbalance of Power (both February, £8·50) by J. Collins and in June US National Security Policy in the Decade Ahead (£10).

Two titles by Colonel T. N. Dupuy previously announced for autumn 1977 and again in 1978 are Elusive Victory: The Arab Israeli Wars 1947–74 (April, £11·95) and Numbers Predictions and War (June, £7·95). Scheduled for November but now coming in February is Warships of the Royal Navy (£5·95) by Captain John E. Moore.

The 82nd Airborne Division's exploits in Sicily, Salerno and Normandy, as well as their part in the ill-fated Operation Market Garden, are recounted by General James Gavin, their former commander, in On to Berlin (£7·50), published by Leo Cooper in February. Basil Karslake's 1940—The Last Act (£7·95), previously announced for November, now comes in April, while Sink The Haguro (£7·50) now comes in March. Robert Woollcombe tells the story of the King's Own Scottish Borderers in All the Blue Bonnets (March, £12·50). Also listed is Leigh Maxwell's My God, Maiwand! (March, £8·95) which examines Britain's worst ever military defeat in India.

On behalf of Brassey's, Seeley, Service & Cooper distribute the second edition of Brassey's Infantry Weapons of the World, announced for the second time for September, now published in February at £25; Brassey's Armoured Vehicles of the World (March, £25); Rusi and Brassey's Weapons Systems (March, £5)—now a standard text for students at English Staff Colleges because of its coverage of international weapon developments: Brassey's Tank Philosophy (April, £12·50) and Brassey's Military Communications (May, £5).

From "My God, Maiwand!" by Leigh Maxwell (Leo Cooper)

From the Imperial War Museum and also distributed by Seeley, Service & Cooper comes With a Machine Gun to Cambrai by George Coppard, one of the few memoirs written by a private soldier to emerge from the First World War.

Sidgwick & Jackson's list is headed by Menace: The Life and Death of the Tirpitz (February, £7·95) by Ludovic Kennedy. Sidgwick say that this book on the Tirpitz draws on the rich stores of "Ultra" signals, the German top secret coded naval signals that were deciphered by the code-breakers of Bletchley Park. Also in February comes Japanese Aircraft of World War II (£7·95) by Basil Collier.

In April Sidgwick publish Luftwaffe (£6·95), edited by Harold Faber, and in June War Winners (£6·95) by Ronald W. Clark, an illustrated history detailing the impact of science and technology on battle from the days of the American Civil War to Vietnam. Waterloo: Battle of Three Armies (£7·95), edited and introduced by Lord Chalfont, previously announced for March, is now due in June. Also in June comes the republication of Fighting Ships (£6·95) by J. N. Westwood, and British Aircraft of World War II (£6·95) by John Frayn-Turner.

In July Hodder & Stoughton publish Uprising (£9·50), David Irving's reconstruction and examination of the build-up, personalities and eventual outcome of Hungary's ill-fated gesture against Communism in 1956. Fatal Rendezvous—The Sinking of the Wilhelm Gustloff (June, £6·50) by Christopher Dobson, John Miller and Ronald Payne, tells the story of the greatest seaborne evacuation in history, involving thousands of German refugees fleeing from Stalin's Red Army. Operation Thursday (July, £7·50) is Brigadier Shelford Bidwell's account of the Chindit War, when 23,000 Allied troops invaded Japanese-held Burma. Also in July Hodder publish Munich: The Price of Peace (£12·50), Professor Taylor's account of the desperate negotiations of September 1938, which postponed the outbreak of the Second World War for a year.

From Our Special Correspondent (April, £6·95) is Robert Wilkinson-Latham's account of the little-known role of the war correspondents who covered campaigns in Queen Victoria's reign. To Face the Daring Maoris (February, postponed from January, £6·50) is Michael Barthorp's commentary on the First Maori War (1845–47).

MI9* (£6·95) by M. R. D. Foot and J. M. Langley, which the Bodley Head publish in May, tells the story, never before told, of the organisation behind many of the great prisoner-of-war escape stories of the Second World War. MI9 trained the armed forces in how to behave in enemy hands, how to escape and how to avoid capture.

From William Kimber in March come Hit First, Hit Hard (£7·95) by Peter

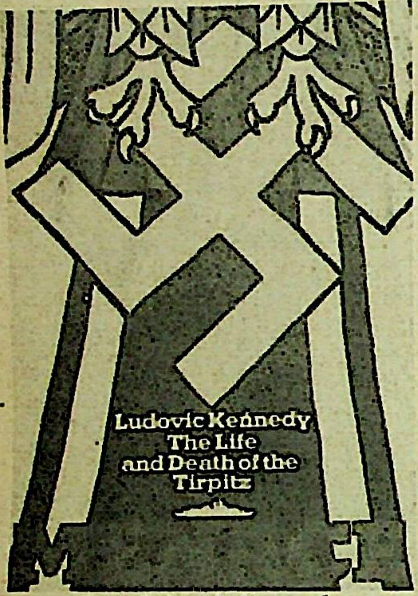
One of the illustrations for Robert Wilkinson-Latham's "From Our Special Correspondent" published by Hodder

C. Smith, the story of the battle cruiser "Renown" from 1916 to 1948, and Germany's Last Knight of the Air (£6·95), translated and edited by Peter Kilduff, the memoirs of Major Carl Degelow, the legendary German First World War fighter ace. Both these titles were previously announced for last November. In May come The Convoy that Nearly Died (£6·75) by H. Reveley, a surviving officer's account of the Atlantic convoy ONS 154 which was all but destroyed by U-boat torpedoes, D-Day Dodger (£6·75) by J. M. Lee Harvey, a memoir of the Italian campaign by a gunner who describes the horrors faced by himself and his fellow soldiers who rumour had it were living on the fleshpots of Italy while others fought in France, and The Anger of the Guns: An Infantry Officer on the Western Front (£6·75) by John Nettleton, who writes about his years of trench warfare during Ypres and Passchendaele in the First World War.



From Sidgwick this month

Also from William Kimber in June come Alexander's Generals: The Italian Campaign 1944–45 (£8·50), in which Gregory Blaxland concentrates on its three most important battles and emphasises the influence wielded by those in command; The Greatest Air Battle (£6·95) by Norman Franks, a detailed account of the confrontation between the Luftwaffe and the R.A.F. at Dieppe on 19th August 1942; Alamein (£7·95) by Philip Warner, a critical analysis of the battles for Alamein, drawing on first-hand accounts of survivors; and two naval titles, Battleship Barham (£7·95) by Geoffrey Jones, a vivid account of the life of this famous ship from the Battle of Jutland to service with the Mediterranean Fleet in the Second World War and her destruction by U-331; and Fighting Quartet (£7·95) by G. G. Connell, the complete account of the operations in the Second World War of the anti-aircraft cruisers "Curlew", "Calcutta", "Cairo" and "Coventry".

Continuing Patrick Stephens' "World War 2 Photo Album" series are three more aviation titles by Brian Philpott, Volume 6 German Fighters over the Med (February, £3·95, paper £2·50), Volume 8 German Bombers over Russia (April, £3·95, paper £2·50) and Volume 10 German Fighters over England (July, £4·50, paper £2·95). Four other titles due are Action Stations 1: Wartime Military Airfields of East Anglia 1939–45 (April, £6·95) by Michael J. F. Bowyer, the first in a new series which will eventually cover all airfields, disused and still functioning, throughout the British Isles, Classic Aircraft No 6: Lancaster (April, £3·95) by Neville Franklin and Gerald Scarborough, British Military Aircraft Serials (June, £7·50) by Bruce Robertson, and Final Approach (July, £5·50) by Norman Hanson, an account of life on board an aircraft carrier during the Second World War.

In March come Alexander the Great's Campaigns: A Guide to Ancient Political and Military Wargaming (£5·50) by Phil Barker, and Military Archaeology (March, £5·50), by Terry Gander, which looks at all aspects of collecting militaria. In July Armies of the Middle East (£6·95) is by Otto von Pivka.

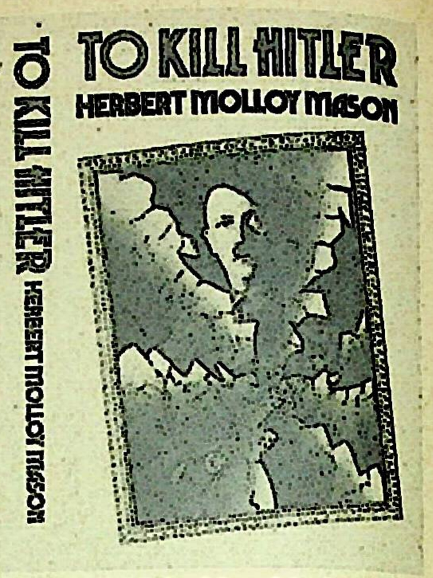
In the "World War 2 Photo Album" series come Volume 5: Panzers in North West Europe (February, £3·95, paper £2·50), Volume 7: German Paratroops in the Med (April, £3·95, paper £2·50) and Volume 9: Panzers in Russia (July, £4·50, paper £2·95), all written by Bruce Quarrie.

Amongst the maritime titles to be published by Patrick Stephens are Allied Minesweeping in World War 2 (May, £6·95) by Peter Elliott, and German Raiders: A History of Auxiliary Cruisers of the German Navy 1895–1945 (June, £7·95) by Paul Schmalenbach.

The lead title from Arms and Armour Press is Rommel: Campaigns and Battles (April, £7·95) by Kenneth Macksey. German Fighter (July) by Werner Held is a pictorial history of the Luftwaffe's day-fighter arm from its beginnings to 1945, seen through the lens of a German war photographer.



From Michael Joseph in April

New titles in Osprey's "Men at Arms" series due in March (paper, £2·50 each, 8 colour plates) are: Norman, Saxon and Viking by Terence Wise, Samurai Armies 1550–1650 by S. R. Turnbull, Napoleon's Marshals by Emir Bukhari and Napoleon's Italian and Neapolitan Troops by Otto von Pivka. a people who once had no soldiers is the central theme of Anatomy of the Israeli Army (July, £3·95) by Prof. Gunther Rothenburg.

The Second World War forms the subject of two Michael Joseph books. To Kill Hitler (April, £6·50) is Herbert Molloy Mason's account of the attempts to assassinate Hitler by, amongst others, Wehrmacht officers, hardened company commanders, noblemen such as Count Claus von Stauffenberg, and Maurice Bavard, a drop-out from a French seminary. Since the expiry in 1976 of the 30-year limit on secret wartime files, Joseph E. Persico has carried out research to gather material for Piercing the Reich: The Penetration of Nazi Germany by Allied Secret Agents during World War II (May, £6·95).

Some little-chronicled episodes of the Second World War receive attention in Robert Hale's offerings. Flying Bomb (March, £4·95) by Peter G. Cooksley tells the whole story of the last serious attack on the British Isles during the summer of 1944. In The Battle of Leyte Gulf (July, £5·50) Adrian Stewart chronicles the sea battle which finally destroyed the Japanese Navy. In Deadly Magic (July, £5·50) Edward Van Der Rhoer describes the interception of Japanese messages and the cracking of their codes that led the American forces to their points of attack, as well as saving them on innumerable occasions from falling into ambushes set by the enemy. In June comes Masquerade (£5·50) by Seymour Reit, the story of camouflage.

Dent's lead title is The Berlin Bunker (£6·95), James O'Donnell's account of the last days of the Third Reich, which appears on 30th April, the anniversary of Hitler's death. Richard Hough's new book Man O'War (March, £6·95) evokes the power and the glory of four centuries of the fighting ship, singling out 15 men o'war which are particularly significant, from the Ark Royal to Lord Mountbatten's Kelly.

Writing from his experiences of test flying the Spitfire during the war years, Alex Henshaw in Sigh for a Merlin (April, £3·95), from John Murray, tells a story of human endurance during a time of desperation.

In June Paddington Press publish The Story of the U.S. Marine Corps (£9·50), by J. Robert Moskin, a prize-winning journalist and former foreign editor of Look Magazine. With detailed notes and appendixes, maps and photographs of the Marines in action, it aims to present new insights into the meaning and uses of American military power.

Tides of Empire (May, £6·50) by Peter Padfield, is the first volume of a four-volume history of naval warfare and covers the years 1481–1654. It is published by Routledge & Kegan Paul in May. Discarding the glamorous motives usually attributed to naval commanders, Peter Padfield instead emphasises the motive power of wealth and the envy of wealth, producing a challenging interpretation of the rise of the West as a remorsely economic battle for world markets during which brief intervals of "peace" are determined solely by exhaustion. Announced previously and now due in March is Siege Warfare: The Fortress in the Early Modern World 1450–1700 (£9·95) by Christopher Duffy.

From Macmillan Press this month come two titles to which E. J. Feuchtwanger has contributed. Air Power in the Next Generation (£8·95) which he edited with R. A. Mason, and Soviet Military Power and Performance (£12) which he edited with John Erickson. The World Military Order (April, £10), edited by Mary Kaldor and Asbjorn Eide, studies the impact of military technology on the Third World, while David Whynes' The Economics of Third World Military Expenditure (February, £10) looks at defence spending in the developing countries.

Croom Helm announce a new book by Ken Booth, Strategy and Ethnocentrism (April, £7·95), which explores the relation between strategic thinking and cultural diversity in the Third World. An Introduction to

The latest volume in the "Oxford Medical Engineering" series, Auditory Investigations: The Scientific and Technological Basis (£25) by H. A. Beagley, will appear in April.

Heinemann Medical publish Seeing Operative Surgery (March, £21), by J. Graves, a large-format book illustrating the most common operative techniques with 492 high-quality photographs. The Health and Medical Care System of Iran (June, £30) is by an Iranian health administrator, B. Mohit.

Care of the Stroke Patient: A Positive Approach (April, £3·75) is by Roberta Shepherd and Janet Carr. Another paediatric title, in the "Modern Topics" series, is Modern Topics in Paediatric Dermatology (May, £10·50) by J. Verbov. A new book on Anorexia Nervosa (June, £8) by P. Dally and J. Gomez completes the medical list.

Three new editions are Singer's and Actor's Throat (March, £2·95) by Norman Punt, Using a Medical Library (April, £2·95) by Leslie Morton and Theatre Routine (April, £2·75) by Morag H. Campbell.

Heinemann Veterinary Books publish Handbook of Diseases of Laboratory Animals (June, £10) by M. and P. O'Donoghue.

Rheumatism, one of the commonest complaints encountered in general practice, and surgery of the vascular system are the subjects of two titles in Hodder's "Modern Nursing" series, Rheumatology (July, £5·25; Unibook £2·50) by D. R. Swinson and W. R. Swinburn and Vascular Surgery (July, £4·95; Unibook £2·25) by Mr. R. E. Horton, consultant to the United Bristol Hospitals. Venereology and Genito-Urinary Medicine: A Textbook of the Sexually Transmitted Diseases (April, £6·50; Unibook, £3·25) by R. D. Catterall of Middlesex Hospital is the updated 2nd edition of Venereology for Nurses.

In July comes The Beta-Lactam Antibiotics: Penicillins and Cephalosporins in Perspective (paper, £7·95) edited by Dr. S. Selwyn a consultant bacteriologist at Westminster Hospital with contributions by Dr. R. W. Lacey and Dr. M. Bakhtiar.

From Faber, Patricia Kennedy's The Moving Body (paper, £2·50) is for movement class leaders, particularly those working with the disabled and elderly. Dinah van Zwanenberg and C. B. T. Adams have written Neurosurgical Nursing Care (£5·25, paper £1·95), an introductory textbook.

The 2nd edition of Cash's Textbook of Chest, Heart and Vascular Disorders for Physiotherapists (£4·50) and the 6th edition of Cash's Textbook of Medical Conditions for Physiotherapists (£4·95) are both revised by Patricia A. Downie. Mary Anderson has revised the 6th edition of The Anatomy and Physiology of Obstetrics and Gynaecology (paper, £2·50) by the late C. W. F. Burnett. Also in its 2nd edition is Professor John Marshall's Planning for a Family (Faber Paperbacks, £2·25).

Macmillan Press publish the second edition of Psychosomatic Medicine for Nurses (February, paper £1·50) by Harold Maxwell, Mary McFarland's Interpreting Cardiac Arrhythmias (February, paper £1·95) and Surgical Repair and Reconstruction in Rheumatoid Disease (March, £20) by A. Benjamin and B. Helal. Three research titles are Inbred Strain in Biomedical Research (March, £20), Animal Models of Obesity (February, £15) edited by Michael Festing and Endomorphins in Mental Health Research by E. Usdin, W. Bunny and N. Kline.

Medical Books—Specialist

Drugs and the Elderly (£15) by J. Crooks and I. H. Stevenson comes in March. Drugs and Immune Responsiveness (April, £15) edited by J. Turk and D. Parker is a collection of papers presented at the latest Biological Council Symposium.

Cambridge University Press continues its series, "Techniques of Measurement in Medicine", with the 3rd volume, Radionuclide Techniques in Medicine (July, £8, paper £3) by Joan M. McAlister. S. Lovell's An Introduction to Radiation Dosimetry (June, £7·50, paper £2·50) is the 4th volume in the series. W. J. Stephen's An Analysis of Primary Medical Care (£12·50) comes in March.

From Chapman & Hall comes Drugs for Heart Disease (June, £25) edited by Dr. John Hamer of St. Bartholomews Hospital, London, who gives a guide to the properties and uses of the various drugs available for the treatment of cardio-vascular disease.

Tavistock publish The Behavioural Sciences in General Practice (June, £11, paper £7) by Andrew Boddy, Fred Martin and Margot Jeffreys, a textbook geared to the needs of trainee general practitioners and The Dignity of Labour? (March, £10) by Ann Cartwright, who considers how far doctors and midwives appreciate the views of women in childbearing and how professional attitudes to induction vary.

Wolfe Medical Publications publish in February A Colour Atlas of the Liver (£20) by Sheila Sherlock and John A. Summerfield (previously announced for December) and An Atlas of Post-Mortem Procedures (£8) by G. Austin Gresham and Arthur Turner, a manual for doctors and pathologists incorporating 200 monochrome photographs. A Colour Atlas of Clinical Conditions in Paedodontics (April, £16) by Robert Rapp and Gerald B. Winter, has over 470 photographs, the majority in full colour. The 4th volume of David H. Lees and Albert Singer's six-volume work, A Colour Atlas of Gynaecological Surgery, entitled Surgery of Vulva and Lower Genital Tract (£23) comes in May.

Three atlases published in June are A Colour Atlas of Endocrinology (£20) by Reginald Hall, David Evered and Raymond Greene, A Colour Atlas of Ocular Tumours (£12) by M. A. Bedford (previously announced for January under the slightly different title A Colour Atlas of Eye Tumours) and A Colour Atlas of the Pathology of Lymph Nodes (£18) by Geoffrey Farrer-Brown and Kristin Henry. July sees the publication of A Colour Atlas of Pathogenic Fungi (£16) by Dorothea Frey, Ronald J. Oldfield and Ronald C. Bridger.

In May Edward Arnold publish Techniques of Vagotomy (paper, £6·95) by A. G. Johnson and K. Reynolds, a reference book for practising surgeons. June sees The Epidemiology of Chronic Digestive Disease (£12) by M. J. S. Langman, the 4th edition of Diseases of the Ear (£30) by Stuart R. Mawson and Harold Ludman and Metabolic Pathways in Medicine (paper, £6·95) by H. G. J. Worth and D. H. Curnow. In April the 3rd edition of Human Nutrition (paper, £4·95) by R. F. Mottram and Hand Injuries and Infections—An Illustrated Guide (£15) by W. Bruce Conolly and Eugene S. Kilgore are due.

The first three titles in a new series, "Current Topics in Anaesthesia" edited by Stanley A. Feldman and Cyril F. Scurr aim to overcome the difficulty of selecting information of value and clinical relevance from the flood of new knowledge in this area. Previously announced for October, Michael Hobsley's Pathways in Surgical Management (paper, £12) will now be published in February and F. G. Smiddy's The Investigation of the Surgical Patient (£16) will now be published in April. Microbial Disease (£13) by D. A. J. Tyrell, C. S. Goodwin, I. Phillips and R. Blowers previously announced as Management of Bacterial Infection to be published in November, will now appear in March and Immunopathology of the Kidney (£9) by Boris Albini, Jan R. Brentjens and Giuseppe A. Andres, also announced for November, will be published in February.

Dawson publish in April Infectious Diseases: Prevention and Treatment in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries (£22·50) by Wesley W. Spink. Previously announced for September, The Rise of Surgery: From Empiric Craft to Scientific Discipline (£25) by Owen and Sarah Wangensteen will now appear in April.

In the Elek "Reproductive Biology Handbooks" series, The Ovary (June, £15) by Hannah Peters and Kenneth P. Mcnatty is a synthesis of current knowledge and research concerning the development and function of the ovary with emphasis on its endocrine activity, for medical and veterinary students, gynaecologists and biologists.

Kimpton's Topics in Anaesthetics and Intensive Care (February, £4·80) for undergraduates and interns. The authors, from the Sheffield United Hospitals, are Professor J. Andrew Thornton and Cyril Levy.

The latest title in Croom Helm's "Health Administration" series, Supplies Management for Health Services (£12·95) by Stanley Hyman, comes in April. Additions to the "Life Sciences" list include The Nature of Enzymology (July, £11·95, paper £5·95) by R. L. Foster and Chemical and Quantitative Pharmacology (July, £9·95) by R. B. Barlow.

Academic Press publish in May Kidney Transplantation edited by P. J. Morris.

March is the month for Harper & Row's medical titles. New books include Diseases of the Orbit by Ira Snow Jones and Frederick A. Jakobiec, Clinical Pathology of the Oral Mucosa by Christopher Lawrence Bannerman Lavelle, Basic Urinalysis by George J. Race and External Diseases of the Eye by Louis A. Wilson, a practical guide to laboratory diagnosis. Charlotte K. Eliopoulos' Gerontological Nursing (£8·40) reviews common diseases of each body system in the light of factors associated with normal ageing.

There are 2nd editions of Ben S. Fine's cytologic approach to Ocular Histology (£22·40) and Inflamation, Immunity and Hypersensitivity: Molecular and Cellular Mechanisms (£10·75) edited by Henry Z. Movat. Previously announced for September and December, An Atlas of Cross-Sectional Anatomy edited by Stephen A. Kieffer and E. Robert Heitzman and Ear Diseases, Deafness and Dizziness by Victor Goodhill will now also appear in March.

A single April title is A Primer of Clinical Diagnosis by William B. Buckingham, Marshall Sparberg and Martin Brandfonbrener which emphasises the importance of taking medical histories.

Three titles in the new McGraw-Hill nursing series are First Level Clinical Nursing (May, £3·45) by M. E. Reakes and P. M. Burrows, Nursing: Theory and Practice (May, £3·95) by J. Bickerton, A. C. M. Sampson and A. Boylan and Fundamentals of Nursing (April, £3·95) by M. Chapple and A. Drew, all Level One texts. Three February titles are Life/Death Ratio (£7·50) by W. Ross, which looks at the risks and benefits of taking medicines; The Politics of Pain (£7·45) by H. Neal, who examines why pain has been neglected by the medical profession and ways to overcome it, and Healing: The Coming Revolution in Holistic Medicine (£7·45) by J. La Patra.

In From Genesis to Genocide: The Meaning of Human Nature and the Power of Behaviour Control (£14·95), which MIT Press publish in July, Stephen L. Chorover relates behavioural science to its social context and function.

This month Thorsons publish Acupuncture Energy in Health and Disease (£3·95, paper £2·75) by H. Woollerton and C. J. McClean, giving a detailed guide to the latest theories of energy distribution in the body and of advanced acupuncture practice. Also coming this month is Iridiagnosis (65p) by Victor S. Davidson. □

For the Non-Specialist

WITH cancer the second most common cause of death in England and Wales, and more than half a million people annually attending clinics to find out whether they have one of the sexually transmitted diseases, Oxford publish Cancer: The Facts (June, £3) by Sir Ronald Bodley Scott and Sexually Transmitted Diseases: The Facts (May, £3·50) by David Barlow.

Faber publish Living with Multiple Sclerosis (£4·95, paper £2·50) by Elizabeth Forsythe, who is both a sufferer and a doctor.

The Bodley Head publish an expanded 4th edition of Dr. Benjamin Spock's Baby and Child Care (March, £6·50). Your Deaf Child's Speech and Language (May, £4·50) by Mary Courtman-Davies is the result of nearly 30 years' working with children whose hearing is impaired.

In February Mitchell Beazley publish The Pictorial Handbook of Anatomy and Physiology (£6·95, paper £4·95) by Dr. James Bevan, containing over 250 full-colour illustrations. Mitchell Beazley Atlas of the Body and Mind (March, £8·95) by Claire Rayner is published in a new, more compact format. Mitchell Beazley's "pocket books" have two new titles in April (£2·95 each), The Pocket Encyclopaedia of Calories and Nutrition by Arnold Bender and The Pocket Medical and First Aid Guide by James Bevan.

From Marion Boyars in March comes Cancer: Myths and Realities of Cause and Cure (£4·95, paper £2·25) by Drs. M. L. Kothari and L. A. Metha, which "shatters the myth that cancer is a mystery disease" and argues that the conventional search for cause and the technological imposition of cures makes living with cancer an intolerable burden.

A guide to one of the most frightening diseases, The Cancer Reference Book: Direct and Clear Answers to Everyone's Questions (£4·95) comes from Paddington Press in June. It is by two medical specialists, Dr. A. Robert Kagan and Dr. Harvey Gilbert, and two professional writers, Professor Paul M. Levitt and Professor Elissa Guralnick. Every Couple's Guide to Fertility and Conception: Helpful and Hopeful Answers for the Childless (April, £3·95) is written by Dr. John Stangel.

From Pelham come Doctor in the Garden (May, £5·50) by Dr. Elizabeth Forsythe and Keith Mossman, which pools the knowledge of a doctor and horticulturalist for those who wish to promote good health through diet, and What to do Till The Doctor Comes, (June, £4·50), a parents' guide to children's illness by Dr. Ian Hudson and Gordon Thomas. There are already over 200,000 copies of this in print in various paperback editions worldwide.

Coming from Macmillan London are two titles by Peter Mayle, author of Where Did I Come From?, Baby Taming and How to be a Pregnant Father (each £4·95).

Butterick publish The No-Nonsense Guide to Food and Nutrition (£3·55) by Marion McGill and Dr. Pye, and The Good Time Fitness Book (£4·75) by T. D. Fahey, which provides a simple to follow programme of a scientific approach towards a healthy body.

J. McCormick evaluates the changing role of the G.P. in Croom Helm's The Family Doctor (March, £7·50), while The Good Birth Guide (April, £9·95) by Sheila Kitzinger, published in association with Fontana, shows how to get the best out of the health services.

Many books for new mothers specialise in teaching how to take care of the baby. Mother Care (£4·50) by Lyn DelliQuadri and Kati Breckenridge, which Robson Books publish in March, shows mothers how to take care of themselves.

Dr. William A. R. Thomson continues the examination of less orthodox methods of medical treatment that he began with Herbs that Heal and Spas that Heal in A Change of Air: Climate and Health (£5·95), due from A. & C. Black in March.

How to combat the stresses and resultant illnesses of the executive life is the subject of Times Books' The BMA Book of Executive Health (£4·95).

Sheldon Press publish in their "Overcoming Common Problems" paperback series of self-help books in June at £1·95 each Shyness and Anxiety by Dr. Phyllis Shaw and Depression by Dr. Paul Hauck.

A new series of health paperbacks, "Positive Health Guides", based on the principles of drug-free medicine, is launched by Martin Dunitz Publishers. Each title will be 125 pages, 8¾" by 5½", with approximately 150 colour and black-and-white illustrations and will cost £1·95. Stress and Relaxation (May) is by Jane Madders, The Back: Relief from Pain (May) by one of Britain's most eminent osteopaths, and Beat Heart Disease (June) by Dr. Ristéard Mulcahy who explains how simple changes in life-style can reduce the likelihood of a heart attack. Your Diet and Your Health (June) is by Dr. Denis Burkitt who also in June will receive the Gold Medal of the British Medical Association for his work.

Coming from Schocken, How to Live with Diabetes (paper, £2·95) by Henry Dolger M.D. and Bernard Seeman is a guide for patients and their families.

A third edition of Help Yourself (£1·65) by Peggy Jay, a guide to everyday living for partially paralysed patients, will be published by Ian Henry in May.

Two additions to Arlington's range of pocket books are The New Pocket Calorie Guide to Branded Foods and The New Carbohydrate Guide to Branded Foods by Alexandra Sherman, both due in March at 55p.

In May Warne publish Nuttall's First Aid (35p) by M. P. Jeffrey.

TECHNICAL and SCIENTIFIC

THE Chapman & Hall list for May includes new editions of Selective Toxicity: The Physico-Chemical Basis of Therapy (£15) by Adrien Albert and Paint Film Defects (£20) by H. R. Hamburg and W. M. Morgans, an addition to the "Monographs on Applied Probability and Statistics" series, Some Basic Theory for Statistical Inference (£5) by J. G. Pitman, and Statistics for Biologists (£3) by D. J. Finney.

Books for June include Algebraic Number Theory (£10, paper £5·95) by J. N. Stewart and D. O. Tall, The Biology of Cyclosomes (£10) by M. N. Hardisty which is an attempt to arrive at a synoptic view of the cyclosomes by bringing together the results of more recent research, and The Ecology of Small Mammals (£12) edited by D. M. Stoddart.

The previously announced "Outline Studies in Ecology" series is launched with Vegetation Dynamics (April, £1·95) by J. Miles and Island Ecology (May, £1·95) by M. L. Gorman. Also previously announced, The Atlas of Economic Mineral Deposits (£35) by C. J. Dixon is now listed for February.

Indigenous Building and the Third World (£8, paper £5) by A. Cain, F. Afshar, J. Norton and M. R. Daraie comes from Longman in July. D. Pessen and W. Hübl's The Design and Application of Programmable Sequence Controllers for Automation Systems (March, £4·95) is a comprehensive treatment of the efficient design of sequencing circuits by the use of programmable sequence controllers.

Coming in February are a 5th updated edition of Vogel's Textbook of Macro and Semimicro Qualitative Inorganic Analysis edited by G. Svehla (£14·95), and the first paperback edition of Practical Organic Chemistry by Mann and Saunders (£5·95). The revision necessary to bring Mellor's Comprehensive Treatise on Inorganic and Theoretical Chemistry up to date is presented in supplementary volumes. Volume V: Supplement 1: Boron is divided into three parts (each £35). Part A will be published in July and Parts B and C will follow in October and December. The 3rd edition of Dixon and Webb's Enzymes comes in July at £22·50, covering major developments.

In March comes Fisheries Ecology of Floodplain Rivers (£18) by R. L. Welcomme, about the ecology of rivers that undergo seasonal flooding, in May. Cell Motility (£4·25) by H. Stebbings and J. S. Hyams in the "Integrated Themes in Biology" series; and in July the 9th edition of Henderson's Dictionary of Biological Terms (£9·95). N. W. Simmonds' Principles of Crop Improvement (June, £9·95, paper £6·95) provides a broad introduction to plant breeding principles for honours degree and postgraduate students.

In the Longman "Topics in Applied Geography" series in June come Vegetation Productivity (£3·50) by Gareth Jones, which shows the link between biogeography and economic geography; and Ian Bowler's Government and Agriculture (£3·50). Soils: Their Formation, Classification and Distribution (July, £9·95) is a rewritten edition of Dr. Fitzpatrick's Pedology.

Applied Science Publishers books for February include Developments in Stress Analysis—1 edited by G. S. Holister and Developments in Pressure Vessels Technology—1: Flaw Analysis edited by R. W. Nichols. Developments in Pressure Vessels Technology—2: Inspection and Testing follows in March.

Also due in February are Ultra-High Modulus Polymers edited by A. Ciferri and I. M. Ward, Photochemistry of Man-Made Polymers edited by J. F. McKellar and N. S. Allen, and Sugar: Science and Technology. March sees Elastomers: Criteria for Engineering Design edited by C. Hepburn and R. J. W. Reynolds, Styrene Polymers: Toxicity and Safety Aspects by A. C. Brighton, G. Pritchard and G. A. Skinner, and second editions of Introduction to Industrial Organic Chemistry by P. Wiseman and Room Acoustics by H. Kuttruff. Other titles scheduled for March are Environmental Factors in the Design of Buildings edited by E. Lim et al., An Introduction to Agricultural Systems by C. R. W. Spedding and Adhesion 3 edited by K. W. Allen.

Planned for April are Techniques in Mineral Exploration by J. H. Reedman, Electron Microscopy and Microanalysis of Crystalline Materials edited by J. A. Belk, and Developments in Polymerisation—1 edited by R. N. Howard. Developments in Polymerisation—2 follows in May. Two books for food technologists also appear in May, Flavour Research

Einstein. "General Relativity—An Einstein Centenary Survey" is due from Cambridge in June edited by D. G. Land and N. E. Nursten and Developments in Sweeteners—1 edited by C. A. M. Hough, K. Parker and R. J. Vlitos, together with a further title on polymer science, Developments in Polymer Fracture—1 edited by E. Andrews.

Blackwell Scientific Publications' list of textbooks in the natural sciences has a 2nd edition of Lecture Notes on Invertebrate Zoology (£4) by M. S. Laverack and J. Dando and the seventh volume in the "Basic Microbiology" series, Introduction to Modern Mycology (£3) by J. W. Deacon. This will be followed by a "particularly clearly-presented" work edited by J. M. Lynch and N. J. Poole, Microbial Ecology: a Conceptual Approach (March, £18, paper £9·50).

May sees a text particularly for students in developing countries, An Introduction to the Principles and Practice of Soil Science (£8·50) by R. E. White, and, in the "Studies in Ecology" series, The Restoration of Land (£10) by A. D. Bradshaw and M. J. Chadwick and Decomposition in Terrestrial Ecosystems (£20) by M. J. Swift et al.

In the "Botanical Monographs" series come Fungal Genetics (4th edition, February, £20) by J. R. S. Fincham et al. and Demography and Dynamics of Plant Populations (May, £15) edited by O. T. Solbrig. The 19th symposium of the British Ecological Society, Ecological Processes in Coastal Environments edited by R. L. Jefferies and A. J. Davy will be ready in March at £20.

The Newnes-Butterworth list includes new editions of Clayton's Operational Amplifiers (February, £9·50), Hawker's A Guide to Amateur Radio (April, £4·95), and Scroggie's Radio and Electronic Laboratory Handbook (July, £12). Programming for Microprocessors (March, £8·20) by A. Colin is for professional engineers. Titles for the industrial market include Textile Production Engineering (February, £15) by A. Ormerod, Industrial Hazard & Safety Handbook (March, £18) by R. King and Sample & Sample Process Systems (June, £15) by D. Cornish. For the building trade, House Builder's Reference Book (March, £28) edited by M. V. Powell is comprehensive.

Two reference works, the new edition of Handbook of Reactive Chemical Hazards (£45) by Leslie Bretherick and the Handbook of Anion Determination (£45) by W. John Williams are due in February and March. Also due in March in the "Studies in the Agricultural and Food Sciences" series is Sheep Breeding (£25) edited by G. J. Tomes, D. E. Robertson and R. J. Lightfoot and revised by W. Haresign. This will be followed in May by Polysaccharides in Food (£19·50) edited by J. M. V. Blanshard and J. R. Mitchell. F. Grover and P. Wallace's Laboratory Organisation and Management (£9) is due in July, and the previously announced The Equatorial Rain Forest: A Geological History (£20) by John Flenley will be published in March.

To celebrate Einstein's 100th birthday Cambridge University Press publish General Relativity—An Einstein Centenary Survey (June, £35) edited by S. W. Hawking and W. Israel, in which 21 of the world's leading relativists have collaborated on a review of the current state of research. Georg Breuer's Weather Modification (July, £10, paper £4) analyses the problems and dangers of the present state of weather modification, while in The Forces of Nature (July, £9·50, paper £3·95) P. C. W. Davies asks what is the world made of and how is it put together? Spherical Models (July, £8·50, paper £4) by Magnus J. Wenninger explains how to make models of spherical polyhedra from simple materials.

The Oxford University Press "Applied Mathematics and Computing Science" series gains Graphs and Networks (April, £9, paper £4·50) by Bernard Carré and Elementary Information Theory (March, £7, paper £4) by D. S. Jones. Also due are What is Mathematics? (May, paper £3·95) by Richard Courant and Herbert Robbins, the first volume (June, £13) in a new "Oxford Reviews of Reproductive Biology" series edited by C. A. Finn, and the latest collection of Herbert Spenser Lectures Scientific Models and Man (March, £3·25) edited by Henry Harris.

Academic Press announce Fantasy and Symbol: Studies in Anthropological Interpretation (April) edited by R. H. Hook, a collection of papers in honour of George Devereux which reveal how story, myth and ritual play an important part in the activities and events of everyday life. The Earth: Its Origin, Structure and Evolution (May) edited by M. W. McElhinny brings together contributions from past and present members of the Australian National University's Research School of Earth Sciences, and Adrian F. Dyer's The Experimental Biology of Ferns (May) aims to encourage botanists and plant experimentalists to exploit fully the dynamic aspects of fern biology as a means of providing new leads to fundamental problems in plant biology as a whole. Recent Advances in the Biochemistry of Cereals (May) edited by D. L. Laidman and R. G. Wyn Jones charts developments, and Brewing Science Volume I (June) edited by J. R. A. Pollock includes contributions on the physiology of malting, manufactured products from hops and their use in brewing, and water in malting and brewing. H. Riehl's Climate and Weather in the Tropics (June) discusses developments over the last 25 years in the atmospheric sciences and their importance for the tropical countries.

Although designed primarily for undergraduates, a McGraw-Hill book, Engineering Solids (£4·50) by I. Wilson, is an appropriate general non-mathematical introduction to the structure, properties and technology of solids. Matrix Methods for Engineers and Scientists (£3·95) by S. Barnett and Micro-Electronics (£16·90) by J. Millman also provide comprehensive coverage of their subjects. Armstrong's Basic Topology (£6·25) and Active Filters for Communications and Instrumentation (£5·95) by Bowron and Stephenson are due in May and April respectively.

Charged-Coupled Devices and Their Applications (April, £10) by J. Beynon and D. Lamb contains information on the foundations of the subject as well as examples, and Digital Electronics for Works' Electricians (April, £4·75) by N. M. Morris is a sound introduction. Other titles include J. Bown's Injection Moulding of Plastic Components (February, £8·25), Induction Heating Handbook (May, £16·50) by E. Davies and P. Simpson and NALCO: Water Treatment Handbook (May, £15).

Macmillan Press list covers A. Robinson's Appropriate Technologies for Third World Development (April, £20) and Poultry Production in Warm Wet Climates (June, £8·95, paper £3·95) by J. A. Oluyemi and F. A. Roberts. Industrial Innovation: Technology, Policy, Diffusion (February, £40) is a collection of papers by a group of experts edited by Michael Baker. February sees Peter Polak's Systematic Errors in Engineering Experiments (paper £3·25), Modern Power Transformer Practice (£20) by R. Feinberg, and Polar Diaelectrics and their Applications (£20) by J. C. Burfoot and G. W. Taylor. The "Computer Science" series gains Discrete Event Modelling on Simula (May, £4·50) by G. Birtwistle, while D. A. Tawney's Learning Through Computers (April, £10) provides a useful introduction.

Technical and Scientific

Forthcoming titles from Gordon and Breach include a 2-volume set of Plasma Astrophysics: Nonthermal Processes in Diffuse Magnetized Plasmas by D. B. Melrose. Volume 1: The Emission, Absorption and Transfer of Waves in Plasmas (approx. £16·70) has been written primarily for graduate students and Volume 2: Astrophysical Applications (approx. £22·70) is intended as a reference. The "Midland Macromolecular Monographs" series continues with Volume 6, Flow-Induced Crystallization in Polymer Systems (March, approx. £23·30) by R. L. Miller.

Due in June are the previously announced Food Ecology and Culture: Readings in the Anthropology of Dietary Practice (approx. £8·30) by J. R. K. Robson and Synchronous Machines: their Theory, Stability, and Excitation Systems (approx. £22·20) by M. S. Sarma.

George Godwin publish Safety in Process Plant Design (£18) by Wells, Chemical Engineering Drawing Symbols (£6·80) by Austin and Waste Recycling and Pollution Control Handbook (£38) by Bridgwater and Mumford. Titles on construction technology include Mechanical Plant: Design and Cost Implications (£7·50) by Gardiner and New Concrete Technologies in Building Design (£13) edited by Adam Neville.

The Athlone Press announce publication in February of Foundations of Molecular Pharmacology by J. B. Stenlake. The outcome of 30 years of teaching and research, the work starts from the premise that those concerned with the design and use of drugs and medicines are interested fundamentally in properties rather than in methods of manufacture. Volume 1, Medicinal and Pharmaceutical Chemistry (£25) is intended as a foundation course for undergraduates while Volume 2, The Chemical Basis of Drug Action (£17·50) should appeal to specialists and clinical pharmacologists.

Graham & Trotman publish in February The Prevention of Oil Pollution (£15) by J. Wardley-Smith, an examination of the measures and techniques available for preventing the serious threat to the environment, and the previously announced Introduction to Seismic Interpretation (£15) by R. McQuillin, M. Bacon and W. Barclay.

Sphere's lead title for March is a U.K. paperback original: Charnel House (85p) is another spine-chiller from Graham Masterton, author of The Manitou the film of which was a box office success. Popular "Pebble Mill" presenter Bob Langley has written The War of the Running Fox (85p), a thriller described by Jack Higgins, author of The Eagle has Landed, as "frighteningly topical". Also published is The Rapist (85p) by Michael Kenyon, author of Mr. Big, about a small town haunted by sexual violence.

The Women's Room, Marilyn French's international bestseller, is Sphere's lead for 26th April and one of their biggest fiction titles this spring. P. D. James is regarded by many critics as England's best writer of classical detective stories since Margery Allingham and Dorothy L. Sayers, and Sphere publish Death of an Expert Witness in April with a full-scale author promotion. World War III by John Stanley is published in this country for the first time in April, and is described by Sphere as the most caustic book about war since Catch 22.

Harriet Frank, author of the May lead title Single, has been described by the Spectator as "a sort of women's Harold Robbins". In contrast, Barbara Riefe's This Ravaged Heart is a historical romance in the great tradition, and a U.K. paperback original. Sphere are launching a special promotion in May for their Horror Fiction list, to be headed by the second Graham Masterton title of 1979, The Devils of D Day, and also featuring Peter Tremayne, Gerald Suster, Stephen Marlow, Jessica Hamilton, Richard Curtis, and Kirby McCauley.

Sphere's June list is led by Blood of the Bondmaster by Richard Tresillian, a lusty historical epic which is the second volume of the Bondmaster saga. Robert Merle's The Virility Factor is set in America in the near future, when the male population has been decimated by an epidemic to which women are immune. Also published in June are Now and Forever by Danielle Steel, author of The Promise—a love story which was one of Sphere's 1978 bestsellers—and The Village: The First Summer, an original by Mary Fraser: it is the first in a new series about the lives of real people in a closely-knit village community, and will be featured as the Sphere Summer Special.

The lead title for July is Wolfsbane, a successor to Craig Thomas' bestselling thriller Firefox. In Mother's Day Robert Miner's hero is a young father who suddenly finds himself alone with two young children after his wife walks out. Tomorrow and Tomorrow by Ed McBain is an excursion into S.F. by the author of the 87th Precinct stories. The Earth Again Redeemed is a first novel by Martin Green which Sphere say combines literary skill and science fiction ingenuity. Finally, Rochelle Larkin, one of the bestselling historical novelists to appear on the Sphere list, is the author of Mistress of Desire, a sequel to Harvest of Desire, set amid a Southern plantation.

Fiction Paperbacks

Longman launch a new paperback imprint, Drumbeat, to include all their African and Caribbean novels, short stories, plays and poetry. The first 16 titles, ready in April, include new novels from Ghana, Nigeria, Ethiopia and South Africa, as well as reprints of Caribbean novels such as George Lamming's In the Castle of my Skin and Samuel Selvon's A Brighter Sun and The Lonely Londoners. There is also a volume of new plays by the young Nigerian playwright Bode Sowande Farewell to Babylon, all of which have been performed and broadcast in this country as well as in Africa, and a volume of new poems, Cascades, by the Kenyan poet Jared Angira.

Among the new fiction is a first novel by a young Nigerian studying at Bradford, Violence by Festus Iyayi. Another novel with a background of turbulence in Africa is Firebrands by the Ethiopian author Sahle Sellassie. Muriel at Metropolitan by Miriam Tlali describes what it is like to be a black woman working among whites in South Africa. All are priced at between 80p and £1·25.

Whitaker's Books of the Month & Books to Come

Contains all these time savers for booksellers and librarians—for only £14.00 per year:

- ★ All books published in one calendar month, listed in one sequence of author and title. It therefore replaces 4 or 5 "Publications of the Week" listings in The Bookseller.
- ★ All books notified to Whitaker's as forthcoming for publication in the next two months, each clearly indicated by a star.
- ★ A report on publishers' errors in wrong allocations of ISBNs.
- ★ With each entry, the distribution address for publishers who do not appear in Publishers in the U.K. and their Addresses.

It also contains:

- ★ A personal and authoritative look ahead at forthcoming books by "Whitefriar".
- ★ Publishers' advertisements.

Note to publishers: Are you taking full advantage of the "forthcoming" listing—for which there is no charge?

Subscription rate for 1979 is £14.00 for 12 monthly issues (January to December) post free anywhere by surface post. Each month's issue is posted in the first few days of the following month. Airmail postage is extra. Subscription order forms from: Subscriptions Dept., J. Whitaker & Sons Ltd., 12 Dyott Street, London WC1A 1DF. Tel: 01-836 8911. Advertisement rates from the Advertisement Manager, as above.

Whitaker's booklists provide the most complete record of books published in the U.K., as well as English-language titles published outside the U.K. but distributed in the U.K. by a sole stock-holding agent

PUBLISHERS CAN GIVE THEIR TITLES MAXIMUM EXPOSURE AT NO COST IN WHITAKER BIBLIOGRAPHIES

In 1978 The Bookseller listed 38,766 books published that year under author, title and "built-in" subject, with references from editors, joint-authors, etc. Entries also appeared as "forthcoming" in Books of the Month & Books to Come and subsequently in the Cumulative Book List, British Books in Print, and Paperbacks in Print if applicable.

Large, medium and small publishers, together with associations, societies, institutions and individuals issuing their one and only books are well represented. Whitaker bibliographies are used throughout the book trade and library world, and the aim is to include all books published in the U.K. or available here from a stock-holding, sole-selling agent.

Combined Whitaker Information Forms and W. H. Smith Subscription Notes are available free of charge from the Book Lists Editor, as well as update cards (yellow for forthcoming and white for British Books in Print and Paperbacks in Print).

It is well worth an occasional check by publishers to ensure the inclusion of all their titles; apart from the book lists, "Publishers Output" (January and July in The Bookseller) is a useful guide. It gives a complete alphabetical list of publishers, together with the number of titles recorded against each during the previous six months. These checks, together with regular details concerning price changes and out-of-print books, will help give the trade an accurate picture of current availability of books in the United Kingdom.

With a little effort on the part of the publisher, Whitaker bibliographies provide free and accurate publicity.

SPRING BOOKS '79

Mammal Photography and Observation

A Practical Guide

approx. 300pp. 0.12.735650.6

This fascinating work is no technical or theoretical textbook but a practical guide to a rewarding pastime—the observation and photographing of mammals.

The Fears of Adolescents

J. H. Bamber

approx. 200pp.

This book gathers information about the fears of normal adolescents in relation to the variables of sex, age and type of school, utilizing a fear survey schedule.

Law, State and Society Series edited by Z. Bankowski, M. Cain, M. McIntosh and W. Chambliss

Marx and Engels on Law

edited by M. Cain and A. Hunt

approx. 270pp. 0.12.154850.3

The publication of this book reflects the recent resurgence of interest in Marxism among social scientists. The book brings together all the most important writings on law by Marx and Engels, many of which have been hitherto inaccessible.

Reading Ideologies

An Investigation into the Marxist Theories of Ideology and Law

Colin Sumner

approx. 350pp. 0.12.676650.9

In this book Marx's theory of ideology is re-examined and contrasted with the position of Althusser. On the basis of the Marxist theory of ideology, the existing reading methods are examined and found to be inadequate, and a new method is proposed.

Italy Before the Romans

edited by David and Francesca R. Ridgway

approx. 520pp. 0.12.588020.0

This book seeks to acquaint English-speaking scholars and students with the results of recent and current excavations and other research on a selection of mainstream topics carried out by leading European scholars.

LIBERTY STYLE
BURNE-JONES
THE ORIENTALISTS

THE ALL COLOUR SERIES OF PAPERBACKS

THE LIBERTY STYLE (Victor Arwas)

Founded in 1875 by Arthur Lasenby Liberty, the shop in London was conceived as an oriental warehouse supplying porcelain and silks. But by commissioning some of the top artist-craftsmen of the time to design furniture, fabrics, jewellery and pottery, Liberty succeeded in popularising the Arts and Crafts style to such an extent that it became known as style Liberty. SBN 85670 444 X pb £3.50

BURNE-JONES (May Johnson)

Sir Edward Coley Burne-Jones was one of the outstanding English painters of the nineteenth century, best known for his dreamlike medieval and mythical subjects. This book contains a representative selection of his work reproduced in superb colour.
SBN 85670 441 5 pb £3.50

THE ORIENTALISTS (Michelle Verrier)

The East had a special fascination for many nineteenth century painters who found its exoticism and ancient customs a colourful world of romance far removed from life in the West. This book contains full colour plates of paintings by some of the great masters of the genre.

PIRANESI THE IMAGINARY VIEWS
Miranda Harvey

The most famous series of Piranesi's imaginary views are the Carceri — Prison Scenes — which are extraordinary for their obsessive qualities obtained by the melodramatic use of light and shade. These, together with the Grotteschi, the Prima Parte di Architetture e Prospettive, the Vedute series, The Fall of Phaeton and many others are illustrated in this book.

HOW TO LIVE A HAPPIER LIFE

MARRIAGE IS FOR LOVING

Muriel James

A new look at an old institution, this very personal book takes a serious and compassionate look at marriage. It is a rich combination of information, personal stories, historical anecdotes, case histories, and exercises — all designed to help readers explore the past, present, and future of their own marriages. Drawing on her years of experience as a marriage counsellor, Dr James explores the basic needs in any marriage — order, freedom, security, courage, privacy, honour, commitment, and intimacy — and goes on to identify and discuss the major issues that every marriage faces. Muriel James believes that marriage is for loving, and in this book she offers insight and encouragement for couples to gain freedom from the past, courage to face the present, and hope for the future.

ENTERTAINING THE SLIM WAY

Lou Seibert Pappas

In a sequel to her acclaimed GOURMET COOKING — THE SLIM WAY, Lou Pappas presents 60 international menus from a Sunday Petit Dejeuner to an Egyptian Barbecue to a Mexican Holiday Buffet, all reflecting today's spotlight on a lighter, leaner, fresh cuisine. Most meals have 500 calories or less, yet are deliciously full — complete with appetizer, main course, salad, and dessert. The author also offers wine suggestions for each of the meals, and a special chapter provides tips for entertaining with an international flair. Many of the easy-to-follow recipes can be prepared in advance, and an appendix offers the calorie count for each item used. Combining the festive atmosphere of international cooking with the attractive lightness of Cuisine Minceur, this book is a must for every host and hostess.

ARTHRITIS
A Complete, Commonsense Guide

James Fries, MD

At last, here's some commonsense help for the millions of people suffering from arthritis. Almost everyone will get this complex medical problem at some time in their lives, and it's best to be prepared, so that life can carry on normally. The first part of the book defines the major kinds of arthritis, the best medications for each individual case, possible surgery, quack cures and how to avoid them, and how to prevent arthritis setting in. The second half of the book focuses on the common problems encountered by arthritis sufferers and how to solve them — general problems like fatigue, stiffness, and depression, problems with pain, problems with reactions to medications, and problems in getting around. There's no reason why, with Dr Vickery's help, almost every arthritis sufferer should not be able to lead a normal productive life and play an active part in defeating pain.

INTERNATIONAL JOBS — Where They Are, How to Get Them

A handbook to over 300 careers around the world

Eric Kocher

The idea of living and working overseas has captivated almost everyone at one time or another. Now, for the first time, here is a practical handbook to help that dream become reality. The book provides vital information for the international job hunter, including the kind of qualifications needed in specific areas. The author focuses on specific international job opportunities like the United Nations, multinational companies, and educational institutions, providing in each instance details of the organization, what opportunities may be available, and the qualifications needed. Drawing on his experience as an international careers adviser, he discusses what an employee can realistically expect in terms of compensation, travel benefits, and on-the-job conditions.

THE TWO-CAREER COUPLE

Douglas T Hall and Francine S Hall

The two-career couple — some say it will destroy the family unit as we know it, others say it's a threat to the status quo of big business, and still others say it's just a passing fad. But for those involved, it's a way of life, and they are the ones who have to face up to the effects of their lifestyle on their relationship. The authors combine sophisticated career development studies, commonsense advice, interviews, and quizzes to focus on the major issues that concern two-career couples, such as competition, moving, managing the home and family, workaholics, sex, stress, splitting up, and staying together and making it work. This is a serious, practical book dedicated to the relationships and sanity of millions of professional men and women.

ANNOUNCING 12 NEW 336-PAGE ILLUSTRATED BOOKS

Each of these fully illustrated books provides a complete, self-contained treatment of an ever-popular subject, from wildlife to exploration, from world history to space. Each book has 336 pages, 120,000 words of text, and up to 600 pictures, two-thirds of them in full colour. All 12 are organised on the "two-page spread" system, originally devised for the Aldus Illustrated Library in 1960 and widely copied since then. Each spread is designed as an independent unit of text and pictures that leads naturally into the next. The system is not rigidly applied : where justified by the subject, whether the predators of Africa or the achievements of Magellan, two or even three spreads are linked to provide adequate coverage. Design and general treatment are adapted to suit the subject. The result is a dozen attractive single volumes with a wide popular appeal.

ECONOMICS ACCOUNTING BUSINESS

Industry, Prices and Markets

W DUNCAN REEKIE

Reviews the structure/conduct/performance model of industrial economic studies and appraises the recent empirical work which has cast doubt on its validity. Recognising the fundamental change of direction in the advanced literature, the book looks at competition as a process rather than a state and shows the way the subject is likely to develop.

Controversies in British Macroeconomics

K A CHRYSTAL

Concentrates on the policy implications of various approaches to macroeconomics, rather than their theoretical bases. The gap is thus bridged between theory and application, and a simple framework provided for introducing the reader to major policy debates.

SPRING & SUMMER 1979

Police of the World
Roy Ingleton

The addition to the popular 'of the World' series of this volume on police of the world recognises that the study of crime and the methods used to combat it is of great importance and that the serving policeman, the professional student, politician and administrator as well as the interested layman require a compact reference guide to the many police forces, their establishment, equipment and methods. Compiled by a police officer, this book collates material from countries, large and small, and uses over 200 photographs to portray uniforms, badges, weapons, etc.

England in Cameracolour: Cotswolds & Shakespeare Country
Photographs: F. A. H. Bloemendal
Text: Alan Hollingsworth

This pictorial study of the Cotswolds and Shakespeare Country captures to perfection the matchless beauty of its architecture and landscape. The expert camera work of F. A. H. Bloemendal avoids the familiar 'picture postcard' scene, to record the true Cotswolds which are so loved by visitor and native alike. A selection of 52 full-colour photographs is endorsed by introductory text and informative captions.

England in Cameracolour: Lake District
Text: Geoffrey Beard

The scenic splendour of the English Lake District offers new scope to the photographic artistry of Dutchman F. A. H. Bloemendal, who in reviews of earlier books has been referred to as being 'in the tradition of the immortal school of Dutch landscape painters'. His blend of purposeful illustration and artistic interpretation shows through in the 48 large-format pictures in this volume.

Battle for Pakistan: The Air War of 1965

John Fricker

In 1965 the Sub-Continent was thrown into turmoil when the armed forces of India and Pakistan were locked in combat. Particularly crucial was the outcome of the air war which many Pakistanis see as a battle for national survival. This book, by a leading aviation writer, is a thoroughly professional study of a fascinating air campaign of the post war period. Over 200 photographs supplement the text.

A Footplate Survey

Ronald I. Nelson

The author recalls 30 years of footplate experience to share the thrill of observing test and service runs in a variety of locomotives and, whilst steam forms the basis of the survey, many different forms of motive power are included. Transport planners and engineers, rail travellers and railway enthusiasts will find the book informative and absorbing reading.

THE BACK GARDEN WILDLIFE SANCTUARY BOOK

Ron Wilson

The modern environment created by man is so hostile to many species of wild life in Britain that they are seeking alternative habitats. One such habitat is the suburban garden, and this unusual book shows how a concerned nature-lover can provide accommodation for plants, animals, birds and insects without impairing their freedom. Beautifully illustrated and including lucid life-cycle diagrams for every species mentioned, this informative and lovingly written book concludes with useful listings of suppliers of specialist foods and equipment.

HOW TO DRIVE A STEAM LOCOMOTIVE

Brian Hollingsworth

In this highly original book Brian Hollingsworth fulfils every steam enthusiast's dream by taking his reader up beside him in the cab of a steam locomotive and explaining in text and pictures exactly what to do – from the routine tasks of oiling round, filling up with water and coupling up the train to the less usual techniques of driving in fog and carrying out emergency stops.

The reader is then taken on two journeys along working lines in Britain and America. A final section describes how to turn the dream into reality, with a discussion of the possibilities for driving locos from full-size down to miniature, and a useful list of live steam clubs in the UK, USA, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Derek Lambert

DON'T QUOTE ME, BUT . . .

A light-hearted look at the author's many experiences as a cub reporter on a variety of provincial newspapers. His first big scoop got him fired on his 21st birthday – the outbreak of smallpox which he reported exclusively, turned out to be chickenpox! Derek Lambert's recollections provide a vivid insight into the production of local newspapers that will delight laymen and enthrall all those young people who want to become pressmen. Derek Lambert does for reporters what Monica Dickens and Richard Gordon have done for nurses and doctors.

THE QUEST FOR THE SWORD OF INFINITY

The first in a trilogy of children's novels which traces the fortunes of Owen Lightbringer, Son of the Sun. With the death of Zoltan, last of the great Sun Kings, the light faded from the world and the High Sorcerer, Zathranax, grew even more powerful as his evil threatened all mankind. Then a young man – half mortal – rises from the ashes of the dying Sun Dynasty to challenge the dark forces commanded by Zathranax. Armed only with the Staff of Strength and the All-Seeing Ring, and accompanied by his Bond-Servant the Wolfeslayer, Owen sets off on his quest to bring the Light back to the world.

Arlington Easy Riders

This is a series of eight books, written by Dr Michael Thomson and Noel Scott, consisting of short stories designed specifically to meet all the needs of dyslexic children and slow readers. There are four reading age levels (8-9 years, 9-10, and 11-12 plus), each of which has been colour-coded for convenience. Each level consists of two books, printed in hardcover and paperback. The authors have incorporated in the text of each story numerous diagraphs, selected letter groups and spelling patterns suited to the various reading levels. To help instructors get the utmost from the books, a Teacher's Handbook will be published in conjunction with the series. This will also contain many useful guidelines on teaching methods.

Causes of Climate

John G Lockwood

As an introduction to the physical fundamentals of climatology, this book incorporates the most recent ideas on climatic change and, for the first time, brings together the wealth of observational evidence in a coherent pattern. It successfully demonstrates how the new climatology, by applying both systems theory and mathematical models, can study in a logical manner the immensely complex natural world.

An Introduction to Metallic Corrosion

Third edition

U R Evans

A major revision of this general, authoritative survey of metallic corrosion. This book has two main aims: to encourage the study of metallic corrosion as a scientific subject in its own right and to give those who do not wish to go so deeply into the subject a clear and correct idea of the basic principles underlying the problems of corrosion prevention.

The British Police

Edited by Simon Holdaway

This book is about the police in society – their traditional position of impartiality, their public image, their internal organisation and the actual content of their work, with its crime fighting and service aspects. They are a central institution of social control in Britain and the fundamental question posed by this book is: who controls them? This collection of specially commissioned essays presents the most recent findings and is the first book to analyse the police in depth and from a wide variety of perspectives.

Maps and Air Photographs

Second edition

G C Dickinson

The author has reorganized and largely rewritten his successful introduction. He describes the gradual extension of world mapping and air photographs against a background of increasing demand and the steady surmounting of technical obstacles. This is followed by an examination of the content and design of the many varieties of map and a description of the problems which maps and air photographs can resolve.

Investigating Chromosomes

Adrian F Dyer

This book strikes a balance between the theoretical and the practical aspects of cytogenetics. Assuming little prior knowledge, the logical theoretical exposition is matched at every stage by practical sections that allow the student to investigate or visualize each stage of chromosome activity as it is introduced. All the practical routines are variations on one basic technique and are applied to a wide range of plant and animal material.

The Investigation of the Surgical Patient

F G Smiddy

The approach used in this book is that the surgeon does not follow the old principle of constructing a differential diagnosis, but rather – on the basis of the history of physical signs – arrives at a diagnosis which he then proceeds to confirm by a series of investigations. These are first explained in detail and then examined critically.

Current Topics in Anaesthesia

Edited by Stanley A Feldman and Cyril F Scurr

This important new series has been produced in order to overcome the difficulty of selecting and retrieving, from the flood of new knowledge, the information that is of immediate value and clinical relevance. It will consist of authoritative reviews on subjects selected by the editors as those in which there is a particular need for a digest of the large amount of literature, or for a clear statement of the relevance of new information.

The first title to be published in this series is:

John Dundee

A survey of the present position of new and established intravenous anaesthetics as seen by the writer, who has been doing research in this area for over 25 years. It also contains suggestions for further research and discusses other topics, such as continuous intravenous anaesthesia and hypersensitivity reactions.

SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL

THE STRUCTURE OF MATTER

An Introduction to Atomic, Nuclear, and Particle Physics.

R.M. Turnbull, University of Glasgow.

A review of modern physics incorporating many of the most recent research findings in particle physics. There are several special features which should make this a useful and practical textbook· specially drawn, highly informative line diagrams; clearly written chapters of carefully chosen length; information summaries at appropriate places in the text; and the inclusion in one book of these three aspects of modern physics.

Readership: undergraduate students in the early years of a degree course in physics; applied scientists wishing a concise review of modern physics.

NEUROSECRETION

S.H.P. Maddrell and J.J. Nordmann, University of Cambridge.

A study of neurosecretory systems: the way in which nerve cells convey information by releasing neurohormones into the extracellular space. The authors purposely avoid excess detail by concentrating on the mechanisms and principles involved, and by considering the generalisations which can be made about the functioning of the neurosecretory systems.

Readership: upper undergraduate and postgraduate students studying neurobiology, animal physiology or animal hormones in departments of zoology, biochemistry, and physiology; students of a similar level studying hormone action and structure in departments of pharmacology.

A volume in the series Tertiary Level Biology.

AN INTRODUCTION TO SEED TECHNOLOGY

J.R. Thomson, Edinburgh School of Agriculture.

Written by a man with world-wide experience of seed breeding, this is a broad introduction to the subject, describing the operations and terminology involved in taking basic seed from the plant breeder and multiplying it to ensure a continuing supply of high quality seed. The author assumes only a basic knowledge of botany and genetics. There is a glossary of terminology in five languages.

Readership: college and university students in agriculture, horticulture, botany and genetics; professional agriculturalists and horticulturalists, and those involved in the seed trade.

ECONOMICS OF THE ENVIRONMENT

Edited by John Lenihan and William W. Fletcher.

Five original essays dealing with the important economic issues which underly environmental matters. Following a general introduction to the economist's approach to the environment, particular chapters examine some of the economic considerations underlying health, industrial safety, fire protection, and the supply of electricity.

Readership: lecturers and students in economics, accountancy, environmental planning, conservation, public and health administration; practitioners in these areas.

COMMUNICA-EUROPA

A Selective Guide to England
Jack Simmons

This is something new in guidebooks. The author has selected about 130 places and buildings (ten of them in London), from small pieces of landscape to large cities, and discussed each of them in a short essay, indicating what he thinks are its special merits and interest. In time they stretch from prehistory to the 20th century. The selection includes some thirty houses – from those of the Middle Ages to the last great one ever built, Castle Drogo in Devon – twenty castles, and eight medieval cathedrals. But it is not confined to the picturesque. Industry and technology find their place here too: Coalbrookdale, canal locks in Yorkshire, St Pancras station in London. The photographs carefully match the text: there is at least one of every place that is described.

Two principles have governed the choice: everything is open to the public, often or always; and everything is, in the author's opinion, worth going specially to see. He is himself an historian (Professor of History at the University of Leicester, 1947–75), who has been travelling throughout the country, making notes on what he has seen, for the past forty years. He offers us here the fruits of those years' observation and reflection.

Regional Guides

South-East England

Oliver Mason

Following the successful formula of earlier volumes in this Regional Guides series, Oliver Mason presents the counties of Kent, Surrey, and Sussex. The introductory essay outlines the geological foundations of the region, and charts man's impact on the landscape. The gazetteer describes a large number of places in the counties, and offers advice on how to view them. About 100 black-and-white photographs are also included.

The Major Biography of the Year

Clementine Churchill

by her daughter, MARY SOAMES

Clementine Churchill was the perfect wife for Winston. For 57 years she supported him through the triumphs, disasters and tensions which ruled his public and private life. Although she was in the limelight throughout her adult life comparatively little is known about her, for she shunned publicity. Her youngest daughter, Mary, has written this major biography with affection and candour, revealing a gift for the vivid and precise phrase that might be expected of Winston Churchill's daughter.

BARCLAY FOX'S JOURNAL
Selected & Edited by R L Brett

Life in Victorian England is brilliantly evoked by a young man whose friends included J S Mill, Thomas Carlyle and W E Forster, later to become the famous Liberal statesman. Barclay Fox (whose mother was a member of the banking family) started his journal in 1832 at the age of 14, and his pages give a unique picture of nineteenth-century society with accounts of chartism, elections, religious issues and scientific interests, among them phrenology, mesmerism, and the changes brought by the railways. Also pictured are the day-by-day affairs of an attractive family, which included the Quaker diarist, Caroline Fox, who was his sister.

ONLY BEGOTTEN SONNETS
S C Campbell

In this study S C Campbell reconstructs the order and meanings of Shakespeare's sonnets by straightforward literary means, showing remarkably that a single addressee can be discerned throughout; the Dark Lady is reinterpreted with such compelling clarity that the reconstruction is further substantiated. The scholarship is considerable and the implications are profound. A literary detective story with dramatic results.

ENGLISH LYRICS FROM SPENSER TO MILTON
Illustrated by Robert Anning Bell

"The design of this volume is not so much to instruct as to delight, not to bring out what is new, but to give fresh life to what is old. Mr Anning Bell has done this by adding to the words of the poet (including Shakespeare, Marlowe, Donne, Herrick, and Campion) the imagination of the artist." John Dennis Librarians and booksellers all over the world from Peking to New York and from Orkney to Cornwall find British Book News an essential guide to new books published in the UK. You have congratulated us on the high quality of our specialist reviews (over 200 in each issue), our 'speedy and wide coverage', our information on technical and scientific books, our bibliographical articles, our valuable annotated list of forthcoming books, and our children's section, with its reviews and articles. Many of you find our introductory section on publishing developments useful.

Some of the things you say about us:
'The most useful single British reviewing periodical' Librarian, Nottinghamshire County Library
'I find particularly valuable the information on new editions — date of previous editions and extent of new materials — and the information on technical books not reviewed in non-specialist journals' Librarian, Stirling's Library, Glasgow
'The accounts of the various books you cover are critical and unbiased. This is certainly what a librarian looks for and hardly ever receives. Thank you!' Borough Librarian and Curator, Hove
'Our readers have shown great interest in reading this journal published by The British Council' National Library, Peking

FICTION

ALL STRANGE AWAY: Samuel Beckett

Highly evocative monologue written in the early '60s. First publication in book form. Feb. £4.50

DETOUR: Michael Brodsky

An uncompromising self-examination of what it means to come of age in post-flower power, post-Watergate, post-Vietnam—in short contemporary America, by an important new author. Jan. £7.95

GROSS INTRUSION AND OTHER STORIES: Steven Berkoff

Fourteen powerful stories to rival 'Last Exit to Brooklyn' in language, vitality and insight into the situation of the outsider. Jan. £4.95

THE MAN WHO TRAVELLED ON MOTORWAYS: Trevor Hoyle

The strange, anonymous world of motorways and their subculture of service stations and brief encounters develops an hallucinatory, demoralising power over the main character. Feb. £4.95

LAMAAR RANSOM—PRIVATE EYE: David Galloway

A fast-moving, 'loving parody' of the tough Chandler detective novel, in which the world of Philip Marlowe is turned on its head, with a range of characters not unlike Howard Hughes, Jackson Pollock, Busby Berkeley and his cast of thousands! Mar. £4.95

THE GHOSTLY TALES OF WASHINGTON IRVING: Ed. Michael Hayes

Washington Irving was the author of a large number of splendid ghost stories, as well as the two great classics 'Rip van Winkle' and 'The Legend of Sleepy Hollow'. Michael Hayes has brought together ten of the best in one volume. Mar. £4.95

THE BRAE HOUSE: Millie Sutherland

An autobiographical novel that tells the story of an orphaned girl from the Highlands going into service, who is confused and uncertain about her feelings for the men in her life. Apr. £5.95

AH POOK IS HERE AND OTHER TEXTS: William Burroughs

Ah Pook, the Mayan god of death and destruction, is the evil genius of the title fiction (never before published). The volume includes 'The Book of Breeething' and 'Electronic Revolution'. Apr. £4.95

PEOPLE AND WEATHER: P. J. Kavanagh

First published in serial form in 'New Writing and Writers 14 & 15', this contemplative novel of the positive power of a passive man is now available as a separate paperback. May £2.25

NADJA: Andre Breton

A gentle and poetic novel by the founder of Surrealism, with period photographs. May £4.95

DRAG BALL: Copi

An outrageous romp through the seamy side of Paris's fashionable Latin Quarter, by the Argentinian actor, playwright and cult figure. June £4.95

BOSNIAN STORY: Ivo Andric

A classic of Yugoslav literature set at the time of the Napoleonic Wars but with the contemporary theme of Eastern influence on the West. July £5.95

THREE DROPS OF BLOOD AND OTHER STORIES: Sadegh Hedayat

Fourteen of the best stories by the leading Persian writer of the 20th century and author of the mystical novel 'The Blind Owl'. Aug. £4.95

NEW WRITING AND WRITERS 16

'Cobble Stone Gardens' by William Burroughs, 'The Kassandra Peninsula' by Michael Moorcock, stories by Elspeth Davie, Dino Buzzati and David Craig, with new work by Neil Jordan, B. C. Leale and many others. Jan. £4.95 cased, £2.50 paper

NEW WRITING AND WRITERS 17

This issue will contain novellas by a number of new and established writers, including Robert Pinget, Jan Cremer, the Dutch writer Harry Mulisch and others. June £4.95 cased, £2.50 paper.

POLITICS, SOCIOLOGY AND PHILOSOPHY (Platform Books)

THE NUCLEAR STATE: Robert Jungk

This explosive exposé and critique of what nuclear power really entails in terms of human life, civil liberties and the environment, has been delayed to allow the author to incorporate the latest evidence. Jan. £5.95 cased, £2.25 paper

POLICING THE POLICE Vol. I: Peter Hain (Ed.), Derek Humphrey, Brian Rose-Smith

A radical critique of the powers of the police, focusing on the terrorism legislation, which comes up for review in March and on the shortcomings of the new complaints procedure. Feb. £5.95 cased, £2.50 paper

NOTHING TO DECLARE: The Life and Times of John Poulson: Martin Tomkinson

The Letters of D.H. Lawrence

Volume 1:1901-13

Edited by JAMES T. BOULTON

The first volume in an eight-volume edition of letters forming part of the Cambridge Edition of D.H. Lawrence. The project will provide a full, careful transcript of every surviving letter and postcard written by Lawrence, with editorial notes identifying recipients, explaining allusions and occasionally reproducing letters to which Lawrence was replying. The first volume contains 580 letters.

Kissinger and the Meaning of History

PETER DICKSON

An intellectual biography of Henry Kissinger which aims to demonstrate why and in what manner the former Secretary of State chose to embrace Realpolitik as a guide to action. Peter Dickson argues that the answer lies in the philosophy of history which Kissinger developed while an undergraduate at Harvard.

Mortal Questions

THOMAS NAGEL

The 'Mortal Questions' in this volume are large questions about the meaning, nature, and value of human life. Ranging from practical and sometimes pressing dilemmas of personal and political life to more abstract problems in the philosophy of mind and metaphysics, Professor Nagel here tries to extend philosophical reasoning in directions that have been relatively neglected by the analytic tradition.

Cantors

A collection of Gregorian chants

MARY BERRY

This selection of Gregorian plainsong chants has been prepared especially for anyone coming to the chant for the first time. The aim is to demonstrate the whole range of chants from the simplest recitative to highly developed melodies. The music is printed in the traditional square notation on a four line stave and detailed instructions for interpretation and performance are given.

The information on the historical background of each chant makes the book particularly useful for schools or for anyone interested in early music.

General Relativity

An Einstein Centenary Survey

Edited by S.W. HAWKING and W. ISRAEL

To honour Einstein's hundredth birthday, twenty-one of the world's leading relativists have collaborated to produce this carefully integrated survey of the current state of research. This unique book which will remain a standard for many years reviews the theoretical and experimental status of general relativity and points the way to future developments such as quantization and unification with the other laws of physics. Anyone concerned with the profound influence that Einstein's theory continues to exert will find this book indispensable.

A nostalgic collection of rhymes, recollections and recipes of the Sussex year

A Sussex Garland

TONY WALES

*The Godfrey Cave Associates annual outing

A Sussex Garland moves through the traditional Sussex year, recording the old customs, listening to family reminiscences of the (not so) good old days and, as a bonus, offering a wide range of time-honoured Sussex recipes for the cook. This is a book – illustrated with well over 100 old photographs and postcards – for anyone who loves Sussex and the English countryside. TONY WALES was editor of the English Folk Dance and Song Society's magazine for 14 years and has lived in Sussex all his life.

Belva Plain

Evergreen

The rich, tempestuous story of Anna Friedman, the beautiful, penniless Jewish girl who arrives in New York from Poland at the turn of the century and survives to become matriarch of a powerful dynasty.
January £6.50 00-222212-4

Jon Cleary

The Beaufort Sisters

The story of four sisters — Nina, Margaret, Sally and Prue — the beautiful and wilful daughters of Lucas Beaufort, the richest man in Kansas City. A sweeping novel ranging from 1935 to the present day by a leading story teller.
January £5.50 00-222037-7

Thomas Keneally

Passenger

The extraordinary story of a human foetus, prematurely rendered conscious by a laser beam, and surveying life with mordant irony from its mother's womb.
January £5.25 00-221629-9

Nancy Keesing

Shalom

In this book Nancy Keesing, well-known author and critic, has brought together a unique collection of Australian Jewish stories spanning the work of fourteen writers from widely divergent social backgrounds.
January £5.50 00-221596-9

Kathleen Conlon

A Move In The Game

Three teenage girls from a North Country town survive a disaster. Thereafter they are linked despite differences in background and temperament. Their lives interweave in this absorbing story set against the social changes in women's lives of the years 1960-77.
January £5.50 00-222377-5

Nigel Slater

Falcon

Robin Royce, a young misfit in Rome's British Embassy by virtue of his Hampshire accent, is plunged unwittingly into a maelstrom of secret, intelligence, sabotage and defection. Falcon is a thriller, fringed with romance and social commentary. Above all, an entertainment.
January £4.95 00-222497-6

Maria Fagyas

Court Of Honour

A dramatic, sophisticated and powerful story of love, death and dishonour, set in the highest circles of Imperial Germany at the zenith of Kaiser Wilhelm II's reign and glory.
February £5.50 00-222134-9

Elizabeth Siefert

Doctor Tuck

In relating an intensely human story concerning the conflict between emotion and reason, Elizabeth Seifert has produced another unforgettable novel about a doctor's world.
February £4.95 00-222177-2

H. H. Kirst

Twilight of the Generals

Hans Hellmut Kirst's most dramatic novel, based on fact, recounts how in 1938 Hitler gained control of the Wehrmacht by cynically framing and destroying the reputation of two honourable top-ranking old-school generals.
February £5.50 00-221045-2

Proteus

A brilliant, action-packed story of one man's fight against a government's terror through his private resistance movement, Proteus.
March £4.95 00-221674-4

John Harvey

The Plate Shop

A controversial, sure-to-be-talked-of first novel of rare literary distinction by a young Cambridge don. It graphically portrays with first-hand knowledge and insight the shop-floor and those who work on it, and the petty realities and poetry of their world.
March £4.95 00-221676-0

Madeleine Polland

Sabrina

A lively, irresistibly romantic story of a high-spirited Irish girl at the turn of the century who almost disappeared behind the convent walls but made her escape to happiness in the nick of time.
March £5.95 00-222427-5

Norman Hartley

Quicksilver

Of Norman Hartley's first novel Maurice Richardson wrote in the Observer "Don't miss this brilliant debut . . . an unputdownable thriller . . . the one for your last night in the condemned cell.' In his new book Hartley enters the world of computer crime — and with equal success.
March £4.95 00-221684-1

The Entity

The horrific yet totally convincing story of a woman ravaged by a spectral rapist.

Mary-Helen Clague

The Winds of Freedom

A rich colourful and immensely attractive novel about the American War of Independence and the young English immigrant who must choose whether she belongs to the old nation or the new. Excellently researched, packed with incident and written with warmth and feeling — a small classic of its kind.
March £4.95 00-221977-8

Deborah Moggach

Close To Home

From the author of You Must Be Sisters — a warm, witty, poignant second novel that delightfully fulfils the promise of her first.

Geoffrey Morgan

Flip

From such titles as The View From Prospect and Summer of the Seals Geoffrey Morgan is well known for his delightful lyrical novels about the East Anglian coast, its wild-life and its people. Set against the beautiful and desolate landscape that the author evokes so well. Flip is the story of an orphan seal pup growing to maturity: overcoming the natural hazards of his kind and resolving the relationship with his dear friend and bitter enemy — man.
March £3.95 00-222231-0

Sol Stein

Other People

When Francine Widmer is raped, the experience affects not only her own personality but the lives and feelings of the three very different men who are involved with her. Sol Stein's latest novel, set in the tough, stimulating world of present-day New York, is a fast-paced, gripping story that exposes both the dark and the bright side of love.
April £5.50 00-222430-5

William Rayner

Wheels of Fortune

Tom Jones restored! Wheels of Fortune, featuring a bold adventurous hero and an even bolder heroine, is a vastly entertaining novel set in the last turbulent years of the eighteenth century, and magnificently parodying the style of Fielding and Sterne.
April £5.50 00-221975-1

Taylor Caldwell

Bright Flows the River

Guy Jerald is fifty-five, a rich, successful Philadelphia businessman. Why does he try to kill himself? This is a story of greed, guilt and agonizing choices, set in contemporary America.

The Landsbird

A quite outstanding first novel on the themes of love and change; a brilliant debut for a new writer.
April £5.50 00-222362-7

Y. Jacquemard and
J-M Senecal

The Eleventh Little Nigger

The curtain was about to rise on a Paris performance of Agatha Christie's Ten Little Niggers. In their dressing-rooms all the cast save one lay dead. The Queen of Crime herself would not have disdained this tribute from two French admirers who have perfectly captured the very essence of her style.
April £5.25 00-231214-X

Jane Sheridan

Damaris

A long, luscious Regency read, which has the lax elegance of Bath and Brighton, the tension of Brussels on the eve of Waterloo, the fierce republicanism of recently independent New England, and the most enchanting heroine ever to captivate all hearts.
April £4.95 00-222163-2

Lucian Truscott

Dress Gray

A story set at the heart of West Point, America's version of Sandhurst though possibly even more exclusive and more surrounded by tradition and sentiment. This powerful first novel sets one cadet against a group of corrupt senior army officers who attempt to cover-up a murder within the Academy.
April £5.50 00-222173-X

Anne Rivers Siddons

The House Next Door

The house next door was haunted. Yet it was brand new, set in an exclusive neighbourhood, brainchild of a brilliant young architect and gift of a doting father to his newly married daughter. It should have radiated joy and echoed to the sound of children's laughter. Instead — tragedy.
April £5.50 00-222273-6

Isabelle Holland

Tower Abbey

The seventh romance suspense novel from this popular author, and one of her best to date. Isabelle Holland's inimitable sense of humour, her lively characterization and her ability to create and sustain excitement all combine to make Tower Abbey a really gripping read.

THE MASTING AND RIGGING OF ENGLISH SHIPS OF WAR 1625-1860

James Lees

The first modern study of the whole era of sail for which firm evidence is available, including the hitherto 'dark ages' of the mid-eighteenth century. As a Senior Conservation Officer at the National Maritime Museum, the author's work has allowed him to assemble – over fifteen years – minutely detailed information. Lavishly illustrated with drawings and photographs and organised for easy reference with a full index and guide to sources, appendices on mast, spar and rigging proportions for the whole period complete an indispensable book.

272 pages (11¾" x 10"). 100 photographs, 540 line drawings. February. £20.00. 0 85177 136 X

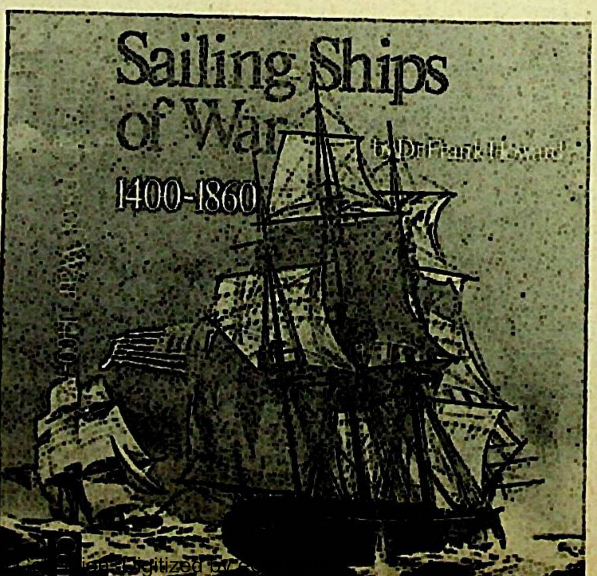
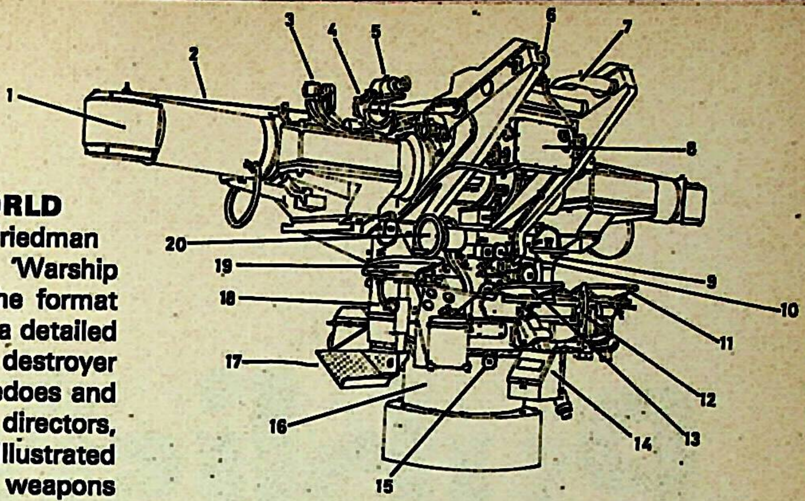
Dr Frank Howard

The wooden warship during the period 1400 to 1860, from the advent of the three-masted ship to the eclipse of sail as the principal mode of propulsion – a work of the greatest value to ship enthusiasts, model-makers and naval historians. The most accurate illustrations, and not the merely picturesque, have been chosen from a large and international selection.

240 pages (11¾" x 9½"). 150 photographs, 32 colour plates, 100 line drawings. May. £12.50 0 85177 138 6.



CC-0. Mumukshu Bhawan Varanas Digitized by



DESTROYER WEAPONS OF WORLD WAR 2 Peter Hodges and Norman Friedman

The third title in the 'Warship Special' series is casebound and the format has been greatly expanded to allow a detailed comparison between British and US destroyer armament – not just the guns, torpedoes and A/S weapons, but their mountings, directors, control systems and electronics. Illustrated with photographs of ships and their weapons and detailed line drawings.

192 pages (9½" x 7¼"). 150 photographs, 100 line drawings. March. £7.50. 0 85177 137 8

SCALE MODELS IN PLASTIC
Roger Chesneau

The third in the highly successful 'Scale Model' series, this book fulfils the need for a general manual of techniques in the growing field of plastic models. Every aspect of the hobby is covered and the chapters on general procedures are backed with specialist sections on aircraft, civilian vehicles, military equipment, figures and ships, contributed by a team of acknowledged experts. Illustrated with 'how-to-do-it' diagrams and photographs of the finest models.

192 pages (9½" x 7¼"). 150 photographs, 100 line drawings. April £7.50. 0 85177 139 4.

BATTLESHIP DESIGN AND DEVELOPMENT 1905-1945 Norman Friedman

The first layman's guide to the design process, the factors which governed the development of capital ships, and the reasons why battleships were built in a particular way.

176 pages (10" x 8"). 200 photographs, plans and diagrams. January (previously announced). £8.50 0 85177 135 1

CONWAY'S ALL THE WORLD'S FIGHTING SHIPS 1860-1905

The first complete listing of all major warships built in the period between the first ironclad and the Dreadnought.

384 pages (12¼" x 8½"). 400 photographs, 500 constant scale drawings. March (previously announced). £18.95 for first three months of publication, £24.00 thereafter. 0 85177 133 5

MODEL SHIPWRIGHT VOLUME 2

Casebound edition of numbers 5-8 (1973-74), of the quarterly journal edited by John Bowen.

400 pages approx. (8½" x 7½"). 250 photographs, 300 plans and drawings approx. June. £12.00 0 85177 148 3

WARSHIP VOLUME 2

Casebound edition of numbers 5-8 (1978) of the quarterly journal edited by Antony Preston.

260 pages approx. (9½" x 7½"). 200 photographs, 100 plans and drawings approx. July. £9.50. 0 85177 149 1

New Books for Spring from Cornell University Press

Paradox and Identity in Theology

By R.T. HERBERT. With ready wit and a lively sense of humor, the author illuminates some of the central issues in Christian religious thought. Influenced by the thought and methods of Wittgenstein, the author seeks out the most persuasive arguments of the skeptics and defends the rationality of paradoxical, yet basic religious doctrines. £9.25

J.R.R. Tolkien, Scholar and Storyteller

Essays in Memoriam

Edited by MARY SALU and ROBERT T. FARRELL. An elegant and fitting tribute, this book is made up of fourteen essays dedicated to the memory of J.R.R. Tolkien (1892-1973). The contributors, a distinguished group of his friends, colleagues, and former students, address a wide range of subjects. £18.75

Rockefeller of New York

Executive Power in the Statehouse

By ROBERT H. CONNERY and GERALD BENJAMIN. This book is at once a history of Nelson A. Rockefeller's fifteen-year governorship of the State of New York and, more importantly, a balanced assessment of his performance. Reviewing the major public projects initiated by the Rockefeller administration, the authors pinpoint the governor's successes and failures, and use them as a springboard for probing the limits of state executive power in the United States today. £11.25

From "The Magic Mountain"

Mann's Later Masterpieces

By HENRY HATFIELD. Here is a rich and rewarding introduction to the later novels of Thomas Mann and to the novelist himself in his artistic maturity. Reviewing the literary harvest of Mann's last thirty years with an acute critical eye, the author explains why the "old magician" can still hold his readers under a powerful spell. £11.25

Plato's "Apology of Socrates"

An Interpretation, with a New Translation

By THOMAS G. WEST. The Apology, probably the most widely read Platonic dialogue, holds a central position among Plato's works. This book offers the first book-length commentary in English on the dialogue, as well as a new, literal translation, accompanied by notes that elucidate important Greek terms and identify political events and personages referred to by Socrates. £9.25

New York

State and City

By DAVID MALDWYN ELLIS. The remarkable diversity of New York State emerges in this panoramic overview written by a distinguished American historian. Artfully interweaving New York City's history, the author covers the highlights of the state's history and explores major themes, enlivening his narrative by referring to local events and important personalities. £7.50

"I don't know how long the drowning lasted . . .
I had passed some frontier and had entered into a new reality . . .
surrounded by something so loving and tender that even today I can find no words for it.

'I' remained present, completely conscious, and simply put myself, into this great hand of light . . .
until my mother drew me up by the hair.

It was a long time before I could overcome the disappointment at being again 'this side' of the frontier and at being taken away from the light."

TO DIE IS GAIN

Johann Christoph Hampe

The Experience of One's Own Death

This remarkable book challenges our conventional ideas about death by examining the testimony of those who have 'died' and been brought back to life. Johann Hampe who wrote TO DIE IS GAIN after he himself experienced clinical 'death' and recovery during a dangerous illness, finds an extraordinary unanimity in these accounts, drawn from all countries, and all periods. In contrast with our present negative attitude, they assert a sense of liberation and the birth of a 'super-consciousness' during the period of 'death'. Johann Christoph Hampe is a minister of the Lutheran Church. He has written over twenty-five books on religion, philosophical and sociological themes, and broadcasts frequently on German TV and Radio. The book has been translated by Margaret Kohl.

Ecumenism and Charismatic Renewal

Cardinal Suenens

Theological and Pastoral Orientations

This is the second 'Malines Document'. It aims to show what specific contribution Charismatic Renewal can make to the movement for the reuniting of divided Christians. Cardinal Suenens writes: 'One of the main obstacles to progress in this ecumenical dialogue is the tendency of Christians to confine themselves to a narrow, abstract and monolithic vision of the Church. In so far as it awakens a warmer receptiveness to the gifts of the Spirit, the Renewal is fostering a truer sense of the ecclesial community and of our joint participation in the building up of this fellowship'.

Watching for Wings

Roger Grainger

Theology and Mental Illness in a Pastoral Setting

A mental hospital chaplain, one time actor and himself an ex-inmate, provides theological and professional insights, which spring from the protected community that he serves. He stresses the more positive side of life in a mental hospital, and takes seriously what the patients have to contribute to theology; while at the same time suggesting improvements for these hospitals. Roger Grainger's earlier book is The Language of the Rite (DLT).

Bernadette of Lourdes

René Laurentin

To mark the centenary of her death

The eminent French theologian tells the story of St Bernadette's life from the first visions when she was fourteen, through the years of endless ecclesiastical enquiries, the time of her first communion two years later, her entry into the novitiate of a Convent when she was 22 until her death in 1879. It is an extraordinary story made more extraordinary by the thousands of pilgrims who throng Lourdes every week. Laurentin's book is at the same time simple and profound.

Mission Resumed?

Michael Winter

Michael Winter's Mission or Maintenance created great interest. Here is its successor designed to help people to prepare for the National Pastoral Congress which the Roman Catholic church will hold in 1980. The author suggests that the church should again become a truly missionary body in England. And that in order to do so today it must adapt many of its structures.

Mother Maria, Her Life in Letters

Sister Thekla (Ed)

Mother Maria was an Orthodox nun who lived as the head of a tiny community, finally on the Yorkshire Moors. These spiritual letters to her many friends provide a highly personal entry into the great Christian tradition of Orthodoxy. A tradition of simple contemplative prayer combined with profound intellectual penetration. Edited by a Sister from the community with an Introduction giving an outline of her life.

The Inward Road

And the Way Back

Dorothee Soelle

Dorothee Soelle turns to mysticism, the inward road to God, drawing on the German tradition, on fairy stories and on current experience. The way to the inner world is not a one-way journey; the way back is an essential part of it. 'Without this return journey the entire human enterprise of an inward journey becomes nothing but a means to the end of private comfort and self-protection.' People have to find a way of living the gospel in the wilderness of the 'contemporary world'.

CHAMBERS' GUIDE TO LONDON THE SECRET CITY

Michael Chambers

Where are London's lost rivers? Who was the vampire of South Kensington? Where can you find buried treasure? Who was the witch at Bow? Where is Dead Man's Tree? Was there devil worship in the City? Who is the ghost of Westminster Abbey? Where are London's secret places?

Packed with street maps, illustrations and lively anecdotes, Chambers' Guide To London The Secret City reveals the unusual and mysterious facts about one of the world's truly remarkable cities. Unlike any other guide book available, this magical tour will be of great interest to British readers as well as the ever growing number of foreign visitors to London.

FICTION

The Island

Peter Benchley

Two men lazing on a game-fishing boat during the hottest hours of a Caribbean day notice a canoe which appears to be adrift. They edge it alongside their boat; one reaches in to pull back the tarpaulin which conceals whatever the canoe contains . . . and the reader receives a shock which reminds him of the famous first pages of Jaws.

With the film rights already sold to the team who made Jaws and book clubs and paperback publishers all over the world clamouring for it, Peter Benchley's newest novel is assured of a spectacular success. It deserves every bit of it.

May 216×138mm 240pp 233 97096 7 £3.95 approx

The Coup

John Updike

This brilliantly inventive and witty novel describes violent events in the imaginary African nation of Kush – a large, landlocked, drought-ridden sub-Saharan territory ruled by Colonel Hakim Félix Ellelloû, the story's narrator. Colonel Ellelloû has four wives, a silver Mercedes, and a fanatic's aversion – cultural, ideological and personal – to the United States. But the United States keeps creeping into Kush; the repercussions of its subversive presence constitute the events of The Coup.

'The novel itself is a coup. . . Updike is a writer whose mastery is indisputable.'
Paul Theroux

Hepzibah
by Peter Dickinson

WARNING!
This book should be kept out of reach of Adults.

Every child that we have shown HEPZIBAH to has, without exception, loved her. Which is, to say the least, unusual. Perhaps it's the sardine ice cream flavoured with honey and ginger. Or may be the Do-It-Yourself helicopter.
Peter Dickinson's reputation as a storyteller is international. In 1977 he won the Guardian award for children's fiction, and he's twice been runner-up for the Carnegie Award. Sue Porter's lively illustrations are packed with hilarious detail.

HISTORY & ARCHAEOLOGY

The Discovery of South America

J. H. Parry, Gardiner Professor of Oceanic History and Affairs, Harvard

The discovery and penetration of South America had a profound impact on Europe. Professor Parry has highlighted this dramatic story with the recollections of those who took part in it – tales of fancied gold in Eldorado, real gold in Peru, memories of parrots, crocodiles and naked Amazons. New research, little-known records and very varied illustrations present absorbing and authentic history.

Industrial Archaeology in the British Isles

John Butt, Professor of Economic History, University of Strathclyde, and Ian Donnachie, Staff Tutor in History, The Open University

Stimulating and comprehensive, this new survey emphasizes three vital points: that industrial archaeology cannot be separated from its historical context; that it cannot be constrained to the period after 1700 – medieval tanneries are as much a part of our industrial heritage as spinning jennies and steam engines; and that further field work and preservation are essential before it is too late. For everyone interested in our industrial past.

THE CHURCH IN OUR TIMES

An Ecumenical history from a British perspective.

RUPERT E. DAVIES

During the last three quarters of a century the rate and character of change in all human affairs have been phenomenal. How has the Christian Church in its various forms reacted to this series of revolutions — revolutions which have often vitally affected its own ways of thinking, its styles of life and its worship? In particular, how has it responded to the idea of visible Christian unity, which long lay dormant, but now has taken fire in the lives of millions of its members?

This book seeks to answer these and similar questions. It gives what is at many points an 'inside story' of the significant events, since the author has taken an active part, and often a leading part, in a great deal of what he describes. £1.95 net

MORNA D. HOOKER

This book, by the Lady Margaret's Professor of Divinity in the University of Cambridge, is certain to be widely acclaimed. It brings a new light on the study of St. Paul. £1.75 net

THROUGH THE EYE OF A NEEDLE

DEREK R. FARROW

The author is the General Secretary of the Division of Finance of the Methodist Church.

In his book, Mr. Farrow takes a Christian look at money and the part it plays in the Christian as well as the Secular Society. £1.75 net

Herbert Austin

Roy Church, Professor of Economic History, University of East Anglia

Sir Herbert Austin was a technologist and a self-made man. His goals were to lower costs and raise the quality of motor car production; to motorize the common man. Business historians have been unable to decide whether Austin should be 'panned or praised' as an entrepreneur. This is the question that Professor Church sets out to answer in this, the fourth title to appear in The Europa Library of Business Biography.

The magic of LONDON'S MUSEUMS

This major guide to London's Museums has a full description of every museum in London, plus over 100 photographs and illustrations. It brings the splendour of London's museum heritage together in one volume that will be welcomed both by teachers and parents.

The word 'museum' once had dust-laden overtones. Not any more. John Lucas, on the staff of the Sunday Telegraph, sets before us the dazzling programmes offered by many modern museums. The splendour of the big museums like the Victoria and Albert are all in the book, but so are the small, lesser known specialist museums: Pollock's Toy Museum with its amazing optical tricks; the National Postal Museum, complete with every British stamp ever issued and every stamp in the world since 1878; the Clockmakers Museum with the oldest collection of clocks in the world.

'Give happiness a chance'

In Spring we are launching a book that promises to be a best-seller in the real meaning of the word. Phil Bosmans' Give Happiness a Chance has already been through 31 impressions in the original Dutch edition, making it the biggest selling Dutch title this century. The German edition has already sold 200,000 in hardback. Now the Italians, the French, the Norwegians and the Japanese are bringing out editions, and Exley Publications announce the world English language edition.

Bosmans runs a phone-in service with recorded messages for people who are depressed. The idea caught on, and now hundreds of people every day ring in when they are in trouble, or for a bit of cheer. These messages form the core of this quite exceptional book.

Bosmans pulls no punches as he talks of boredom, personal aggression, consumerism. His language is not aimed at the pious or the intellectual. It is straightforward and appealing. It has brought hope to thousands of people who are widowed, have just lost a job or are going through some personal crisis. This is a deeply helpful book, which is already creating a sensation on the continent. We're proud to publish this title.

c. £2.50 hardback, illustrated.

About £5·25

The World of an Ant Hill

M. V. BRIAN

Ants have a complex social system, and ant hills are carefully constructed dwellings. The author not only offers a fascinating survey of ant life, but suggests ways in which young readers can make their own artificial nests, convey ants to them and keep them under observation. With drawings by Wilhelmina Mary Guymer, and photographs. £3·95

The World of a Beehive

JOHN POWELL

Many plants depend on bees for pollination, and we in our turn depend on the plants for our food, so the activities of bees are very important to us. Here a Master Beekeeper describes the life of the honeybee and the organisation of the hive and its hierarchy. With drawings by Wilhelmina Mary Guymer, and photographs. £4·50

The World of the Changing Coastline

JILL EDDISON

The coastline is constantly changing, and though some changes take place over thousands of years, others can happen almost overnight. Some of the changes are caused by tides and winds, others by man, and the author has included a list of points of interest around the coasts of England and Wales that young people can see for themselves. With drawings by Wilhelmina Mary Guymer, and photographs. £4·50

PRUNING: WHY, WHEN AND WHERE

by Donald Farthing

Don't butcher your bushes; a simple cut in the right place at the right angle will ensure strong healthy new growth, increase flowering and—in the case of fruit bushes—their yield

DONALD FARTHING, the Daily Express gardening editor, tells you in simple straightforward language why you should prune and when to prune. JIM MATHER, gardening editor of the Daily Mirror agrees with us that it is the easiest-to-understand and finest-book-of-its-kind on the market today.

BANISH GARDEN PESTS AND DISEASE

by Dr. Michael Sturdy Edited by Jim Mather

As every gardener knows to his cost every plant has its own particular problem. The pests and disease which attack one seem to ignore another, so there is no over all garden treatment. The use of insecticides has aroused considerable controversy because of their accompanying health hazards. In this book the author, Michael L. Sturdy who is an agricultural scientist and who has worked both as a plant pathologist and as a researcher brings his specialised knowledge to the home gardener. In dictionary form with detailed cross-reference and plenty of colour illustrations, he helps the reader identify the pest or disease which is attacking his plants and provides instruction for their elimination.

YOUR BIRD TABLE BOOK

by Joe Firmin

A compact guide to the colourful and fascinating birds that visit your garden or windowsill. The author, Joe Firmin, is a field naturalist and writer on wildlife and agricultural subjects and has made a study of the feeding, nesting and roosting habits of garden birds.

This book shows the ideal garden from the bird point of view, gives advice on buying or building bird tables and nesting boxes, and adds advice on the right type of foods and feeding methods.

There are clear and concise descriptions of some 40 birds together with excellent coloured photographs to ensure accurate identification of birds visiting your garden.

COMPETITION DRIVING

by Gerry Marshall

With over 400 successes on the race track behind him, Gerry Marshall is able to tell any aspiring drivers to 'do as I say, not as I do' with conviction.

In this highly entertaining, racily written book, he describes the high speed control of a car, with particular emphasis on its performance during cornering. Although written for the intending or serious Motor Sport competitor, the advice is equally of prime importance to the thinking motorist, who through his own car control wishes to be safe on the roads.

A DICTIONARY OF ARTISTS' SIGNATURES 1500–1920

by Radway Jackson

A new reference source to Artists' signatures and monograms. Over 8000 specimens, mainly European but some Canadian and American entries are included.

The dictionary section is arranged alphabetically by Artists' names, under which their schools of art, working periods and signature variations or monograms are detailed. At the end of the book there is a visual index which is a re-grouping of all signatures and monograms, not immediately identifiable with a key to page reference in the dictionary.

There is also an appendix which lists the Artists included under their schools of painting.

TOWERS' INTERNATIONAL TRANSISTOR SELECTOR
Update 2

by T. D. Towers
MBE, MA, BSc, C Eng, MIERE

There have been violent changes in the transistor supply field this year.

Virtually all the Western manufacturers have ceased to produce Germanium Diodes and small-signal, low-power silicon transistors. The only source of replacement devices will soon lie behind the iron curtain. As a result every published commercial data tabulation is now out of date.

All of this means that a source book with in-depth coverage of iron curtain production will become essential to the electronics world. This is the book they will turn to. It has a further 6000 lines of coverage and covers all current and obsolete American, European and Japanese standard devices.

TOWERS' INTERNATIONAL OPAMP LINEAR IC-SELECTOR

by T. D. Towers
and N. S. Towers
BA (Cantab)

Since the beginning of the 1970's a new generation of circuit design engineers has grown up, for whom the opamp linear-IC is the basic circuit element. To this generation, transistors and other 'discrete' semiconductor devices have been relegated to the position of ancillaries to the basic opamp.

This new compendium is a comprehensive tabulation of basic specifications for over five thousand opamps. The coverage is international in scope and includes opamps not only from the USA and Continental Europe, but also from the United Kingdom and the Far East (Japan)

NARE'S SEAMANSHIP 1862 R. Nares

This is a facsimile reprint, with a new introduction by David R. MacGregor, of the most important seamanship manual of the Victorian "sailing navy". It covers all aspects of ship-handling, rigging, anchors, rope-work, and much else, and is illustrated throughout with fine engravings. It is an invaluable reference work for all who are interested in the way sailing warships were manned and operated — and is useful to model makers too.

ONE OF BRITAIN'S BIGGEST PUBLISHERS

Britain Before Man

by F. W. Dunning, I. F. Mercer, M. P. Owen, R. H. Roberts and J. L. M. Lambert

We live on a piece of the earth's crust which has had an immensely long and eventful history. This book tells the story of how it has travelled the globe and more than once lain at the bottom of the ocean; how it was carried to red-hot depths and sundered apart; and how it was frozen under ice sheets before emerging, with some help from our ancestors, as the unique landscape of Britain.

Britain 1979

This handbook (number 30 in the series) is widely known as an established work of reference. Its aim is not to analyze current events, but to describe the machinery of government and other institutions, and together with the necessary physical and social background, to show the part played by government in the life of the country.

ISBN 0 11 700971 7 244 x 162mm 504pp £7

by F. H. Hinsley, President of St. John's College and Professor of the History of International Relations in the University of Cambridge, with E. E. Thomas, C. F. G. Ransom and R. C. Knight.

For the first time, the authors were given access to British intelligence records as well as to other archives, and received full co-operation from the Historical Section of the Cabinet Office and appropriate government departments. The result is a unique account of the influence of British intelligence on strategical and operational decisions during the Second World War.

THE BMA BOOK OF EXECUTIVE HEALTH

Introduction by the President of the BMA

The strains and pressures of the businessman's life are well known. Stress can lead into a vicious circle of fatigue and sleeplessness when business problems are magnified by a decreasing ability to deal with them. Drugs given to combat resulting high blood pressure can cause a loss of sexual vitality, thus compounding the problems.
How to combat the stresses and resultant illness of the executive life — that is the subject of this authorative new book. Some of the top medical consultants in Britain have contributed to the book.

The Triumphs of Caesar: Mantegna Paintings in the Collection of H.M. The Queen at Hampton Court by Andrew Martindale

Preface by Sir Anthony Blunt. This work on Mantegna's great cycle, now magnificently restored, illustrates all the canvases complete and in detail, and shows the paintings in the context of the artist's life, work and intellectual development as well as their history before and after their arrival in England. The text provides new insight into a most-remarkable Renaissance artistic achievement. Descriptive Catalogue of paintings, related drawings and engravings. Appendices on The Triumphs, Hieroglyphs and Symbolism; The Inscriptions; The Chief Textual Sources. Bibliography, Index.

Puvis de Chavannes by John Whiteley

Foreword by Francis Haskell. The first modern monograph on this great French artist (1824 – 1898), recently commemorated in an outstanding exhibition in Paris. The text explores the diverse and fascinating aspects of Puvis' work, influence and circle. The illustrations show his most significant paintings, drawings and murals — the latter being reproduced in large scale — and each illustration is accompanied by long informative notes.

The Collected Writings of Francis Wormald
Studies in Medieval Art I — 6th to 12th Centuries

Preface by J. J. G. Alexander
The writings of Wormald — one of the great paleographers and medievalists of his time — have hitherto been widely scattered in journals and Festschrift volumes; they are brought together here thematically and chronologically. The 13 essays comprising Volume I include such seminal studies of English manuscripts as 'Decorated Initials', 'The Utrecht Psalter' and 'Calligraphy and Paleography'. Full Index

Corpus Rubenianum Part II: The Eucharist Series (Two volumes)
by Nora De Poorter

These volumes bring together all the available information on the Eucharist Series — a set of Brussels tapestries now in Madrid — designed by Rubens. The author discusses the 'bozzetti' and 'modelli' by the master's own hand, the paintings by studio assistants, the series' history, iconography and technique.

Donatello & Michelozzo — An Artistic Partnership and its Patrons in the Early Renaissance by Ronald W. Lightbown

This volume explores in text and illustration the achievement of two great Florentine sculptors — one well studied and documented, the other known hitherto chiefly as architect. The book examines the implications of continuity and innovation in artistic tradition, discusses the intricacies of Renaissance patronage and presents a wealth of historical documentation, hitherto unpublished, as a basis for further research.

The Second Mrs Hardy

ROBERT GITTINGS and JO MANTON

Robert Gittings' outstandingly successful two-volume biography of Thomas Hardy, completed last year with The Older Hardy, was particularly perceptive in its treatment of Hardy's often tortuous relationships with his two wives, Emma and Florence. With his wife Jo Manton, also a biographer, Dr Gittings has now traced the fascinating life-story of Florence Dugdale, the second Mrs Hardy.

Reggae Bloodlines

In search of the Music and Culture of Jamaica
STEPHEN DAVIS and PETER SIMON

Everyone in Jamaica, from the Prime Minister in his gardens to the Rastafarian elders in Trench Town listens to the latest reggae songs to get an immediate, authoritative line on the political and spiritual pulse of the restless, brooding island. Reggae Bloodlines tells the exciting history of Jamaica, its people, its music, and its spiritual nationality.

Reggae and the Rastamen are now a central feature of the life of the West Indian community in Britain and of the British pop scene. This is a fascinating and strikingly illustrated book for all those interested in Jamaica, its people and its music.

Einstein

A Centenary Volume

Edited by A. P. FRENCH

A lavishly produced tribute to one of the most influential thinkers of our time, published to coincide with the centenary of his birth.

In addition to describing the man's life and works, the book includes personal reminiscences, anotations and abstracts from Einstein's own writings. The book will be accessible to readers with no knowledge of science as well as to practising teachers and scientists.

STEVE BIKO

I Write what I Like: A Selection of his Writings

"As long as blacks are suffering from inferiority complex – a result of 300 years of deliberate oppression, denigration and derision – they will be useless as co-architects of a normal society where man is nothing else but man for his own sake. Hence what is necessary as a prelude to anything else that may come is a very strong grass-roots build-up of black consciousness".

Steve Biko's black consciousness movement proved to be one of the most serious challenges to racist oppression in South Africa in recent years. His brutal death in detention in South Africa hit world headlines and produced much writing about him. This book is the first collection of work by Biko himself. It includes all his most significant writings and political statements including his celebrated testimony in the SASO/BPC trial.

Dread: The Rastafarians of Jamaica

JOSEPH OWENS
with an Introduction by REX NETTLEFORD

Father Owens has put together extracts from tape-recorded Rastafarian discussions to form a systematic survey of the movement's beliefs. His method brings the faith alive enabling us to hear the voices of the believers on such matters as the fate of the blackman in Jamaica, his repatriation to Africa, the person of the late Haile Selassie, the nature of God and what comprises right living and brotherly understanding now.

Beardmore

The History of a Scottish Industrial Giant

MICHAEL MOSS and JOHN HUME, authors of Workshop of the British Empire

By 1900 the West of Scotland was "the Workshop of the Empire" and it was dominated by the firm of William Beardmore, based at Parkhead. The account of this astonishing rise to fortune and its sudden collapse revolves around the life of Sir William Beardmore himself, and gives fascinating insights into the changing fortunes of British industry in the first half of this century.

The book includes many original photographs from the 1890s onwards. In addition it includes a complete list of the ships produced by Beardmore.

POLITICAL PARTICIPATION IN LATIN AMERICA

Volume 1: Citizen and State
Volume 2: Politics and the Poor

Edited by John A. Booth and Mitchell A. Seligson

This two-volume collection explores, from a variety of disciplinary perspectives, the dimensions of citizen participation in Latin American political systems, and how it is controlled, stimulated, or manipulated by political regimes.

Vol. 1: 258 pp. / ISBN 0-8419-0334-4(c); -0376-X(p) / $19.75(c); $8.75(p)

FROM PALE TO PAMPA

The Jewish Immigrant Experience in Buenos Aires

Eugene Sofer

The author examines the Jewish immigrant experience, showing how East European Jews adapted their own forms of economic and social organization to the new world of Argentine culture and society.

ca 225 pp. / ISBN 0-8419-0428-6 / forthcoming 1979.

HACIENDAS AND PLANTATIONS IN LATIN AMERICAN HISTORY

Edited with an Introduction by Robert G. Keith

One of the first books to deal directly with the place of haciendas in the social and economic life of Latin America, this volume stresses different ways in which these institutions used land, labor, and capital, and their comparative access to regional and export markets.

200 pp. / ISBN 0-8419-0319-0 / $18.00

AGRARIAN ECONOMIES AND SOCIAL PROCESS IN LATIN AMERICA

Edited by Benjamin S. Orlove and Glynn Custred

Challenging the standard analyses of rural society in Latin America, the essayists show that a rigid application of North American and European models oversimplifies and distorts Latin American realities. The authors develop an alternative model of economic and social organization.

ca 260 pp. / ISBN 0-8419-0476-6 / forthcoming 1979

AFRICA CONTEMPORARY RECORD
Annual Survey and Documents
COLIN LEGUM

10th Year

The Economist called Africa Contemporary Record "the only [reference work on Africa] worth buying in its latest edition year after year." This annual work reviews the year's important developments and provides a country-by-country survey of each African state. It also includes a valuable selection of contemporary documents. "It would be hard to over-estimate the value of this work for all serious students of Africa."—Times Literary Supplement. "All major libraries should have standing orders for this title and should…continue to keep the previous volumes for their historical value."—American Reference Books Annual.

Vol. 10: 1977-78, 1472 pp. / ISBN 0-8419-0159-7 / $60.00t
Vols. 1-9 are also available.

MIDDLE EAST CONTEMPORARY SURVEY
COLIN LEGUM and HAIM SHAKED

Also edited by Colin Legum, in cooperation with The Shiloah Center, Tel Aviv University, whose documentary sources on the contemporary situation in the Mideast are unmatched, MECS follows the successful format of Africa Contemporary Record by combining in-depth essays with country-by-country reviews. The first volume, covering the events of 1976-77 with great objectivity, was acclaimed by Choice for its "high level of scholarship," "timely and information laden" essays and "exceptional insights." David Abshire of the Center for Strategic and International Studies, Georgetown University, terms it "a 'must' for students and policy-makers dealing with the Middle East."

Vol. 1: 1976-77, 684 pp. / ISBN 0-8419-0323-9 / $65.00

THE SOVIET UNION
Domestic, Economic and Foreign Policy

The members of the prestigious Federal German Institute for East European and International Studies at Cologne have applied their collective expertise on Soviet affairs in this annual review and analysis of leading internal and external developments. The survey provides immensely useful perspectives on long-range issues in the Soviet Union:

Vol. IV: 1976-77, 260 pp. / ISBN 0-8419-0450-2 / $20.00t
Vols. 1-3 are also available.

Standing orders for each of these series are invited.

The Realm of the Terrestrial Planets

Zdeněk Kopal
Presenting for a general readership our current knowledge of the inner planets of the solar system as revealed by the exploration programmes of the past decade. The detailed descriptions of the spacecraft missions and their scientific achievements are in non-technical language. Extensively illustrated in colour and black and white. Equally suitable for use as an introductory undergraduate or pre-university text, for amateur astronomers, and as recreational reading for the wider scientifically minded community.

Geared to the Stars

The Evolution of Planetariums, Orreries and Astronomical Clocks

H C King in collaboration with J R Millburn
This outstanding volume traces the complete history of geared planetary machines, from the inventions of Archimedes to the astronomical clocks of the present day. Although many of the early machines are prized as artefacts, they have seldom before been studied as scientific instruments. The book is based on the personal examination of numerous machines, instruments and clocks publicly exhibited in Europe and North America, together with a study of those described in the scientific literature, and also deals with the craftsmen who made the machines and the uses to which they were put. It is attractively produced in a large format and is illustrated throughout with photographs and facsimile reproductions. The comprehensive coverage and thorough research make it the definitive work on the subject.

The Russian Revolution

Anthony Wood

The Russian Revolution of 1917 was preceded by decades of heated argument among left-wing groups of exiles over the form it should take and over the relation of their various social philosophies to the immediate tactics to be employed. This dialogue between intellectual theory and political action was to continue for some years after the Bolshevik coup, and the purpose of this book is to trace the thread of the dialogue from the years before the fall of the Tsarist monarchy up to the propounding of the New Economic Policy by Lenin in 1921.

Literature

Science Fiction

A critical guide

Edited by Patrick Parrinder

The contributors to this guide present a composite portrait of science fiction as a form of creative literature. The essays establish the common properties of science fiction writing, and assess the history and significance of a field of literature in which critical judgements have been notoriously unreliable. The authors demonstrate that science fiction is not merely a minority taste or a subject for the cultural diagnostician, but an essential component of contemporary imaginative experience.

LONGMAN HANDBOOKS FOR LANGUAGE TEACHERS

A very useful general introduction for those who have only limited training or experience in teaching English as a foreign language. The author is the founder of the International House chain of language schools and his book is based on material which has been used successfully on teacher-training courses at International House in London. Detailed appendices on examinations, structures and books for further reading are included.

Lanuage Tests at School

John Oller

APPLIED LINGUISTICS AND LANGUAGE STUDY

An important discussion on language testing which is relevant to all educationalists even though the empahsis is on English language teaching. The author considers the linguistic basis of all tests of achievement, intelligence and aptitude, and shows how language testing can relate to a pragmatic view of language as communication and to educational measurement in general.

DRUMBEATS

Drumbeats is Longman's new, popular imprint for African and Caribbean fiction, plays, poetry, short stories and oral literature. A new series of paperbacks with full-colour covers, to be launched in June at £1.00 each.

The following titles are reprinting into Drumbeats:

- Edufa
- Sundiata: An Epic of Old Mali
- No Sweetness Here
- Jingala
- A Smell of Onions
- Victims
- The Lonely Londoners
- In the Castle of My Skin
- Ways of Sunlight
- A Brighter Sun

Drumbeats

Bukom

Bill Marshall

A humorous novel which depicts the life of a family in the Bukom district of Accra. The family, headed by the old man, Ataa Kojo, struggle to improve their life-style as they are drawn into the wake of modern living.

0 582 64223 X

Violence

Festus Iyayi

"Violence is committed when a man is denied the opportunity of being educated, of getting a job, of feeding himself and his family properly, of getting medical attention cheaply and quickly."

This is a quotation from a first novel in which two starkly contrasting worlds in a modern African state are forcefully exposed.

B M Sahle Sellassie

A novel set around the 1974 revolution in Ethiopia which overthrew Emperor Haile Selassie. The resentment of the populace at their oppression and exploitation is personified by the normally gentle Bezuneh's violent attack on his boss.

0 582 64243 4

Muriel at Metropolitan

Miriam Tlali

This novel describes the experiences of a black woman trying to find and keep a place in a society where 'white is always right'. The day to day life in a Johannesburg furniture store epitomises South African society under apartheid.

0 582 64232 9

and Other Plays

Bode Sowande

The first new collection of plays in the Drumbeats series. The first two plays, The Night Before and Farewell to Babylon are in a contemporary setting. The third play, A Sanctus for Women, is an adaption of a Yoruba folk tale, in which a desperate woman offers her daughter in exchange for wealth.

STAR TITLES FOR OLDER CHILDREN

Discovering Astronomy

Jacqueline and Simon Mitton

A major contribution to the study of the stars

A significant point in the development of astronomy is marked by the publication of this latest work by two leading authorities.

Written with older children in mind, Discovering Astronomy is a fine introduction to the subject for any non-specialist as it is both comprehensive and eminently readable. It incorporates all the most recent information gained from space exploration, presented under sections with bold headings, and is superbly illustrated with colour photographs and clear diagrams.

Dr. Simon Mitton is already well-known for his appearances on radio and television as a scientific commentator, but he and his wife, Jacqueline, have also made a name in writing very extensively on astronomy. Simon Mitton is editor of 'The Cambridge Encyclopaedia of Astronomy' and is astronomy consultant to 'New Scientist'.

As well as contributing to 'The Cambridge Encyclopaedia of Astronomy', Jacqueline Mitton has also written a school textbook on the subject.

Their book, 'Discovering Astronomy', will make fascinating reading for the whole family and will prove invaluable as a work of reference.

Longman Great Lives

Stars of the past

The lives of the great are always a subject of fascination to the young – how did the seemingly ordinary child become the outstanding figure of adulthood?

Their larger-than-life stories have the character of a novel which can be read as a continuous narrative by all children who enjoy a 'good read' but prefer fact to fiction.

The purpose of this new series is to provide just such an opportunity for reading with enjoyment as well as learning, but at the same time retaining all the appeal of the full-colour information book.

You and Me Storybooks

Based on stories from the BBC TV series

These are the first six storybooks in a series based on the scripts and pictures which have already appeared in the You and Me television programmes for under-fives.

The programmes have proved their popularity with children over many years and these stories have stood the test of many repeats. This is their first appearance in book form, with the original illustrations in full-colour. Originally written as TV scripts, the books are ideal for reading aloud, but the text has also been specially set in large type to make it easier for the child to follow, or to use as a supplement to an early reading scheme.

Each book contains brief notes by Barbara Parker, the producer of the programmes, on the particular theme and purpose of each story. Great value at only 35p.

Concept-development books for reading to young children

This series of pre-school books has been devised to broaden children's awareness of the world around them. Special care has been taken with the design of the books: colour is used sparingly in such a way as to highlight the main point of each page without detracting from its visual appeal; and the print is large and easy to follow.

FUN READING

Bangers and Mash

Paul Groves
Pictures by Edward McLachlan

'These books are good because they are funny books and if you are feeling sad you can be cheered up by just reading a little bit of the books . . . suitable for five-year-olds and for not so good ten-year-olds. And in between. I think the pictures are important because they help the reader. If you get stuck the pictures will help you.'

Yakari and the White Buffalo

Derib & Job
Translated by Bronnie Cunningham

The second cartoon storybook in the adventures of Yakari, the little Indian brave. Through the medium of these cartoon storybooks unwilling readers will be encouraged to familiarize themselves with the printed word.

So compelling are the Yakari stories, so attractive the cartoons, that the desire to read them to the end is irresistible.

In Yakari and the White Buffalo, the mysterious Great Eagle leads Yakari to the secret land of the Buffalo.

Safety and Health

Safety problems in the offshore petroleum industry.

The expanding search for new energy resources has placed many offshore workers in new and challenging working environments; be it working hundreds of metres below the sea or living and working upon a platform many miles from land. This volume contains both the working document prepared for an ILO Meeting of Experts on safety problems in the offshore petroleum industry and the Meeting's Report. The conclusions adopted by the Meeting of Experts should lead to a significant improvement in occupational safety and health conditions.

World Employment Programme

Restructuring of industrial economies and trade with developing countries, by Santosh Mukherjee.

This study traces the history of the basic changes that have occurred in the labour markets of the industrially developed countries in the 1960s and 1970s and the implications for the trend towards freer world trade. The author musters forceful arguments as to why the solution to the current serious unemployment problems of the industrialised countries does not lie in a return to protectionism, and seeks to demonstrate that the influence of imports from developing countries on job losses in the developed countries is slight compared to other factors contributing to the prevailing state of affairs.

The determinants of labour force participation in Yugoslavia by M. Raševic, T. Mulina, M. Macura.

A study carried out for the International Labour Organisation's World Employment Programme at the Economic Institute, Belgrade.

This major country study surveys general economic, social and demographic trends in Yugoslavia, 1953–1971. It describes changes in the rate of economic activity of the population over this period, examines the marital and educational characteristics including the maternal status of females. In relation to economic activity it summarises the census information on the latter according to type of locality (urban, rural or mixed) and economic sector—with some emphasis on migrant workers—and describes the influence of development and employment policies on labour force participation rates.

Trade in place of migration. An employment-oriented study with special reference to the Federal Republic of Germany, Spain and Turkey by U. Hiemenz and K. W. Schatz.

Until the end of 1973 huge numbers of migrant workers from various Mediterranean countries were employed in European market economies north of the Alps. The authors of this study consider, with special reference to the employment of Turkish and Spanish workers in the Federal Republic of Germany, whether economic growth in both groups of countries would not have been more marked if the developed countries, instead of bringing in workers from developing countries, had exported capital to them and thus established an economically more efficient international division of labour.

Other Social Issues

Collective bargaining in industrialised countries. Recent trends and problems. Vienna Symposium, 2-9 November, 1977. Labour-Management Relations Series, No. 56.

This symposium is one of a series of symposia held as a follow-up to the Tripartite Advisory Meeting on Collective Bargaining (Geneva, May 1976) and designed for different regions or different groups of countries, in order to permit a fruitful discussion of the major trends and problems in the field of collective bargaining and of the way in which this means of action can be promoted, bearing in mind the constraints.

New forms of work organisation

A collection of country monographs, followed by more broad-ranging comparative studies including a first assessment of the economic cost and benefits of measures for the humanisation of work. The monographs, while reflecting the considerable differences among national approaches and experience, demonstrate the general trend towards increased adoption of new forms of work organisation in different contexts, the difficulties and complexities involved and the potential for success.

Older workers: Work and retirement. Report VI (1). International Labour Conference, 65th Session, 1979.

On the basis of this report, which includes a questionnaire, problems encountered by men and women approaching the end of their working lives or past retirement age will once more be discussed by the International Labour Conference in 1979. After suggesting a possible definition of the notion of "older worker" the report deals with issues concerning discrimination on grounds of age, income protection, training, social security, etc. It analyses measures taken at national and international levels with a view to ensuring quality of opportunity for older workers.

The Westward Enterprise English Activities in Ireland, the Atlantic, and America, 1480-1650
K. R. Andrews, N. P. Canny, and P. E. H. Hair, Eds.

From the 1480s onwards, the English nation directed an increasing share of its activities to the Westward. The conquest and re-population of Ireland was resumed, the North Atlantic explored, the white settlement of North America begun. In its progressive and destructive aspects, this enterprise set the stage for much of the later history of Europe and America. In this important volume, an international group of scholars examines the history of that period and presents the advances in historical research into English expansion which have occurred in the last half-century.

Shakespeare's Comic Sequence
Kenneth Muir

This is a companion volume to Shakespeare's Tragic Sequence, in which the author considers all Shakespeare's comedies and tragi-comedies, from The Comedy of Errors to The Two Noble Kinsmen, both according to genre and individually. He maintains, consistently, the critical view that he took of the tragedies and insists that there is no such thing as Shakespearian Comedy: there are only Shakespearian comedies.

Revolution and Survival: The Foreign Policy of Soviet Russia 1917-18
Richard K. Debo

This study, which incorporates new reference material from Soviet archives, is a thorough analysis of the development and impact of Soviet foreign policy in the year following the Revolution. It examines the sequence of events which led Lenin to substitute a policy of political survival for the original Bolshevik aim of promoting 'world revolution', his preoccupation with ideology, his thoughts on power, revolution, and propaganda, and how in perilous circumstances, he and his associates were able to safeguard their weak regime and entrench themselves in power.

The Repression of Heresy in Medieval Germany
Richard Kieckhefer

In this balanced and readable study the author refutes the idea that the repression of heresy was the work of a well-organized inquisition, a centrally controlled papacy, or class forces. It was erratic, haphazard; very much the work of impulsive individuals, and directed mostly at those who assumed religious lifestyles without joining a religious order or taking vows.

Maurice Kirk

Population trends in Europe are attracting the attention of demographers, economists, and social historians, and the increasing concern of politicians and informed citizens. The marked decline in fertility, the increasing social cost of supporting an aging population, the increasing divorce rates and the changes taking place in the notion of the family as the basis of society, are issues which will deeply affect the economic, political, and cultural life of Europe between now and the year 2000 AD. This authoritative work, based on the research of the Committee for Population Studies of the Council of Europe, is mandatory reading for all concerned with the future of Europe.

Business and Businessmen: Studies in Enterprenurial History
Edited by Sheila Marriner

Business history, as a discipline, is closely connected with economics, politics, technology, and accountancy. In this volume, experts in these fields examine the economic and business history of a range of important enterprises in steel, engineering, railways, and shipping. The writings of contemporary economists such as J.K. Galbraith and others, are also examined in the light of comparative experience in Britain and Japan.

Famine in Tudor and Stuart England
Andrew P. Appleby

This important study challenges the widely-held belief that early modern England was spared subsistence crises and shows that the northwestern English countries suffered severe famines in 1587, 1597, and 1623. The author demonstrates through the use of advanced techniques and systematic analysis, that the deaths were not caused by epidemic diseases as most historians have maintained, but by starvation. This work is a major contribution to the social and economic history of two decisive periods in English history.

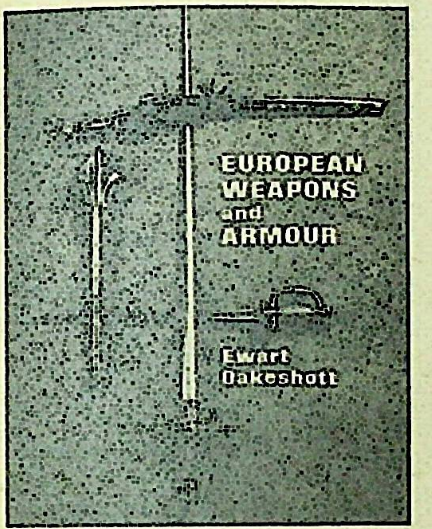
EUROPEAN WEAPONS AND ARMOUR

From the Renaissance to the Industrial Revolution

Ewart Oakeshott



Stimulating and authoritative, this outstanding work of scholarship is a treasury of information for all collectors and students of arms and for war and social historians. The book is a sequel to the author's widely acclaimed The Archaeology of Weapons which took the story of arms from the Bronze Age to the Age of Chivalry. Now he progresses from the French invasion of Italy in 1494 describing the trend towards new armaments and new methods of warfare which the French invasion was to accelerate: the development of handgun and pike; the use and style of staff-weapons; the mace, the axe and the war-hammer; how armour attained its full Renaissance splendour and then suffered its sorry decline; the inter-relation of sword and dagger, bayonet and dirk; the long history of the sword and the rapier, from the medieval war sword to the exquisite small swords of the late eighteenth century when the sword ceased at last to form a part of a gentleman's everyday garb; and the archaeological terminus of the Industrial Revolution with its mass production of armaments and the ascendancy of bayonet and cannon.

In 1950 the author founded the Arms and Armour society – now a flourishing and authoritative concern with a worldwide membership.

The Beatles Forever

Nicholas Schaffner

The ultimate Beatles book! This is both a lively history of the Beatle years and the most extensive collection of Beatlemania ever put into print. Included are hundreds of photographs, many never before published, not only of the Beatles themselves but of albums and singles sleeves, memoribilia from twenty countries, and records released around the world. For the millions of fans who fell under their magic spell, here is a book that captures the essence of the Beatles phenomenon.

Shadowland

William Arnold

Shadowland is the harrowing story of what happened to one of the world's most gifted and talented actresses when she was torn away from the glittering world of Hollywood and forced into the terrifying brutality of a state insane asylum. Incarcerated against her will, she was subjected to shock treatment and repeatedly raped — yet survived. William Arnold spent three years interviewing friends, relatives, and doctors in his search for the truth. What he discovered is one of the most dramatic and astonishing true stories of our time.

A Time for Truth

William E. Simon

Preface by Milton Friedman
Foreword by F.A. Hayek

In this fascinating book, Mr. Simon, Secretary of the American Treasury from 1974 to 1977, presents both his personal philosophy and an insider's revealing picture of the Nixon and Ford Administrations. He aims to inspire his reader to a critical awareness of the real and unbreakable connection between economic and political freedom. To lose one is to lose the other, and we are losing both in the wake of the expanding state, he warns. But Mr. Simon does more than reveal the dangers of too much government: he offers a blueprint for a "counter-intelligentsia" to preserve our freedom.

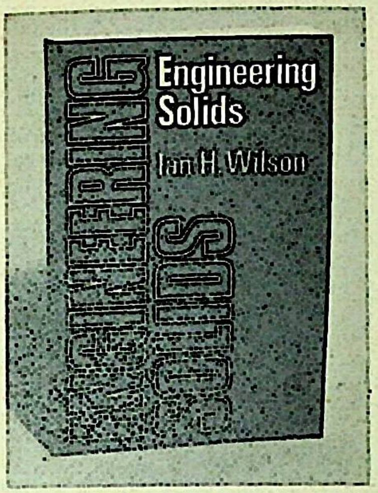
General and Technical



Microelectronics

Jacob Millman

Written primarily for electrical engineering students, the scope of this book should also make it valuable for practising engineers and scientists. It is chiefly concerned with the analysis and design of modern electronic circuits and systems, and maintains an applied, practical approach throughout. There is a thorough discussion of the p-n diode, the bipolar transistor, the field-ellect transistor, the charge-coupled device, and integrated-injection logic, leading to an understanding of their operation and how these devices are combined to form microelectronic chips with distinct and useful input-output properties.

ISBN 07 042327 X 1979 £18.40

Engineering Solids

Ian Wilson

This book is a very readable and non-mathematical introduction to the structure, properties, and technology of solids. Designed primarily for engineering students in universities, polytechnics, and technical colleges, it is intended to serve as a first course in solid state physics and materials science. Simple models are used early in the book and are gradually expanded until the most sophisticated concepts are explained in a manner ideal for those not primarily involved in pure science.

ISBN 07 084083 0 1979 £4.50

Matrix Methods for Engineers and Scientists

Stephen Barnett

Matrix algebra is an essential and practical tool for virtually all users of mathematics. Based on many years experience of teaching matrix methods, and of active research in applied matrix problems, this book develops matrices in a non-abstract fashion (rather than through the conventional, formal route of linear algebra) laying emphasis on topics of value for application. Clear explanations are presented with a minimum of formal proofs, and there are many exercises and problems with the answers provided.

SPRING INTO STEP

GIRL by Gerald Green (F)

A warm and enchanting tale by the author of "The Last Angry Man" and "Holocaust".

"Girl" is a modern parable of an old man whose love for his dog enables the dog to talk, and the way in which their relationship is first threatened and then destroyed by modern society.

March/96 pp./216 × 148

THE ALEPH SOLUTION by Sandor Frankel and Webster Mews (F)

"The Aleph Solution" is a chilling thriller. A novel of the ultimate terrorist act: the world held at ransom: Sandor Frankel's last book, "Beyond a Reasonable Doubt" was awarded the Edgar Allan Poe Award for the best True Crime book of the year.

April/256 pp./216 × 148

MURDER AT THE MARGIN by Marshall Jevons (F)

Economics is the study of mankind in the ordinary business of life. But murder is not "ordinary business". In the tradition of the great fictional detectives, Henry Spearman, a gentle professor astonishes the police by solving crimes using as a premise the immutability of economic laws.

ECOLOGISTICS — An encyclopedia of alternatives by Patrick Howden (NF)

"Ecologistics" is an encyclopedia of Alternative Technology for do-it-yourselfers, hobbyists, companies and governments suggesting possible solutions and alternative approaches to problems.

The scope of the book covers housing, power, transport, heating, food production and recreation.

Patrick Howden has been travelling all over the world for the past ten years researching this landmark study.

WITH

THE BIG PADDLE by Robin Moore (F)

A great new novel by the author of "The French Connection".

"A tale of tall con, superior hustle, and true love that makes a fine read. Put your money on this one" — Jimmy Breslin, author of "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight".

"The Big Paddle" is to be a movie produced by Mike Frankevitch.

P.M.T. — Pre Menstrual Tension, the world's most common disease and how to overcome it by Judy Lever and Brian Haynes (NF)

Pre Menstrual Tension is the most common syndrome that effects women everywhere, yet few doctors even acknowledge its existence. Britain is the acknowledged world leader in PMT research, yet even here most doctors still deal with the problem by prescribing tranquilizers and aspirins.

The authors, under the direction of one of the most eminent practitioners in the field, explain the issue for the ordinary woman, its effects and current medical research.

August/272 pp./216 × 148
0 86161 007 5/4.95

PALOMINO by Elizabeth Jolley (F)

"Palomino" is an astonishing first novel, a tender love story which will move and surprise all readers.

Elizabeth Jolley describes with a bell like clarity the physical and emotional isolation of Laura, a sixty year old ex-doctor, living alone in isolated outback Australia, and her joys and pains when she falls in love with a much younger person.

June/320 pp./216 × 148

WOMEN, SEX AND PORNOGRAPHY by Beatrice Faust (NF)

In a highly original work, Beatrice Faust examines the issues of erotica and pornography, and links these issues with society's views on women and their sexuality.

"Women, Sex and Pornography" is an insightful and controversial book, with original views on pornography, sexuality, romantic fiction, censorship and rape. The book also contains photographic sections illustrating the author's points.

THE ROYAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY'S ENCYCLOPAEDIA OF PRACTICAL GARDENING

Consultant Editor: Christopher Brickell Director of the Royal Horticultural Society's Garden at Wisley

Produced jointly by Mitchell Beazley and the Royal Horticultural Society, this truly practical and comprehensive eight-volume encyclopaedia of modern gardening techniques combines clear illustrations with concise easy-to-read text. Especially designed for practical use in the garden, each book has a spiral binding and a protective transparent sleeve. The first two volumes are published this Spring.

Both books 96 pages 9 x 11½ in 2-colour throughout £3.95 Spiral bound March 79

Pruning

All aspects of pruning are covered in this manual, which includes sections on roses, deciduous shrubs, evergreens, climbers, vines, fruit trees and fruit bushes. Each section commences with a comprehensive outline of the pruning techniques relevant to its subject, and these skills are then explained simply in 2-colour step-by-step diagrams.

MY HEAD AGAINST THE WALL

by Vera Sheppard

with a Foreword by Eric Heffer, MP

In a 1978 survey a clear majority was in favour of a ban on fox-hunting and 75 per cent. thought hare-coursing should be banned. In this hard-hitting and controversial book M/s Sheppard records a decade in the long battle to bring wild creatures within the protection of the law. The author's personal involvement brought her into conflict not only with those known to support blood sports, but also with the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and in 1970 she was instrumental in the formation of the RSPCA Reform Group . . . A book of searing intensity.

INSTANT ASTRO FOR YACHTSMEN

by John Wright

Designed especially for the yachtsman with limited time for study, this book provides a complete—and very practical—course in astro navigation; it will enable him to navigate the deep seas after absorbing as much theory as is needed in learning to drive a car. Everything possible has been done by the author to simplify the approach by making use of a specially designed worksheet which serves as a constant guide: practical exercises are included, and the text is supported throughout by two-colour diagrams.

THE GOOD SHOT

by R. Fraser Willett

A detailed and practical handbook—illustrated by 64 drawings—designed to provide the beginner with a comprehensive guide to sporting guns (their construction, handling and characteristics) and their use in the field. It will also be a useful vade mecum for the experienced shot.

JAN STEWER

the biography of A. J. Coles

by D. J. Cock

with a Preface by J. C. Trewin

A. J. Coles was the creator of 'Jan Stewer'—dialect humorist, playwright and actor. Known throughout the West Country for his books and his comic sketches (though he had also played leading man in a successful production at the Haymarket Theatre), Coles was the authentic popular voice of a region. This is the first biography.

THE IRON BRIDGE

by Neil Cossons & Barrie Trinder

1979 sees the bi-centenary of Britain's most important industrial monument—the first bridge ever to be built of iron. This book discusses the technological background of the eighteenth century and then describes in detail the concept and engineering design of 'the Iron Bridge' at Coalbrookdale, its construction, the social and technological impact it made, and the complex story of its recent restoration; the text will be heavily illustrated throughout. Barrie Trinder is the author of The Industrial Revolution in Shropshire; Neil Cossons is President of the Association for Industrial Archaeology and Director of the world-famous Ironbridge Gorge Museum.

WESSEX DIALECT

by Norman Rogers

This study examines the origins, development and everday usage of local speech in Dorset, Somerset, Wiltshire and their adjoining counties. An introduction outlines the origin of the English language and is followed by chapters on pronunciation and the variations of pronunciation in different regions of Wessex; the grammatical features that differentiate dialect from standard English usage; and the origin and meaning of words used. The final—and longest—section of the book is a glossary of dialect words.

£4·25

LANDSCAPE & LABOUR

by Richard Jefferies

A new collection of essays compiled and edited by John Pearson

With the recent upsurge of interest in Richard Jefferies, a new collection of essays—most of them never before gathered into a book—is something of an event. About half of them are concerned with the countryside and rural life, while the second part expresses Jefferies' always-interesting views on working conditions and agricultural wages. The editor contributes an introduction and a comprehensive bibliography of Jefferies' printed works.

LEONARDO DA VINCI: TEXTILE DRAWINGS

by Kenneth G. Ponting, M.Litt.

Fifty-five full-page reproductions of Leonardo's drawings of textile machines from the Milan and Madrid collections. In his introduction Kenneth Ponting discusses the drawings in relation to the technical development of textile manufacture in the fifteenth century, while Leonardo's complex notes to the Milan drawings have been newly translated for this book. It is a fascinating contribution both to the study of early engineering and to the great artist's methods.

THE CHURCH IN ENGLISH LIFE

by J. H. Bettey, M.A., Ph.D.

A social history of the Church from the medieval period to the nineteenth century which describes the relationship of the parish church to parish affairs and its influence on them—the Church in the early period as a dominating force in 'local government'; the ways in which money was raised to build churches; the changing styles of church decoration and furnishing; the impact of the Reformation and the Civil War on parish affairs; the social influence of church ales and other fund-raising activities; and the changing role of the Church in nineteenth-century industrial England.

HISTORIC FORESTS OF ENGLAND

by Ralph Whitlock

The story of the indigenous forests of England from earliest times, showing how they have dominated and moulded English life throughout the centuries. It traces the history of the great forests, and deals with hunting, the flora and fauna of the forest, its folklore, and the associated industries of timber-felling, charcoal-burning and other 'rural crafts'. The book will be heavily illustrated, with eight pages in colour.

CANALS REVIVED

by Roger Squires

The growth of interest in Britain's inland waterways is a fascinating social adventure. This book recounts in detail the way in which small groups throughout the country set out to revive their local canals. It tells the story of their achievements and failures from the founding of the Inland Waterways Association in 1946 down to the present—with Job Creation Schemes assisting in restoration and many new stretches of canal opened to the public —and discusses future plans and possibilities. Illustrated by maps and photographs.

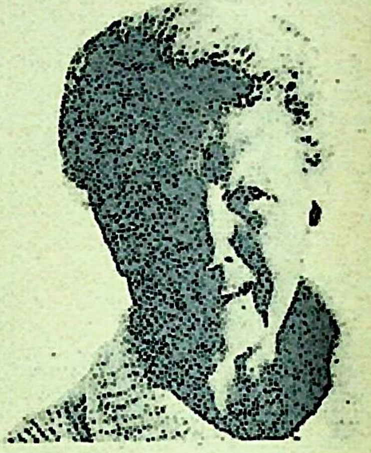
JOHN MURRAY
February to June 1978



Mary Renault
Praise Singer

In her new novel of ancient Greece, Mary Renault turns to the world of the poet — the bard who since the time of Homer had sung his verses from memory for the occasions of the court.
This is the life of Simonides, who lived in sixth-century Greece during the time of the tyrants, the Persian wars, and a great flowering of the arts.
With her usual brilliance, Mary Renault builds on the little source material available and transforms it into a marvellously rich and full re-creation of life in the world of ancient art.

Kenneth Clark

The Best of Aubrey Beardsley

When Aubrey Beardsley died in 1898 at the age of twenty-six, he was better known for the shock his drawings had on the public than as one of the great illustrators in the history of British art. Sir Kenneth Clark here selects his favourites from Beardsley's work and in his introductory essay and commentaries places him among the great artists.

Impreso of Cosimo de Medici

Froude's Life of Carlyle

Abridged and Edited by John Clubbe

Carlyle was one of the most eminent of Victorian writers, but when Froude's biography of him was published in 1882 and 1884 the book's formidable length of four volumes and the criticism that it presented a flawed portrait discouraged readers. Professor Clubbe's masterly edition has restored to literature and to our appreciation a masterpiece long hidden.

FAIR ISLE KNITTING

A PRACTICAL HANDBOOK OF TRADITIONAL DESIGNS

The Fair Isle is part of the Shetland Islands and has an ancient knitting tradition influenced by the Viking and Norse raiders, Norwegian settlers, even Spanish seamen ship-wrecked after the Spanish Armada. The distinctive geometric patterns and warm natural colours found a tremendous popularity in the 1930s and are again highly fashionable.

Sarah Don begins her book with a historical background to Fair Isle knitting and introduces the knitter to the basic techniques and materials as well as Shetland wool, colours, repeats, knitting on the round, circular needles, the knitting belt, yarns, tension, sizes, fittings, grafting and after-care.

The second part of the book gives full knitting instructions and charted patterns to knit 13 garments in traditional Fair Isle patterns for men, women and children:

Man's Round-Neck Pullover
Boy's Round-Neck Pullover Child's Cardigan
Child's Hat and Scarf
Man's Round-Neck Jumper
Man's Jumper with Cross-Over Collar
Lady's Jacket
Lady's Yoked Cardigan
Man's V-Neck Pullover
Child's Zip-Neck Jumper Lady's Round Neck Jumper
Lady's Scarf and Mittens
Fisherman's Jumper

Sarah Don became a professional knitter after training at art college. She became fascinated by the intricate beauty of Fair Isle patterns and went to Fair Isle with her photographer husband to research authentic designs.

246 × 189mm (10 × 7½ins), 128 pages, 118 charted patterns, 60 photographs including 16 in colour, 4-colour jacket, casebound, 0 263 06383 6, £5.50 net, June 1979

A complete guide to clothes repair

Those who have torn a well-loved suit, ripped an expensive silk blouse and found that the cost of professional repair exceeds the original price of the clothes; the mothers of children whose activities seem solely designed to put holes in new clothes, or those saints among us responsible for the mundane but money-saving tasks of turning worn collars and cuffs will be thankful for this the first comprehensive guide to clothes repair. Maureen Goldsworthy explains: darning by hand and machining, patching, repairing knitted fabrics whether hand or warp knitted or double jersey, mending with adhesives, repairs to special fabrics such as velvets, towelling, lace, embroidery, rubberised fabrics, leather, suede or fur (including fake fur).

In expert fashion Mrs. Goldsworthy also covers types of damage: split seams, buttons and buttonholes, jacket cuffs, pockets, re-seating trousers, waistbands, shirt collars and cuffs, zips and worn armholes as well as camouflaging, re-inforcing, panel replacement and re-lining.

Maureen Goldsworthy is one of the best known writers of books on dressmaking working today. Among her publications are KNOWING YOUR SEWING and KNOWING YOUR DRESSMAKING, both published by Mills & Boon.

The Indian Epicure

Classic Recipes from North India

Westerners tend to be ignorant o the great regional variations of Indian cooking thinking that somehow 'curry powder' (in itsel a fiction in authentic Indian cooking) binds together the whol sub-continent.

Much as French classic dishes ar considered the haute cuisine of European food so Punjabi is ranked pre-eminent among India cooking.

Meera Taneja has made, over the years, this comprehensive and authoritative collection of Punjab recipes covering: Starters and Appetizers, Breads, Rice, Vegetables, Pulses, Meat and Poultry, Yoghurt, Sweets and Desserts, Fruit Drinks, Chutney and Pickles. In addition there are also useful sections on Snacks, Complete Menus for All Occasions, Unusual Fruits, Her and Spices, as well as Indian Terms. Meera Taneja's full and succulent text is decorated by evocative photographs of the gastronomic delights of her nativ land.

Meera Taneja is a Punjabi who, a a diplomat's daughter, learned early the essential Punjabi art of friendly, gracious and, above all, generous entertaining.

History around us series:

1 Roman Britain 0 263 06389 5
2 Saxon and Norman Britain 0 263 06390 3
3 Medieval Britain 0 263 06391 7
4 Tudor and Elizabethan Britain 0 263 06392 5

The evidence of the past is all around us – the ancient sites of prehistory, roman forts, houses, roads and fortifications, castles, cathedrals, canals, farms, humble houses and magnificent mansions.

Each volume in this series tells the history of its period through the visual and visitable remains left to us. The sites, buildings and other artefacts are placed in the context of their period and thus in an exciting and immediate way speak to us of their history.

Further books covering the 17th and 18th centuries, the Industrial Revolution, the Victorian and Edwardian ages will be added to these initial volumes.

Henry Pluckrose, a distinguished educational theorist and writer is both General Editor of the series and author of SAXON AND NORMAN and MEDIEVAL BRITAIN; Frederick Wilkinson has written TUDOR AND ELIZABETHAN BRITAIN and Warren Farnworth, the volume on ROMAN BRITAIN.

2 The Wild Boar 0 263 06385 2
3 The Field Mouse 0 263 06386 0
4 The Weasel 0 263 06387 9

It is rare among children's natural history books to find beautiful illustrations which are also extremely accurate and realistic combined with a text that conveys information dramatically yet unsentimentally. The reader thus follows the life of the animal through one full year and gets a true insight into the animal world of the wild forest.

MAKING LINGERIE AND NIGHTWEAR

Over the last few years there has been a revolution in styles of lingerie and nightwear. Gone is the protective wear of solid wool or other robust but forbidding materials. In its place is a renewed sense of elegance and sophistication. Unfortunately, to buy good and stylish lingerie one too often needs an elegant and sophisticatedly full bank balance!

Nick Bullen, a young dress designer, here gives full instructions for making:

basic bikini underwear, waist slips, camisole tops, full slips, French knickers, four styles of nightdress, men's pyjamas, four housecoats, and eight stylish negligees.

Throughout there is the stamp of elegance matched by good practical construction.

TRADITIONAL SMOCKS AND SMOCKING

First published in 1965, ENGLISH FOLK EMBROIDERY, as it was then titled, quickly became a standard introduction to the traditional craft of smocking and that practical, as well as beautiful garment – the smock – with its interesting construction and rich yet simple surface embroidery. In its traditional form it differs from the peasant embroidery of most other countries in being independent of the use of colour contrasts, but there are of course later developments in which the use of colour plays an enjoyable part.

Œonone Cave here traces the history of the garment, as far as it is known, describes in detail the main smocking stitches and surface stitches, and offers practical suggestions for modern applications of this ancient, and yet again fashionable, art. There are chapters on:

- The Evolution of the Smock
- An Expression as Folk Art
- The Smock as Folk Costume
- Smocking
- The Surface Embroidery
- The Modern Adaptation of Stitch and Design
- Finishings and Neatenings

The text is supplemented by a varied range of pictures which mixes photographs of historic smocks and smocking as well as practical diagrams and working charts.

Massimo Salvadori
Karl Kautsky and the Socialist Revolution 1880-1938

This book is the first modern work of scholarship devoted to this central socialist thinker. Salvadori meticulously traces the development of Kautsky's ideas over his long career, concentrating on his notions of democracy, revolution and socialism, and shows — among other things — that Kautsky presaged virtually every major idea of contemporary Eurocommunism.

Fifteen Thousand Hours: secondary schools and their effects on children

Michael Rutter, Barbara Maughan
Peter Mortimore, Janet Ouston

What effects do schools have on children? Do those effects vary from one school to another? On average, children spend some 15,000 hours at school, yet remarkably little is known about how that experience affects their development. This book presents the findings of one of the most detailed investigations of these questions ever undertaken. It compares the progress of over 2000 pupils in twelve secondary schools in inner London, and suggests that while some of the schools seemed to have provided a positive influence on their pupils' development, others had been less successful.

Affairs: the anatomy of extra-marital relationships

Tony Lake and Ann Hills

This entertaining and compassionate book presents a vivid picture of a hidden and secret world. Despite the high value which society places on marriage, extra-marital affairs are a common and often widely accepted feature of life. Beginning from a series of interviews, from which they quote at length, the authors analyse the motives of those who have affairs, and describe the causes and consequences of their behaviour.

People of the Totem
The Indians of the Pacific Northwest
Norman Bancroft-Hunt; photographs by Werner Forman

The American Indians of the Northwest Coast enjoyed a level of affluence which allowed them to produce extraordinarily sophisticated art forms, that expressed their religious beliefs and played a crucial role in the myths and ceremonies which were an integral part of their way of life.
This is the fourth title in the Echoes of the Ancient World series.

The Buried Cities: Pompeii and Herculaneum
Alfonso de Franciscis

The ancient cities of Pompeii, Herculaneum and Stabiae buried by Vesuvius's greatest eruption in 79 AD, were forgotten until the first excavation in the 18th Century.
These uniquely preserved cities have revealed invaluable information about Roman civilisation, explained here in a concise and expert text with 112 pages of colour photographs of the sites and their treasures.

The World of Ice
The Natural History of the Frozen Regions
Brian John

A substantial part of the Earth's surface is permanently covered by ice, and remains virtually untouched by man. The author explains the factors of climate and geology that create these harsh conditions, discusses the different types of frozen and glaciated landscapes and describes the extraordinary adaptations of plants and animals to life in sub-zero temperatures.

The Living Swamp
Alessandro Borgioli and Giuliano Cappelli

Swamp and marshland play an essential role in the Earth's ecology. The authors have spent many years observing and photographing life in wetlands around the world and discuss the particular characteristics of the different regions. They explain the complex animal food chains and the behaviour of the indigenous flora and fauna, and show how the reclamation of swampland can adversely affect plant and animal life.

Palmistry

Your Fate and Fortune in Your Hand

Francis King

The ancient art of palm reading has caused controversy throughout its history. Now Francis King shows just how much can be read in a hand – truths about the character of the subject, his past life, his weaknesses, strengths and potential, and how the shape of the hand and the formation of the lines provide indications of what the future holds in store.

PIRANESI Nicholas Penny

Piranesi's grandiloquent and monumental concoctions of ruins and visionary architecture dominate his work as one of the supreme and most imaginative etchers in Western Art. Nicholas Penny documents every stage of Piranesi's restless career with many illustrations from his best-known and most representative drawings and series of etchings.

HOLBEIN Jane Roberts

The major artistic force at the Tudor Court, Holbein created the popular visual image of Henry VIII. Jane Roberts explores all the activities of this superb German artist who settled in England and evolved a style of painting and draughtsmanship which set new standards for sensitivity to both the texture of fabric and the nuance of individual personality.

EDITH SITWELL Elizabeth Salter

The theatricality of Edith Sitwell's appearance and her eccentric behaviour endeared her to the public while her innovative poetry and forthright literary criticism won her the respect and acclaim of the literary world. In this lavishly illustrated pictorial biography, with many photographs published for the first time, Elizabeth Salter, Dame Edith's private secretary during her last years recounts the story of the life of the High Priestess of twentieth-century English poetry.

RUSSIAN REVOLUTIONARY ART
John Milner

The artistic innovations unleashed by the Russian Revolution and the machine age are investigated in this stimulating study of Soviet art in the 1920s. Focusing upon the Constructivists, John Milner gauges the last eruption of Russian creativity before the deadening impact of Stalinism.

DAUMIER Sarah Symmons

One of the greatest draughtsmen and one of the most penetrating caricaturists of nineteenth-century Paris, Daumier depicted 'ordinary' people, fugitives, emigrants and the tragi-comic Don Quixote with stark and moving simplicity. Sarah Symmons offers a comprehensive selection of this master's paintings, prints and sculptures.

Dickens: A Life

Norman MacKenzie and Jeanne MacKenzie

Charles Dickens led a life as crowded and colourful as the canvas of his novels. He was a man of paradoxes, an editor, a philanthropist, a relentless critic of humbug and bureaucracy, an inveterate traveller, a genius. This new biography is compellingly readable; its scholarship is impeccable.

Britain and the Jews of Europe 1939-1945

Bernard Wasserstein

This book tells a sorry story: that of bureaucratic complacency, inhumanity, and blindess to the catastrophe of the Jews in Europe during World War II. It examines the Government's attitudes to Jewish refugee migration to Britain, Palestine, and the Empire; the internment and deportation of aliens; and its response to proposals such as that for the Allied bombardment of Auschwitz.

Jury Trials

John Baldwin and Michael McConville

This disturbing book reveals that jury trials result in a large number of questionable acquittals and, worse, a number of doubtful convictions. It analyses a series of such trials heard in Birmingham and in London in 1975 and 1976, and presents new evidence on current controversies such as the success of professional criminals before juries and the social composition of juries.

THE STAND
Stephen King

CARRIE, 'SALEM'S LOT and THE SHINING have assured the phenomenally successful Stephen King a place as a number one author in the horror field. THE STAND is his strangest and most powerful novel yet: an apocalyptic vision in which the survivors of an international epidemic must choose between joining the forces of ultimate Good or ultimate Evil.

THE DEAL
Donald Zec

Actor Paul Madison's image and reputation were impeccable — all his fans adored him. Yet, what the public didn't know was that he was a dangerously warped individual, capable of corrupting minors, engaging in sadistic orgies, and any and all forms of sexual depravity. Yet, his secrets were safe for the time being — thanks to "the Deal". Donald Zec probably knows the inside world of Hollywood as intimately as any other living writer. This is his powerful and disturbing novel of the "other" Hollywood.

THE SAVAGE
Alex Peters

The plan was essentially simple: to find a young adult male from a primitive tribe and bring him into a highly developed society to see how he would cope. Would he experience culture shock and trauma, or would he adapt? The resulting story of a South American Indian's confrontation with the Western civilisation of New York City is at the same time funny, surprising and sad.

THUNDER IN THE KERK
Ann Marlowe

Art student Robin Lowell is sent to Holland where she is to help restore a 13th century church. Dangerous, insist the townspeople — for the church has seen troubled times and there are tales of a haunting — and a curse. While the town seethes with excitement when treasure is found during the restoration, Robin finds herself the victim of a malicious persecution, for she is convinced that the little church has other dark secrets to reveal . . .

THE MOSCOW OPTION: An Alternative Second World War
David Downing

David Downing, whose previous (true) history of the German generals of World War II, THE DEVIL'S VIRTUOSOS, has received outstanding critical acclaim, now presents a highly feasible, fictionalised version of an alternative course of the War, had Hitler been out of action at a crucial stage of the German offensive. Downing paints an extraordinary picture of the War that never was, in which Hollywood is bombed, Churchill almost dismissed, and Eichmann assassinated.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

G.G. Nahas

At a time when strong forces in many communities are pressing for the legalization of marijuana, most public information on the subject concerns marijuana's impact from a legalistic rather than a scientific viewpoint. Professor Nahas's book is important because it presents the truth about the many dangers of the drug from documented medical, pharmacological and scientific evidence, at a level which will be easily understood by those with little scientific background.

THE INNER LIMITS OF MANKIND

Heretical Reflections on Today's Values, Culture and Politics

E. Laszlo

There has been so much emphasis on the problems which mankind faces that stem from 'outer limits' that it has gone almost unrecognized that mankind's truly decisive limits are the 'inner limits' which show themselves in a variety of psychological, cultural and political ways. This personal statement explores the ways in which each of us can contribute to a self-transformation which could change the world by challenging current values, beliefs and practices.

GREENSHANKS
Desmond and Maimie Nethersole-Thompson

Desmond Nethersole-Thompson has been studying his favourite bird, the greenshank Tringa nebularia, since May 1932. He told of his earlier researches in the New Naturalist volume, The Greenshank, published in 1951, a classic, long out of print and a collector's item.
The new book concentrates on his and the family's studies of greenshanks in the wild and beautiful NW Highlands of Scotland, and represents a major contribution to bird studies. The illustrations in colour and monochrome by Donald Watson have all the veracity and atmosphere one has come to expect of this gifted artist; and there are 19 photographs.

POPULATION ECOLOGY OF RAPTORS
Ian Newton

Dr Newton's book is concerned with all aspects of population regulation in diurnal birds of prey, their social behaviour, dispersion, numbers, movements, breeding and mortality. He has drawn on his own studies and on material and investigations worldwide to produce an authoritative and stimulating synthesis of current thinking and research on the ecological problems of the Falconiformes. The author's lucid style will ensure a wide readership among research workers and the more general audience with an interest in birds of prey. There are many line drawings and a section of photographs.

SOCIAL POLICY AND SEX ROLES

A Complex Social Science Equation

Examines social policy on sex roles from a cross-national perspective and assesses the contribution that social science can make to this process. The authors look at the emergence of women in the political arena — both as legislators and voters — within the context of the resurgent women's movement, and addresses key issues (that every social scientist and policy maker concerned with sex roles should read) in such diverse areas as education, work, politics and the family.

MEDIA CULTURE

Focuses on the unique perspective of the mass media, showing how organizational considerations promote a distinct media culture — the knowledge, techniques, and assumptions which encourage media workers to acquire particular cognitive and evaluative criteria. The volume illustrates, for example, how scheduling, sources of information, style, format, and professional awards influence how the world is depicted through the various mass media.

DECENTRALIST TRENDS IN WESTERN DEMOCRACIES

Introduction by Nelson Polsby

International specialists explore three decentralist trends common to most western democracies — devolution, decentralization, and grass roots participation — in America, Europe and the UK, and the differing institutional and cultural responses these trends have created. As well as causes and origins of isolated decentralist trends, the contributors consider the institutional developments which follow out of them.

INTEGRATING SERVICES FOR TROUBLED FAMILIES

Dilemmas of Program Design and Implementation

Provides the detailed case history of a new programme for integrating social services and preventing family breakup — one that overcomes the fragmentation, inaccessibility, duplication, and ineffectiveness of traditional services for troubled families. Shows how the programme could be adapted for other groups requiring coordinated services, such as the aged and the mentally ill. Describes its beginnings as just an idea through its planning, initiation, implementation, and institutionalization phases — with particular attention to what problems emerged in each phase and how they were handled. Focuses not only on how services were delivered and on what results were achieved but also on principles and practices of staffing, staff training, fund raising, use of facilities, interorganizational relationships, and so on.

INCEST

A Psychological Study of Causes and Effects with Treatment Recommendations

Presents previously unreported information on the short- and long-term effects of an incestuous experience and provides the first comprehensive summary of the observations and hypotheses advanced by incest researchers during the past fifty years. Analyzes the personal and social characteristics of incest participants, the role of different members of the family in covertly setting up the incest situation, the course of the incest "affair," and the post-incest psychological and martial history of incest victims. Devotes major attention to father-daughter incest (the most common form of incest encountered in clinical practice) but also examines brother-sister, mother-son, and other forms of heterosexual incest; homosexual incest; and multiple incest.

VIOLENCE

Perspectives on Murder and Aggression

Brings together, for the first time, a comprehensive collection of major perspectives on the causes, treatment, and prevention of violent behaviour. Discusses — in light of the most current research findings — biological, sociological, psychological, ethological, and psychoanalytical theories of aggression. Provides extensive case material and numerous clinical examples which practitioners will find useful in dealing with such problems as child abuse, female aggression, school violence, sexual offenders, and victim treatment. In addition to original research contributions, each chapter presents a thorough review of pertinent literature.

SOCIOBIOLOGY AND HUMAN NATURE

An Interdisciplinary Critique and Defense

The first comprehensive, interdisciplinary assessment of sociobiology — a controversial new discipline centred around the systematic study of the biological basis of social behaviour in men and animals. Authorities in the biological and behavioural sciences, as well as in philosophy and the history of science, provide contrasting analyses of the assumptions, methodology, and conclusions of sociobiology and examine its implications for studying human beings.

FIELD RESEARCH

A Manual for Logistics and Management of Scientific Studies in Natural Settings

Presents a general introduction and practical methodology for conducting research in schools, hospitals, homes, factories, shopping centres, and other real-life settings — places, unlike laboratories, that are often not compatible with the needs of scientific study. Provides a realistic analysis of field research problems and solutions and describes how field researchers can best perform management tasks essential to their studies, including utilizing community resources, dealing with public opinion, selecting and training staff members, supervising the staff, and reconciling research requirements with real-world constraints.

DEVELOPING AN INTERDISCIPLINARY SCIENCE OF ORGANIZATIONS

Establishes the foundation for moving the study of organizations from a collection of often unrelated and incongruous facts towards an integrated science. Assesses the different paradigms used by psychologists, sociologists, human factors specialists, and others for organizational study and shows that they offer only a limited and usually incoherent understanding of related sets of phenomena.

METHODOLOGICAL APPROACHES TO SOCIAL SCIENCE

Integrating Divergent Concepts and Theories

Analyzes the prospects for the methodological unification of the social sciences and difficulties that must be surmounted. Isolates — by critically examining the literature in the social psychology of science — four primary ways of thinking about the practicing social science: the Analytic Scientific, the Conceptual Theoretic, the Conceptual Humanistic, and the Particular Humanistic.

Music and Education

THE MUSIC CLUB BOOK
Albert Chatterley

The author has produced Music Club on BBC School Radio for many years. In this book he has put together a collection of creative projects based on his own inspired work as teacher and lecturer. Some of the sophisticated ideas will help to free inhibitions in older children, while the simpler projects can be happily used with younger age groups. 96pp. Illustrated.
Limp cover: 0 85249 497 1 £3.50

EASY STRETCH GUITAR
David Pearmain

A new approach for those who want to play the guitar but may have given up the struggle at square one. Specially suited to smaller hands, the book provides a sound basis for both classical and folk guitar. 80pp. Illustrated.
Limp cover: 0 85249 447 5 £3.00

VILEM TAUSKY TELLS HIS STORY to Margaret Tausky

Sub-titled 'A Two-Part Setting' this is the life of the popular conductor who was a rising young composer and conductor in Czechoslovakia until the World uprooted him and the second part began in England after 1940. Charmingly told to his wife, here is an endearing picture of 'a giver of pleasure'. 160pp. Illustrated.
Hardback: 0 85249 478 5 £6.00

SOURCE-STUDIES IN MUSIC: A TRIBUTE TO THURSTON DART
edited by Ian Bent

Professor Bent has collected papers by sixteen distinguished colleagues and students of the great musicologist Thurston Dart, who died in 1973. In a limited edition, commended by the Musica Britannica Trust, this outstanding contribution to musical scholarship is a 'must' for libraries.
Contributors include:

Margaret Bent, Stanley Boorman, Robin Bowman, Philip Brett, Lenore Coral, Lucy Durán, David Fallows, Nigel Fortune, Peter Le Huray, John Stevens, Laurence Picken, Michael Tilmouth, Colin Timms, Brian Trowell and Peter Williams. 400pp. approx. Illustrated.

rouse/arouse (stir)
To 'rouse' is to waken or stir, as strong indignation. To 'arouse' – from 'rouse' on the lines of 'arise' and 'rise' – is to excite to action or put into motion. The difference is a fine one. 'Arouse' is more common with emotions and feelings, as 'arousing' someone's curiosity or suspicion. The implication is that 'rousing' stirs from basic inactivity to activity, and that 'arousing' excites something latent or known to be present. Compare 'The sight aroused my pity (which I had anyway) and 'The sight roused my interest' (which earlier was non-existent).

K

krone/krona/koruna ('crown' as unit of currency)
The 'krone' (plural kroner) is the monetary unit of Denmark and Norway, divided into 100 ore. The 'krona' (plural kronor) is the unit of Sweden, and the 'krona' (kronur) that of Iceland. These are respectively divided into 100 ore and aurar. The 'koruna' (plural koruny) is the unit of currency of Czechoslovakia equal to 100 haleru or heller. The 'Krone' (plural Kronen) was also formerly a German gold coin worth ten Marks or an Austrian silver coin equalling 100 heller.

A 'preparatory' remark at the beginning of a speech is one that 'prepares' those present for the speech as a whole – virtually an introduction, in fact. A 'prefatory' remark is one that explains the theme or aim of the speech – one that acts as a preface. A 'preliminary' remark might well not relate directly to the speech at all, but simply be one that precedes it. 'Preliminary' notices or examinations, however are ones that precede more important notices or exams – the ones before the real thing. The word literally means 'before the threshold'.

Room's Dictionary of Confusibles

Adrian Room

'Brusque' and 'brisk', 'baroque' and 'rococo', 'notable' and 'noticeable': this new-style dictionary sorts out those annoying words, alike in sound and related in meaning, that so frequently get misused and confused. Covering a wide range of words, from the exotic 'mufti' and 'mahdi' to the homely 'crimplene' and 'terylene', from the abstruse 'stertorous' and 'strepitous' to slangish 'kinky' and 'kooky', the dictionary lists approximately 800 pairs or larger groups of confusibles, also giving examples of their correct, and sometimes incorrect usage and, in many cases, an explanation of their origin.

Road to the Isles

Travellers to the Hebrides 1770–1914

Derek Cooper

Two hundred years ago, the Hebrides were remote, inaccessible and unvisited. Almost overnight they became a magnet for travellers from all over Europe. Scott, Keats, Mendelssohn, Turner and Wordsworth all came to be astonished by their romance and beauty. In their wake came many more, leaving accounts of their adventures. From these journals and memoirs, Derek Cooper has recreated a kaleidoscope of life in the Hebrides in the age of sail and steam: a travel pass to islands now deserted and glens long silent, revealing the dramatic contrast of land and sea, loneliness and community, poverty and privilege.

Announcing a new series

Britain before the Conquest:

An Archaeological History of the British Isles, c. 1500 BC—AD 1066

General Editor: Andrew Wheatcroft

The early history of British society presents a recurring theme of conquest and subsequent cultural fusion, a subtle and complex pattern which can only be revealed by using many sources, both historical and archaeological. There has been no comprehensive study of these foundations of British culture and society written by experts for a non-specialist audience. This series of books has been designed to meet that need.

There are five volumes in the series, covering the period from Palaeolithic Britain through to the eve of the Norman Conquest. Although each volume is complete in itself, the series as a whole forms a comprehensive history of early Britain.

The series will be a major choice of the Ancient History Book Club, and has been selected for the History Book Club of the USA. The first two volumes will be —

Anglo-Saxon England

Tide of Empires

Decisive Naval Campaigns in the Rise of the West
Volume 1, 1481-1654

Peter Padfield

The first of a four-volume history of naval warfare. This first volume deals with the period from the Venetian sea-supremacy and Portuguese campaigns of discovery to the Dutch conquest of a maritime empire, and finally the emergence of England as a serious rival to the Dutch. Mr Padfield's campaign and battle descriptions are marvellously exciting and colourful: he vividly describes not only the ships and weapons of the period and the men and nations who developed ship design and naval strategy, but also examines the strengths and weaknesses of particular commanders. This is a radically new view of naval history, written with all the gusto and attention to detail which has established Peter Padfield among the most readable and exciting of naval historians.

Propaganda in War

Michael Balfour

Propaganda poses one of the unanswered questions about the Second World War. Michael Balfour, having worked in all the departments responsible for British propaganda, ended the war as a Deputy Chief of Intelligence. In this authoritative study he shows how the art of propaganda was moulded and developed by its leading practitioners – notably Joseph Goebbels in Germany and many in Britain, including the late Richard Crossman.

Auschwitz Inferno

The Testimony of a Sonderkommando

Filip Müller

Professor Yehuda Bauer of the Hebrew University, Jerusalem writes: 'Filip Müller's book is a unique document: it is the testimony of the only man who saw the Jewish people die and lived to tell what he saw.' What Filip Müller tells is of vital importance: it is a record of an inconceivably tragic time, both for him as an individual and for the victims of Auschwitz. To the generation of survivors, Jewish and non-Jewish, it will help to approach an understanding of the horror that was Auschwitz.

THE PHILADELPHIA EXPERIMENT

PROJECT INVISIBILITY

The shocking revelation of a top secret wartime experiment conducted by the American Navy, and of its horrifying and tragic outcome

An ordinary destroyer that vanished from her berth in Philadelphia Navy Yard — and reappeared a short time later thousands of miles away. The appalling after-effects on her crew: insanity, double vision, physical debility, even death. The consistent and rigorous denials of any such experiment by the American Office of Naval Information. Fantasy? The products of a hyper-imaginative mind? Years of diligent research, a gradual accumulation of evidence all pointing to the same story, lead Berlitz and Moore to the conclusion that the apparently impossible actually happened.

It was an experiment in the ultimate camouflage — invisibility. Scientists working under the most secret conditions believed that magnetism could alter the molecular composition of matter and transfer it, reassembled, to another place. And it worked — for the destroyer. On living beings the results were not so happy. The project was hastily abandoned, the unfortunate crew members pensioned off and the scientists dismissed.

But too many people knew about the experiment. From the statements of witnesses, from long-lost documents, the authors have built up a formidable case which is now revealed for the first time. Incredible as it may seem, man once stood, perhaps still stands, on the threshold of the fulfilment of an ancient and intoxicating dream.

The first truly inside story of life in Communist China

A WESTERNER'S LIFE IN CHINA, 1972-1976

Lois Fisher

One of the few Westerners who have lived in modern Peking, and not only lived there but come to know the city and its people intimately, Lois Fisher has written a charming account of everyday life in this most mysterious of cities. The wife of a correspondent, she explored Peking on a bicycle (the mode of transport of most of its inhabitants), shopped in its markets and local stores, learned Chinese and talked to the people wherever she went. She learned to cook and understand Chinese food and, above all, she grew to love the Chinese people and their attitudes to life.

Her book describes the way of life of ordinary people, their feelings, their pleasures and their work, as no account of Peking has done before. The wealth of black and white photographs complements the text, ranging from the great public occasions to the simple moments of eating, chatting and walking in the park.

From the co-creator of 'Doomwatch', a challenge to us all to make our peace with the earth

THE QUEST FOR GAIA

A BOOK OF CHANGES

Kit Pedler

An important book that is both a warning and a message of hope. Kit Pedler believes that by our prodigal misuse of the earth's unrenewable resources we are set on a course for destruction. Only by altering our whole lifestyle can we avert certain disaster, and to do this we must reorganise the pattern of our lives so that we are in harmony with the earth and its principles of recycling and regeneration.

No mere preacher, Kit Pedler describes how each of us can live comfortable lives, using natural materials for clothing, abandoning electricity and oil for wood-burning heaters, curing ourselves with herbal remedies instead of chemical antibiotics.

Our rewards will be not merely a guarantee of man's survival, but a rediscovery of our lost harmony with the earth and the ability to feel and love in ways forgotten by post-industrial man.

A breakthrough in psychic research — exclusive revelations from behind the Iron Curtain

THE NEW SOVIET PSYCHIC DISCOVERIES

Henry Gris & William Dick

No country in the world takes parapsychology as seriously as the Soviet Union, but her discoveries remain a closely guarded secret. Now, for the first time, two Western reporters have made a series of visits behind the Iron Curtain and by interviews with special contacts in the Kremlin, with Russian scientists and with workers in the psychic field, they have gathered information about Russian research never before made available to the West. An amazing book that will shatter many of our preconceptions about the mind and its capabilities.

From the best-selling author of The Godsend and Sweetheart, Sweetheart, new light on a horrific nineteenth-century murder mystery

CRUELLY MURDERED

CONSTANCE KENT AND THE KILLING AT ROAD HILL HOUSE

Bernard Taylor

In the summer of 1860 all England reeled at the news of the appalling murder of a four-year-old boy in a small West Country village. The child's half-sister, Constance Kent, eventually confessed to the crime and was convicted and sentenced, but was she really guilty? In a masterly reconstruction of the events, Bernard Taylor makes use of newly discovered documents to point to a different and shocking solution to the mystery, one in which human passions appear at their fiercest and a tale of intrigue and burning resentment is compellingly unfolded.

ICE CRASH

DISASTER IN THE ARCTIC, 1928

Alexander McKee

When the mighty polar airship Italia, designed and flown by Umberto Nobile, crashed under bizarre circumstances in 1928, it almost caused an international incident. Rival rescue teams died in the freezing conditions and Nobile, a disgraced survivor, was accused of cowardice. The wrecked airship itself vanished without trace. What really happened in those Arctic wastes? Who was to blame? McKee reassesses the evidence in a gripping and controversial story.

A NOVEL

A powerful novel recreating the drama of early American aviation

WINGS

Robert J. Serling

The story of a great obsession, of a man who flew with the pioneers of early American aviation and sacrificed his whole life to the industry. Spanning five decades, this epic novel sweeps from the first, courageous efforts of those explorers of the air through the ferocious competition of a growing industry to the great international airlines of today. By the best-selling author of The President's Plane is Missing, it is a book to capture the imagination, a book of daring, ambition and ruthless singlemindedness.

THE SOUL EATER

Robert Alexander

A beautiful and peaceful country village becomes the setting for a strange and spine-chilling novel in the hands of a new master of suspense and horror. Why is Steveley's old church being left to crumble? How did two of its recent incumbents die? Who is responsible for the apparently ritual desecrations centred on the village? As terror piles on terror, the action sweeps to a titanic struggle between the forces of good and evil in which Steveley's human inhabitants are reduced to helpless and fear-maddened puppets.

CUDDON RETURN

John Finch

by the celebrated writer of Family at War and Sam, a first novel that recreates the hardships of the Depression and the Second World War in a Yorkshire mining village. It records the boyhood dreams of Denis and Ted, each bound by the shackles of poverty, each determined to fight against the fate accepted by his parents — Denis by breaking away altogether, Ted by standing firm and facing the gruelling life down the pit. Sensitive and deeply felt, this story will strike chords in the hearts of thousands. A major literary work from a writer of proven ability.

THE SIEGE OF DRAGONARD HILL

Rupert Gilchrist

The fifth volume in this bestselling saga of passion and slavery in the Caribbean of the nineteenth century, The Siege of Dragonard Hill sees the violent confrontation of four generations of the family of Richard Abdee, black and white alike embroiled in a bitter struggle for survival of the dynasty. Panoramic and vividly shocking, Rupert Gilchrist's gripping historical epic evokes a bygone world of tyrants, lovers and slaves with a skill that marks him as a storyteller of genius.

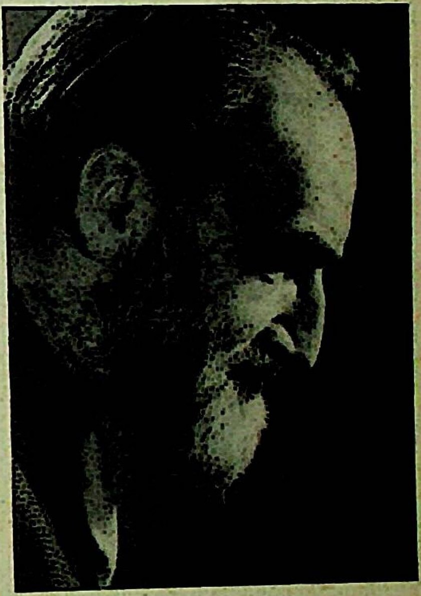
THE MINISTERS

Fionn MacColla



The West Highland region of Scotland forms the setting for this sharply observed novel of a small village community bound by an unrelenting Presbyterianism, and the violent reaction of its inhabitants to the invasion of gently progressive moderation in the shape of their new minister. A perceptive study of the intolerance and mean-spiritedness which MacColla deplored in his fellow countrymen, it is also an affectionate and humorous portrayal of human foibles, sparkling with a delightful array of eccentric and wholly believable characters. It represents MacColla at his profound and optimistic best, a revelation to his admirers and to new readers alike.

Arthur Hailey

A brilliant new novel, the timely and uncannily realistic story of crisis in the world of electrical power production. Love and deceit, greed and terror, power and ambition mingle in a large and diverse cast of characters bound up in the tense drama of a critical shortage of electricity. With his usual flair for hitting on a controversially topical subject, Arthur Hailey imagines an emergency which could all too easily occur at a time when we are becoming increasingly dependent on generated electricity for our very survival.

MEN AND SEX

A GUIDE TO SEXUAL FULFILMENT

Bernie Zilbergeld

By a leading clinical psychologist who has specialised in sex therapy for men, this understanding and practical book stands out at a time when the bookshops are flooded with an abundance of literature on women and female sexuality. Starting from the early learning about sex that can affect a man's behaviour and attitudes, it shows how this can lead to disappointment and a sense of inadequacy and goes on to encourage the reader to recognise and understand his own sexual values and preferences. Dealing with the common sex problems that arise, its aim is to promote confidence and lasting fulfilment in the emotional and physical relationships between men and women.

CASINO GAMBLING

WHY YOU WIN, WHY YOU LOSE

Russell T. Barnhart

Is it really possible to develop a strategy that will enable you to beat the odds and win consistently at the game of your choice? In this practical and totally realistic book you can learn how to understand the odds against you and use the short runs of cards, dice or roulette numbers to adopt a staking system that works in your favour. The rules of the games played in British, European and American casinos are explained, with the odds for each, and the author gives frank advice on which games can yield most profit. For theorists there is complete analysis of 50,000 consecutive spins of a Monte Carlo roulette wheel, and a comparison of the relative merits of different staking systems.

Edited by Eric Batty

This highly popular football annual comes of age this year with a bumper issue containing articles by players and managers throughout the world. Known as the finest book of its kind, this volume fully lives up to its reputation for hard-hitting contributions from men not afraid to state their opinions. Lavishly illustrated with original and unusual photographs.

Press comment on International Football Book No. 20:

"As usual, well worth the money. Not only would the pictures on their own make it a good buy; words of wisdom fairly tumble from the pens of the galaxy of talent lined up by the editor who, at this job, can himself run rings around most of the opposition." The Times Educational Supplement

GROWTH OF THE SOIL

Knut Hamsun

Translated by
W. Worster

Hamsun's best known novel and one of his most moving, this story of man's struggle to reconcile himself with the land and the slow pace of the seasons is almost mythological in its preoccupations. Rich in narrative incident and peopled, as are all Hamsun's stories, with the marked and the maimed, the gossips and the bringers of change, it will be warmly welcomed by the many readers now rediscovering the works of Norway's most considerable literary figure since Ibsen.

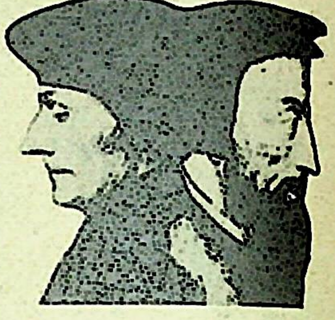
ERASMUS and THE RIGHT TO HERESY

Stefan Zweig

Translated by
Eden & Cedar Paul



First published in Austria in the 1930s, this important double volume about two historic confrontations is at once Zweig's protest against dictatorship and his celebration of the continuing conflict between enlightenment and tyranny. In the opposing arguments of Erasmus and Luther, Castellio and Calvin, Zweig examines the strange routes of man's course through history that lead so inexorably to our own time, pinpointing values as much at issue today as they were at the Reformation.

REALMS OF THE HUMAN UNCONSCIOUS

OBSERVATIONS FROM LSD RESEARCH

Stanislav Grof

By one of the world's pioneers in the field of LSD therapy, this classic work, published for the first time in Britain, forms the basis for a radical new psychology. From the welter of experience triggered off by the drug in patients and research subjects, it draws an expanded cartography of the human unconscious, exploring the potential of LSD for the study of many mental disorders and for a deeper understanding of art, mythology and religion. It both complements and elaborates the work described in Grof's account, written with Joan Halifax, of LSD therapy on dying patients, The Human Encounter with Death.

LEARNING TO COPE

Edward Whelan & Barbara Speake

Much has been written for professionals about mental handicap and the problems of adolescents. This book is unique in bringing the two subjects together with the needs of parents particularly in mind. Offering them a practical programme for developing the independence of their mentally handicapped sons and daughters, it shows how these young people can be encouraged to function as adults and to see themselves as adults, by teaching them to cope with everyday life. The authors work at the Hester Adrian Research Centre, University of Manchester. Edward Whelan was an adviser to the BBC Television series 'Let's Go'.

PSYCHIC BREATHING

COSMIC VITALITY FROM THE AIR

Robert Crookall. An intriguing relationship has been observed between mediumship and the perfectly normal process of breathing. The famous trance medium Mrs Eileen J. Garrett said, 'I gathered vitality from the atmosphere, and drew strength to myself by breathing with my whole body.' In this profusely documented book a renowned psychical investigator demonstrates that breathing is at the heart of psychic experience. Includes: Statements by psychics concerning breathing; Observations by psychical researchers; Ancient teachings regarding breathing.

FISHERIES ECONOMICS
A survey of the economics of fisheries management primarily addressed to those concerned with management at the "unit stock" level. The approach is largely welfare-economic, with the emphasis on the types of deviation from conditions of economic efficiency that are likely to occur in fisheries and their possible remedies.

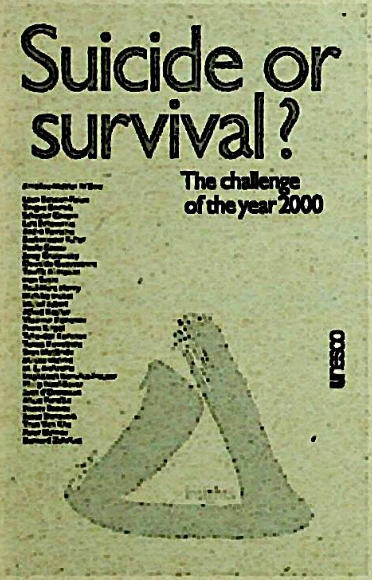
Insights...

A meaningful new series that treats the important themes and critical choices affecting mankind.

Suicide or survival?
The challenges of the year 2000

Thirty eminent artists, politicians and thinkers from all over the world engage in a lively and informal debate on nuclear disarmament, the dwindling of natural resources, pollution, the manipulation of information, and the decline of ethical standards.

1977 180 p. ISBN 92-3-101534-6 £5.70



Biology and ethics
Reflections inspired by a Unesco symposium, by Bruno Ribes

Because of recently acquired knowledge on the chemical nature of genetic information, man now has the ability to induce mutation in organisms by manipulating their chemical building blocks. This new power to intervene in life and the questions it poses for scientists and all concerned with the ethical dimensions of research is the book's starting point.

Completion of a work of major significance in the social sciences:

Main trends of research in the social and human sciences

These three landmark volumes offer not only a unique guide to how research is developing in each field, but a record of the best work being done in the social sciences during the present decade.

- An overview of recent developments in disciplines ranging from aesthetics to jurisprudence.
- Essays by internationally known social scientists, including Geoffrey Barraclough, Mikel Dufrenne, Bela Kopecki, Sigfried J. De Laet, Paul Ricœur, Viktor Knapp, W. J. M. Mackenzie, and Maurice Friedman.
- Reflects the diverse and often conflicting views which guide research in many different countries.
- An essential work of reference for personal and institutional use.

TRANSNATIONAL CORPORATIONS IN WORLD DEVELOPMENT: A RE-EXAMINATION

An integrated study of the political, legal, economic and social effects of the operations and practices of transnational corporations. It was felt that the interrelationships of these effects made this necessary, as a sequel to the report published by the United Nations in 1973 entitled Multinational Corporations in World Development.

Sales No. E.78.II.A.5 $12.00

THE ACQUISITION OF TECHNOLOGY FROM MULTINATIONAL CORPORATIONS BY DEVELOPING COUNTRIES

Examines the multinational corporation as a vehicle for supplying technology to developing countries, comparing it with certain possible alternatives and considering the issues that arise and possible solutions.

Sales No. E.74.II.A.7 $5.00

THE IMPACT OF MULTINATIONAL CORPORATIONS ON DEVELOPMENT AND ON INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS: Technical Papers: Taxation

Identifies major problems in the taxation of multinational corporations as seen by them and by their host and home countries. Aspects studied are: intercountry differences in rates of tax and in definition of taxable income, tax treaties, income tax incentives to foreign capital and international equity.

Sales No. E.74.II.A.6 $7.00

SURVEY OF RESEARCH ON TRANSNATIONAL CORPORATIONS

Fully indexed by topic, researcher, institution and country, the Survey supplies material on corporate strategies, organization, and the political, legal, economic and social effects of transnational corporations. Provides a basis for the formulation of a code of conduct, further information analysis, and ongoing research.

Sales No. E.77.II.A.16 $20.00

SERIES TEN

Your primary source for important specialist titles from major world publishers.

UMI has set up the "Series Ten" programme to keep available important specialist titles which might otherwise go out of print. Titles with a small but steady sales momentum, which may not encourage the original publisher to go to the expense of another printing, are reprinted in short runs by UMI and sold on demand for as long as sales reach a minimum of ten copies a year — hence "Series Ten".

"Series Ten" keeps these titles actively in print so that they continue to be available to their specialist markets. "Series Ten" titles are recatalogued through Library of Congress's Cataloguing in Publication programme and entered into the MARC system; they are also re-listed in Bowker's "Books in Print" and "Weekly Record".

So far some 19 publishers have contributed titles to "Series Ten" and many more, from Britain, Europe and the USA, will be joining the scheme during 1979.

Publishers interested in joining "Series Ten" are asked to contact John Hodder at the address below.

For details of titles available, prices, etc., contact the Series Ten Promotions Manager at:

If you are searching for an out-of-print book, your first source should be one of these volumes.

UMI has 87,000 rare and out-of-print books, all of which can be reprinted on demand. These "Books On Demand" are reproduced in either paper or cloth bindings, usually in their original size. All 87,000 titles, with full bibliographic information, are listed in these four volumes:—

AUTHOR GUIDE (cloth, $24.50) lists titles by author. "Books On Demand" includes thousands of twentieth-century works and thousands more dating back through four centuries;

TITLE GUIDE (cloth, $24.50) lists "Books On Demand" in alphabetical title order — useful if author is unknown;

SUBJECT GUIDE (cloth, $24.50) lists titles under 250 classifications within the categories of humanities, social sciences, reference works sciences, technology and applied sciences;

1979 SUPPLEMENT (paper, $14.50) includes all the newest additions to UMI's "Books On Demand" Service.

OUR DAILY BREAD

M. Maliński

The leading Polish spiritual writer, whose message and poetic though highly practical style have caught the imagination of millions, offers 365 short texts of great richness and profundity. They are presented as messages from a friend who knows our lives from within and brings out all the troubles and joys that we hide or overlook. Maliński provides the real bread of consolation from the sure ground of prayerful faith. A book of day-by-day advice and meditation from one of the richest spiritual traditions in Europe

Burns & Oates [illegible].50 approx.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST JOHN—VOLUME 2

Rudolf Schnackenburg

The second volume of the leading commentary on St John. Rudolf Schnackenburg concentrates on the religious message of the gospel, as well as on the crucial questions of relation to the Synoptics, literary forms, origins, and so on. This theological commentary has no equal and is indispensable in any quest to understand the biblical message of salvation. An essential text for all who teach or study St. John.

Burns & Oates £15.00 approx.

CONCISE DICTIONARY OF CHRISTIAN ETHICS

Edited by Bernhard Stoeckle

A fundamental work of reference, containing more than a hundred articles and judiciously planned ancillary definitions in which leading theologians describe and respond to the major ethical questions of the present moment. This companion to Rahner's 'Encyclopaedia of Theology' offers guidelines for those who want to know how Christian theology defines and answers moral questions. Short bibliographies are provided.

ISBN 0 86012 050 3. Cased.

M. Maliński

Father Maliński has been a close friend of the new Pope for many years and is in an unequalled position to present the warm and constantly fascinating life-story of the new Pontiff. As Publishers to the Holy See, Burns & Oates are proud to present the official biography of a man and a priest whose decisions will affect the lives of people in every nation. The intellectual history of Pope John Paul II is unusually rich, but the hard and varied circumstances of his life have put him in a unique position to appreciate the agonies and at the same time the possibilities of life in the real world of our own times.
A book that will encourage as well as inform, and one that is far from the unthinking piety of the usual simplistic accounts of a prelate's life history.

ISBN 0 86012 074 0. Cased.

FAITH IN HISTORY AND SOCIETY

Johann Baptist Metz

An important work from the author of 'Theology of the World' and 'Followers of Christ'. Here Metz offers a critical political theology and a practical fundamental theology for the whole Church. The essentials of theology and Christianity are re-examined in relation to the universal conflicts and problems which affect people in contemporary society.

ISBN 0 86012 075 9. Cased.

THE SPIRIT IN THE CHURCH

Karl Rahner

The world's leading theologian writes authoritatively and movingly of the ways in which we experience the Spirit in everyday life, in special moments of vision and enlightenment, in charismatic groups and movements, and in visions and prophecies.

50 PROJECTS IN MACRAMÉ

This book has been written for the macramé enthusiast who is looking for further ideas and methods of working with string, rope and twine.

A chart at the beginning of the book explains the principles of the knotting techniques, followed by illustrations and lists of the tools and other materials required. Beginning with simple projects like Christmas tree decorations, bags, plant hangers and belts, the book goes on to illustrate and describe more adventurous designs that include a rainbow-coloured hammock, place-mats, lampshades, a deckchair, and even a hanging cradle for a baby.

Full instructions and illustrations are given for every project, and colour diagrams and close-up colour photographs are given for the most intricate parts of the designs.

FOUNDATIONS OF TIBETAN MEDICINE Vol 1

236 x 167mm 120pp Halftones Folding plate
Softcover £4.50
Hardcover £9.00

A Specialist, already qualified in three other medical fields, here establishes the teaching of Tibetan medicine on an academic basis for the first time, with the blessing of the Dalai Lama and the close guidance of his personal physician. 'Important contribution to the study of Tibetan medicine and Tibetan studies in general. . . . technically on a high level.' (Central Asiatic Journal reviewing German edition).

Jean Klein

BE WHO YOU ARE

210 x 148mm 96pp
Softcover £2.50
Hardcover £5.00

A record of recent talks in Europe, Asia and America which challenges readers to discover themselves for themselves - as a matter of daily, deepening perception quite apart from preconceived ideas.

Julia Porter

THE FROG-CHILD

210 x 148mm 72pp Frontispiece
Softcover £2.25
Hardcover £4.50

Contemporary fairy-story about that dreadful child (in oneself) who can be relied upon to do or say the wrong thing at the most effective moment - but who wins out in the end.

TALKING TO THE ANGEL

Softcover £4.00
Hardcover £8.00

As Hitler invaded Hungary a group of very young artists met regularly in prayer and silence. They recorded certain inner events of extraordinary spiritual power against the lightly sketched background of a nation's disintegration.

Keers, Lewensztain, Malavika

YOGA ART OF RELAXATION

210 x 148mm 160pp
Softcover £2.85
Hardcover £5.50

Many ancient cultures knew that the most effective use of the body demands total relaxation of all muscles save those directly involved in action. This is the why and the how of it, presented at a popular level for the present day.

HOW TO RIDE

June 7232 2187 1

Written by Daphne Machin Goodall Illustrated by Christine Bousfield

Daphne Machin Goodall, who has written many books on the subject of horses and ponies, has planned this book especially for young people who want to learn how to ride. There is helpful advice on how to choose the right pony, how to get to know its temperament and the best tackle to use. Step by step details are given on riding, vaulting, showing a pony and jumping. There is also a chapter on hunting. The author enlivens the text with personal anecdotes and the book is profusely illustrated with line drawings and photographs. Ages 8–12.

ANIMALS OF NORTH AMERICA

June 7232 2190 5

This new title in the Private Lives of Animals Series presents attractive illustrations and informative text to bridge the gap between education and entertainment. It shows how animals really live in their natural habitats, providing an insight to the true facts behind their often familiar but frequently unusual behaviour and the reasons for it. Realistic, full-colour illustrations throughout. Ages 7–12.

ANIMALS OF ASIA

June 7232 2250 9

The varied wildlife of Asia, ranging from the animals of the frozen north where the evergreen forests and tundra predominate, to those which inhabit the southern regions characterised by deserts, mountain chains and luscious jungles is to be found in this handsome volume. Here is the Spectral Tarsier, whose head can turn through nearly 360 degrees, Przewalski's Horse, the only true species of wild horse now in existence, the Komodo Dragon, the Giant Panda and many others, including flying reptiles. Full-colour illustrations. Ages 7–12.

ANIMALS TO SAVE

June 7232 2257 6

The eighteenth volume in the Private Lives of Animals Series deals with the present ecological crisis: forest clearance and the expansion of areas under cultivation, which have led to the extinction of many animal species in North and South America and Oceania; the plight of those living in arid regions and in mountains; the dwindling populations of European fauna and the cruel hunting of birds. The review ends with a chapter on national parks, the last retreat for the protection of wildlife. Full-colour illustrations. Ages 7–12.

A HURRIEDLY PUT-TOGETHER ADVERTISEMENT FROM A BUSY PUBLISHER

Although we are known as a reprint publisher, particularly strong in detective stories, we are expanding with many new titles. Those already published that we think you should know about include Axel Firsoff's "At the Crossroads of Knowledge" (£3.95): a study of the origins of life on Earth & elsewhere; Nigel Morland's "International pattern of murder" (£4.55) and his edited "Victorian crime stories" (£4.25). New editions we hope you stock include Patrick Moore's "Basic Astronomy" (£3.95) & the Hardwicks' "The Jolly Toper" (£3.55) a history of drinking in this country.
Our transport series by Alan Thomas & John Aldridge, led by "A.E.C." and followed by "Guy" & "Bedford" (£2.95 each) are subscribing & selling well.
Look out for "Water-gardener's Year" by Eric Hardy and a 3rd edition of Peggy Jay's "Help Yourselves" - a manual for the newly-disabled. Finally, "Decorative Boxes", by Joyce Routledge (approx. 60p.) is a certain seller - we'll tell you more about this later.

Growing Point

The Story of the Foundation of The Christian Community

Alfred Heidenreich

The Christian Community has made a unique breakthrough in the history of the Church. It has reestablished the sacraments in a form which meets the deepest needs of the searching soul of today and at the same time it proclaims the right of the individual to be his own judge as to what he should believe.

Let Your Garden Grow

Hazel Evans, Alan Kumm

THE BOOK for garden lovers who are definitely not lovers of gardening! Freshly revealed by the authors is the secret of the English Country Garden in which everything earns its keep but grows in abundant profusion. The idea is to let your garden grow simply, aided not so much by modern 'artificial' methods, as by the old wisdom and love of our forebears. Ideal for people of all ages with plenty of enthusiasm for, but little time to devote to, their gardens.

Price £4.95 Publication July 1979

Sport and Leisure Series

Introductory sport and leisure titles which deal in words and pictures with choosing the best equipment, using it, and developing the activity to the full. Caravanning by Tony Bradford is the twelfth title in this series. An estimated three-quarter of a million families take to the road with a caravan and they are being joined by new converts at the rate of at least twenty-five thousand families a year. Tony Bradford, editor of Caravan, reveals in a clear and logical way the secrets of safe, trouble-free and comfortable caravanning.

Publishers, make this your distribution HQ.

Just up the M1 Motorway from London at Hemel Hempstead, INTERNATIONAL BOOK DISTRIBUTORS are used to despatching books to your bookshop clients in 48 hours or less. We've been doing just that for the past 16 years.

Some 40 publishers from the U.K., U.S.A., Japan, Australia and New Zealand use our services. They like our rapid despatch, assured payment of invoices, comprehensive management reports from our in-house computer . . . and all at one inclusive fee.

IBD leaves you free to do what you do best: publish books, promote and sell them. We take the worry out of distribution by making full use of modern, up-to-date facilities, plus the skills of trained staff who have been with us for many years.

Like more details? Just ring, write or telex Don Deeks, our Managing Director, and he'll invite you to see what IBD has to offer.

Shelf classification can present a major problem wherever books are sold, often resulting in well intended but unprofessional attempts at shelf titling and signing. The Point Eight classification plate features:—

★ Titles protected from dust, dirt, and tampering fingers.
s securely on the shelf—but easily re-positioned.
s all thicknesses of shelves.
ted title sheets available—over 300 popular titles.
